Senate Approves New Poster, Vandalism Guidelines

By Steven Zapinski

At the recent meetings of the Senate on Nov. 23, reports from two Senate committees were read and four club constitutions were approved.

Student Government Association Attorney-General Skipfisher gave the report of the Committee on Vandalism. The committee recommended that the campus security guards be given total responsibility for preventing vandalism outside the campus buildings and on the grounds themselves, and that any organizations or clubs using buildings for club functions be held totally responsible for all incidents within the buildings. It also recommended that payment for damages due to vandalism inside buildings being used by clubs or organizations be paid with profits from that function of else from club dues. If the club cannot pay, then payment will be made out of Student Activities funds. These measures are designed primarily to ensure that clubs and organizations sponsoring dances, concerts of parties will take adequate precautions to guard against vandalism.

The report of the Committee to Revise the Posting Regulations was also read. The committee advised that posters, signs or advertisements must be approved, stamped and dated by the SGA, and that all posters be put up no earlier than three weeks before the event publicized and taken down no later than two school days afterwards. All personal notices will have to be on index cards, with the three week limit also applying. The committee recommended that no commercial advertisements be allowed posted unless they offer reduced rates to students or have been previously advertised in the campus newspaper. It strongly advised that no posters be allowed on glass, elevators, inside classrooms or on the outside of buildings. Non-compliance would result in the removal of any illegal poster.

The Senate voted to accept the recommendation of both committees.

Introducing new business, Skip Fisher read the constitutions of the Outing Club, Philosophy Association, German Club and Horticultural Society, and asked the Senate to accept them all. Each of the constitutions were approved; representatives of the Outing Club and Horticultural Society were seated.

Speaker Eric Bankit stated that he was in need of a new Parliamentarian because Paul Clements had resigned from that position. Randy Moses was nominated, and Allen Brown nominated himself. The meeting adjourned with the choice unmade. Only twenty-seven members attended the session.

Advantages Outweigh Disadvantages in W & M, CNC Separation Issue

By Debbie Grim

The following is a concise look at the advantages and disadvantages of separating Christopher Newport College from William and Mary. After discussing the subject with SGA President, Edd Brower, these facts were brought to light.

Advantages: 1) If Christopher Newport College was an independent college, we would have our own Board of Trustees. Under such circumstances, we would have only the needs of CNC considered, and only the well-being of this college as the function of the meetings of the Board of Trustees. 2) Our own Board of Trustees would have time to devote to recruiting patrons as a monetary source, something CNC could use desperately. 3) As a small college on our own, we would be able to collect the funds provided for small colleges. 4) The student body would benefit from this separation by having a voice in the policy decisions of the Board of Trustees through representation by one student and one alumni. 5) Students seeking special majors must take courses at William and Mary in order to complete required credits. As an independent college we would offer all necessary courses here at CNC.

Disadvantages: 1) We lose the prestige of our name-Christopher Newport College of the College of William and Mary.

There you have it, five advantages against one disadvantage. Apparently this one disadvantage weighs heavily with Christopher Newport's student body. The referendum voted upon November 19th and 20th, showed astounding results. The third question of this referendum was: 3) Would you like to see CNC become a division of William and Mary? The yes votes won by 55 votes the majority. The actual numbers were: 190 - Yes, 135 - No. According to these statistics, we should separate ourselves from William and Mary maybe?

Community Service Organizations Offer Legal Advice, Assistance

By Steven Zapinski

Have you ever needed a lawyer? Had problems with your landlord? Had trouble with your consumer credit? The Legal Aid Societies of Hampton and Newport News can help.

The Hampton (1109 N. King St.; 1-3 p.m., Tues. and Thurs.) and Newport News (2901 West Ave.; 244-0558; 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Mon-Fri.) Legal Aid Societies offer legal advice and assistance through the Bar Association to Peninsula citizens in all civil matters. They provide complete legal services in the areas of domestic relations (divorce and child custody), landlord-tenant problems, consumer credit, administrative cases, and bankruptcy. The Hampton society only offers advice and information, not court representation.

The Lawyers Referral Service of the Bar Association of Newport News can also help you. It directs persons who need legal assistance to a local attorney who handles the type of problems they have. It provides conferences with an attorney of the Newport News Bar Association, explanations of rights and responsibility under the law, suggestions for courses of action, estimates of court costs and attorney's fees to resolve the matter, and observes the strictest confidentiality. Anyone needing legal services may apply for aid. A fee of $12.50 is charged for an office conference with a licensed attorney-at-law.

If you have a consumer complaint, contact the Office of Consumer Affairs (City Hall, Washington & 25th St., Newport News; 247-8616; 8 a.m. - 5 p.m., Mon-Fri.). Its purpose is to help citizens with consumer complaints and to monitor weights and measures in stores, service stations and the like. The Office conducts mediation of complaints, takes court action if necessary, and spot checks merchants. Only Newport News is served, Hampton complaints are handled by the State. No fees are charged.

If you have a more specific problem, perhaps the National Organization for Women (P.O. Box 6215 Newport News, 23606; 874-0644, nights only), the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (2608 Jefferson Ave., Newport News; 244-2581; 1620 W. Queen St., Hampton; 838-8269), or the American Association of Retired Persons (205C -73rd St., Newport News; 244-3630; 39 Azalea Dr., Hampton; 723-8761) can help. Each of these organizations can provide legal aid and help in many civil matters.

Don't let a tailgater force you into speeding, warns the Highway Safety Division of Virginia. Pull over at the first opportunity and let him pass.

J.V. Drops Opener to Apprentice School, 85-66

The Christopher Newport College Junior Varsity Basketball team found the going tough in trying to provide coach Tom Kilpatrick with his first win. At the final horn, the Apprentice

School had emerged the victor, winning 85-66.

In the early going, the Captains had jumped out to a commanding 10 point lead, before the A's began to take charge and dominate. At the end of the first half of play, the A's had taken a slim lead, 43 - 35.

The Captains made their comeback with 11 minutes left in the game, cutting the score to 53

- 51. The strong rebounding of Ben Harper and the accurate shooting of Jimmy Stewart and Mark Taylor had brought the score close. At this point the A's took command once again to increase their game winning margin.

The Captains were led by the scoring of Taylor with 17 points, Harper with 11 points, and Fariss with 9 points. Stewart and Wade had 8 points each.

"Exit" Program Aids College in Planning Future Demands of Students

Clinton, N.Y. - (I.P.) - Kirkland College has for the past two years asked seniors to participate in a "college exit" process. The purpose of this is to gauge what effect four years of college has had on the individual student. One way to determine where progress is made is to replicate the process of entering college for the first time.

After the Kirkland senior has completed a ten-page questionnaire evaluating the policies and programs of the college as well as her own achievements, she make an appointment for an interview with a college administrator or faculty member. The interview begins with a look at the student's application to college and proceeds with a discussion of the changes she feels she has undergone during her college years.

Another approach to this issue of change deals with the student's progress in areas that are commonly thought to be major purposes of a college education: a breadth of knowledge across several fields of study, the ability to apply general or specialized knowledge to a problem and implement a solution, the discovery of new intellectual interests and abilities, a clarification of your own values and beliefs, and the discovery of new and possibly unexpected career/vocational interests.

"This is the last chance that these women will have as students to express themselves about their career at the college," says Carl J. Schneider, Vice President for Research and Evaluation. "We want to know what has worked for them and what has not worked, so that we can get some ideas on how to make the college more effective."

"We talk about educating the whole person, broadening people's horizons, and those things are no longer taken on faith. People ask us questions, and we need to have some answers."

Your Elpee's Worth

The Who By Numbers. The Who. Produced by Glyn Johns. 1975 MCA Records, Inc.

The Who made it big by churning out primitive rock with sadistic destruction. Even now they are still offering the same commodity. Surely, through the years, there's been some evolution of technical skills. They also produced the laudable rock opera "Tommy".

The Who's act is one of acrobatics and destruction, while emitting phenomenal stage appeal. The flying leaps and equipment massacres have toned down in their old age but their concepts still vibrate with frenzied excitement.

Stage appeal, however, doesn't help in a recording effort, consequently The Who By Numbers doesn't have a leg to stand on. The cuts on the album are loosely arranged; there is no congruity.

"Slip Kids" is one of superior bubble gum quality with only occasional boosts from Townshend to pull it out.

"However Much I Booze" has forced lyrics. It does have a nice rhythm section and Townshend adds some nifty guitar work at the end.

Despite its stupid rhythm and blatantly basic blues pattern, "Squeeze Box" has a catchy tune. Townshend's country-style pickin' is limited and the banjo addition is at best, mediocre.

Few albums are all bad, and The Who By Numbers is no exception. It does have a few good cuts. "Dreaming From The Waist" has an excellent guitar beginning, more like what would be expected from The Who. It has the driving and rock sound they are famous plus a little diversity.

"Imagine a Man" features Roger Daltrey with a minimum of accompaniment. Surprisingly enough, Daltrey is actually singing instead of screaming. His voice isn't too bad when he's not abusing it. At any rate, this tune is a winner and has some nice lyrics to boot.

To put it mildly, The Who By Numbers is not up to par. With a band as established as The Who, something more would be expected. Perhaps cranking out albums gets to be a bore; but then, that's no excuse.

This album was contributed by Wide World of Music, located at Newmarket North Shopping Mall. They're open Monday thru Saturday, 10 til 9:30, and offer all CNC students with ID's a 40% discount on LP's and a 30% discount on tapes. With Christmas coming up, an album makes a great gift.

Join the third biggest family in the world.

Imagine an order of 22,000 priests and brothers in 73 countries around the world. (That's a pretty big family.)

But that's what the Salesians of St. John Bosco are all about — a large family of community-minded men dedicated to the service of youth. (And no one gets lost.)

In the 1800's a chance meeting between a poor priest and a street urchin served to create a movement of such success that it is still growing today. Don Bosco became the priest who brought youth back from the streets — and back to God.

He reasoned that a program of play, learn and pray would make useful citizens of the world. He crowded out evil with reason, religion and kindness in a (what was then unheard of) atmosphere of family spirit.

The ideals of St. John Bosco are still with us today. His work goes on in boys clubs, technical and academic schools, guidance centers, summer camps and missions. And his very human approach is very evident in the family spirit of the Salesians. This is the way he wanted it. This is the way it is. The Salesian experience isn't learned — it's lived.

Captains Defeat Emory & Henry in Season Opener

Last Friday, November 28, the Christopher Newport College basketball team, after a mild first half, exploded for 51 points in winning their season's openers, blasting Emory and Henry, 82 - 63.

Down early in the contest, 10 - 2, the Captains took advantage of the Wasps overwhelming desire to foul. David Hutcheson and Dale Travis cashed in on the fouls at the charity stripe, by connecting on 8 - 8, and 7 - 7, respectfully. With 6:05 left in the first half, the Captains took a slim 23 - 22 lead. The Wasps were never ahead.

The one gun, one man theory was shaken by the Captains as they displayed a highly balanced scoring attack, paced by Dale Travis' 18 points. In fact, all but one player hit the scoring column for the Captains, as Coach Vaughn emptied his bench.

The next outings for the Captains will be Tuesday, December 2, at Virginia Wesleyan College, followed by Greensboro College here, Friday, December 5. Be there.

the Raiders ahead again. Williams ran for two extra points; the final score, Raiders - 16 - Headhunters - 12.

It was an exciting game with more spectators than usual. The Raiders were really ready for this game. The last time they had lost to the Headhunters 18 - 0.

In the November 23 contest, the Raiders defeated the undermanned Independents 32 - 0.

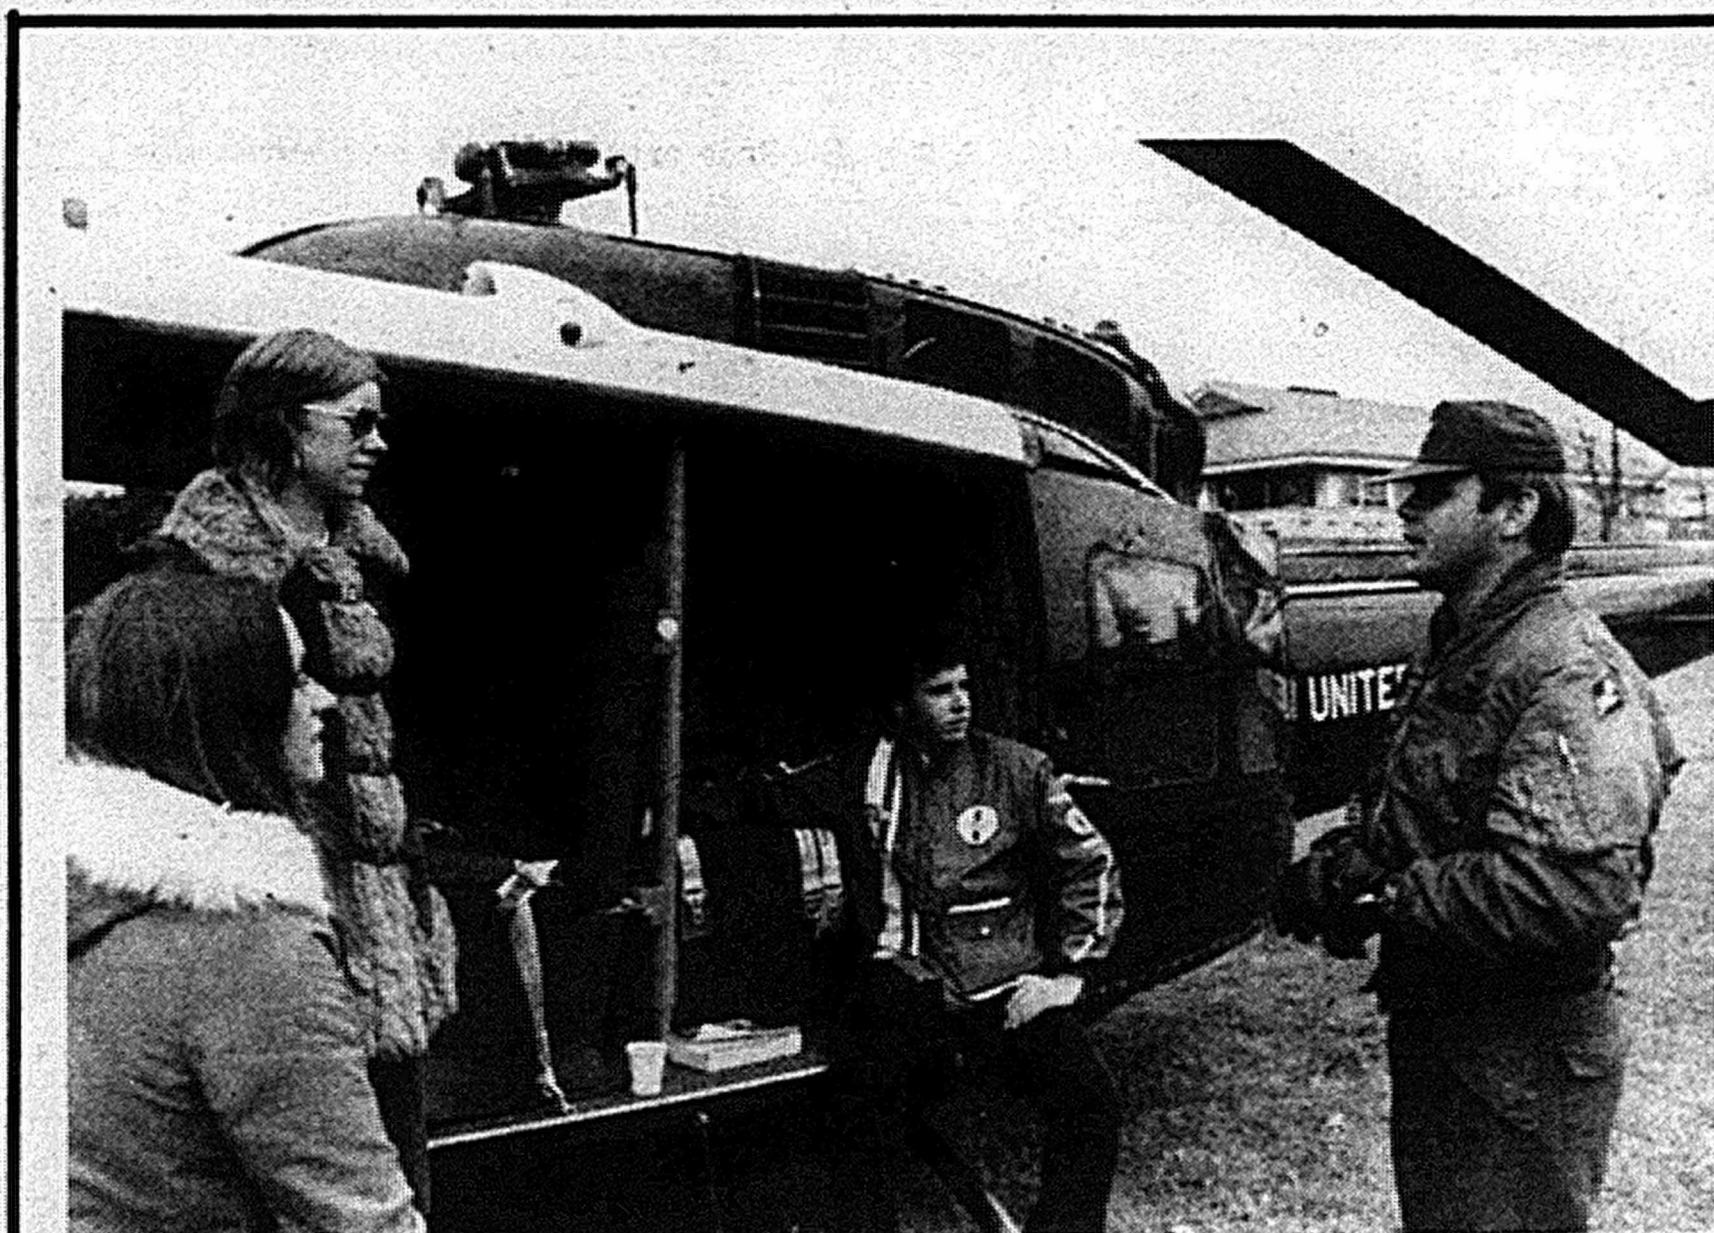

In the first half, Preston Williams scored the first six points on a ten yard run. Brad Niver scored again on a 20 yard pass from Williams. Then Williams kicked an extra point. Ed Wigley scored six points on a 20 yard pass from Richard Hammick.

The Raiders' dominance of the game continued into the second half with Niver scoring six points on a 60 yard pass from Williams, and Williams kicking another extra point. Williams intercepted an Independents' pass and ran it in to score another six points for the Raiders. Hammick scored the final six points on a 60 yard run.

The second game, between AKPsi and the EHO's was a very significant one. Both teams were held scoreless throughout the first half.

The second half opened with an AKPsi touchdown; the first time they've been on the scoreboard this season! Bill Brauer ran ten yards for a touchdown to earn six points for AKPsi.

The EHO's Kenny Hogge ran 70 yards for a touchdown to put his team on the board. He scored again on an eight yard run to make the final score AKPsi - 6, EHO's - 12:

Opportunities for Grad School Open Through Academic Common Market

By Steven Zapinski

If you are a student making plans for graduate school, you may be unaware of a unique opportunity to further your education available through the Academic Common Market.

The Academic Common Market is an interstate agreement among twelve Southern states for sharing academic programs. Participating states are able to make arrangements for their residents who qualify for admission to enroll in specific programs in other states on an in-state tuition basis. Thus far, the arrangements have been limited to unusual graduate programs.

The Academic Common Market resulted from the efforts of individuals in institutions, state agencies, and legislatures who conceived of an arrangement to improve the quality of higher education while conserving the limited resources of the region. Since it became operational in the spring of 1974, the Common Market has enhanced the opportunities for students in Southern states to attend selected graduate programs through the elimination of financial barriers.

The Common Market concept recognizes that it is impractical for every state to attempt development of programs in every field of knowledge. Every Southern state has programs which are not offered in some of the other states and which can accommodate additional students. Through the sharing of such programs, the Market assists in eliminating unnecessary duplication and increasing the availability of and access to programs which meet the educational needs of citizens in the participating states.

To enroll as an Academic Common Market student, you must: 1) Be accepted for admission into a graduate program to which your state has obtained access for its residents through the Academic Common Market. Application for admission should be made directly to the institution offering the program 2) Obtain certification of residency from the Common Market coordinator in your home state.

For more information contact Gordon K. Davies, Associate Director, State Council of Higher Education, 10th Floor-911 E. Broad St., Richmond, Virginia, 23219.

Veterans' Hotline:

Questions and Answers About Benefits

Q. I am presently on active duty and will soon be separated. I plan to continue in college under the G.I. Bill. Will I be continued automatically?

A. No. As a serviceman you were certified for one semester at a time. You must reapply for your benefits as a veteran. A copy of your DD Form 214 must accompany your application.

Q. Have there been any recent changes in the law for a GI loan for buying a home?

A. The Veterans Housing Act of 1974 increased the maximum home loan guaranty from $12,500 to $17,500. No change was made in the maximum permissible percentage of guaranty not to exceed 60%. Thus, the law provides for guaranty not to exceed 60% of the amount of the loan, or $17,500, whichever is less. Additional information on this program may be obtained from Mr. Aspell in the Counseling Center.

Outing Club Camps in Blue Ridge Mountains

By Pat Roof

The newly-formed CNC Outing Club ventured forth on their first weekend camping trip two weeks ago. Twenty-one outdoor enthusiasts braved the not-quite-perfect conditions to enjoy the great open air, valleys, streams, water falls, meadows, woods and bears of Crab Tree Meadows in the Blue Ridge.

Bungling together in shared tents and sleeping bags, the group endured the freezing nights and chilly days with the help of a little wine, and whatever else was available.

Kathy Dugger (Radar), rightfully named the

CNC Alumni Enters California Law School

Robert Santiago, Class of 1974 began the part-time program of law study at Western State University College of Law, in Fullerton, California, in the 1975 fall semester.

Each newly matriculated student has a choice of two programs of law study. The full-time program permits completion of legal studies in either two-and one-half or three years. The part-time program can be completed in three and one-half or four years. It allows the student who has full-time employment to attend day, evening or weekend classes in whatever combination best fits his or her schedule. Both programs lead to the awarding of the professional Juris Doctor (J.D.) degree and eligibility to take the California Bar Examination.

Western State is one of the very few accredited law schools which admits students in either program in the spring semester.

assemblage of windblown tents and frozen-toed campers as "Camp-Barely-Made-It." However, Edd Brower could only keep referring to it as Rural America.

Camp-Barely-Made-It was the product of many weeks of tedious and explicit planning by some of the club members, especially Pat Dorsey, Kirk Melville and faculty advisor John Scotti (who chickened out of the adventure). However, as things will happen everything did not go according to plan.

Instead of leaving together, it was decided that because of the various work and class schedules of the would-be campers, that three vans and the needed autos would leave at three different times: noon, six, and midnight on Friday, November 21.

The noon group, lead by Bill Lang, volunteered to take most of the gear and set up camp before dark, and have hot food ready for the following groups. But, as things go, they got lost and did not arrive until after dark, and one hour later, the next van arrived, under the brilliant direction of Chris Hewes. However, somewhere along the way, the two Volkswagens were lost (no wonder, with Bob Lucas at the lead). Supper was finally ready by midnight, right about the time the two little Herbies made it down the rocky road to the camp. although, it took the Volkswagens over five hours to make the three hour trip, Bob Lucas still managed to pick up a speeding ticket in Richmond.

After midnight supper, most of the group kept warm by the fire until 5 a.m. patiently waiting for the third van to make their way down the side of the mountain. At 9:30 a.m.,

Beer and wine can get you just as drunk as hard liquor. One beer or a glass of wine is equal to an average "highball", says the Highway Safety Division of Virginia.

everyone was still patiently waiting.

Bob Lucas again volunteered the services of his jinxed Volkswagon to venture out towards suburbia and find the apparently lost van, driven by Kirk Melville, and carrying the last of the group and the last of the food, including breakfast. With Bob at the head of the search party, all hopes vanished of ever finding the van or breakfast.

Ha, how unfair! Shortly thereafter, the entire entourage came slowly rumbling down the mountain towards camp. The van had reached the approximate destination (the specific destination was up for grabs) early in the morning; however, as they slowly prodded through the woods, searching for a make-shift campsite, they ran out of gas and were stationed on the crest of a hill, slowly rolling down it during the hours before they were found.

Except for a couple of lost cameras and Candy Frazier sliding down the waterfall bottom first (wonder if her jeans and socks ever thawed out?), and one hiking party getting temporarily lost (Dave Kennedy's keen sense of smell got us out of that one), the rest of the trip was rather uneventful.

Everyone enjoyed the great food prepared by Marcia Rawls, and her energetic assistants, especially J.J. Gordon, who cooked up some pretty good french toast and eggs, (especially Dave Walkup and his endless capacity to eat.)

The temperatures fell to a rather uncomfortable 15 degrees at night (the ranger promised warmth!), and had it not been for giant smokey, yet warm fires and gallons wine, more of the group would have agreed with Kathrynne Louis to move the whole camp to the Holiday Inn on the other mountain. It did not seem to matter for Pat Dorsey though, who peeked out of her blanket not more than twice.

Hiking, singing every song ever written, toasting marshmallows, sipping wine, and brushing teeth between the mini icebergs in the stream all contributed to an event to remember. Only, I wish Lisa Halachis had brought enough of her father's flight suits to fit everyone; they sure did look warm!
