Art Show and Concert to be Presented, April 17

April 17, 1975, on the occasion of the Orpheus Trio's performance in the Nancy A. Ramseur Memorial Concert Series, the Junior League of Hampton Roads will present to Christopher Newport College its prize collection from the James River Jureid Art Show. The collection features works by major artists of southeastern United States and will hang permanently in the gallery space of the Campus Center.

"The collection's permanent existence at the College is an extraordinary complement to the College's concert series in establishing Christopher Newport as a leader in the community's cultural life," according to L.B. Wood, Jr., Assistant Dean for Academic Affairs for Continuing Studies and Community Services. "Students of contemporary art should find the collection one which requires continuous study and one which reveals much about the concerns and styles of today's artists."

"Amnesty Week" at CNC Library

Captain John Smith Library of Christopher Newport College has designated April 14 through April 20 as Amnesty Week in celebration of National Library Week, according to Ms. Bette V. Mosteller, Librarian.

Ms. Mosteller states, "There will be no fines charged for overdue CNC library books returned during Amnesty Week."

She further notes CNC in enthusiastically supporting National Library Week as it has in the past.

The Orpheus Trio's first season together (1972-73) was a sold-out success with two performances in New York City and rave reviews across the country. Their (1973-74) season was highlighted by performances at Washington, D.C.'s Library of Congress, Harvard University and in New York City. Among the finest performers in chamber music today, each member of the trio is a recognized solo virtuoso as well. A 400-year old viola will be heard for the first time when the Orpheus Trio appears at Christopher Newport College. The newly formed trio will play a tour of 40 concerts this season, including appearances at the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Frick Collection in New York City.

One of the most famous violas in the world, the instrument was recently bought by Scott Nickrenz, the trio's violist. It was made in Brescia, Italy, in 1560 by Gaspara da Salo, who preceded Stradivarius by 100 years. He was the first to use the violin pattern and structure as it is known today.

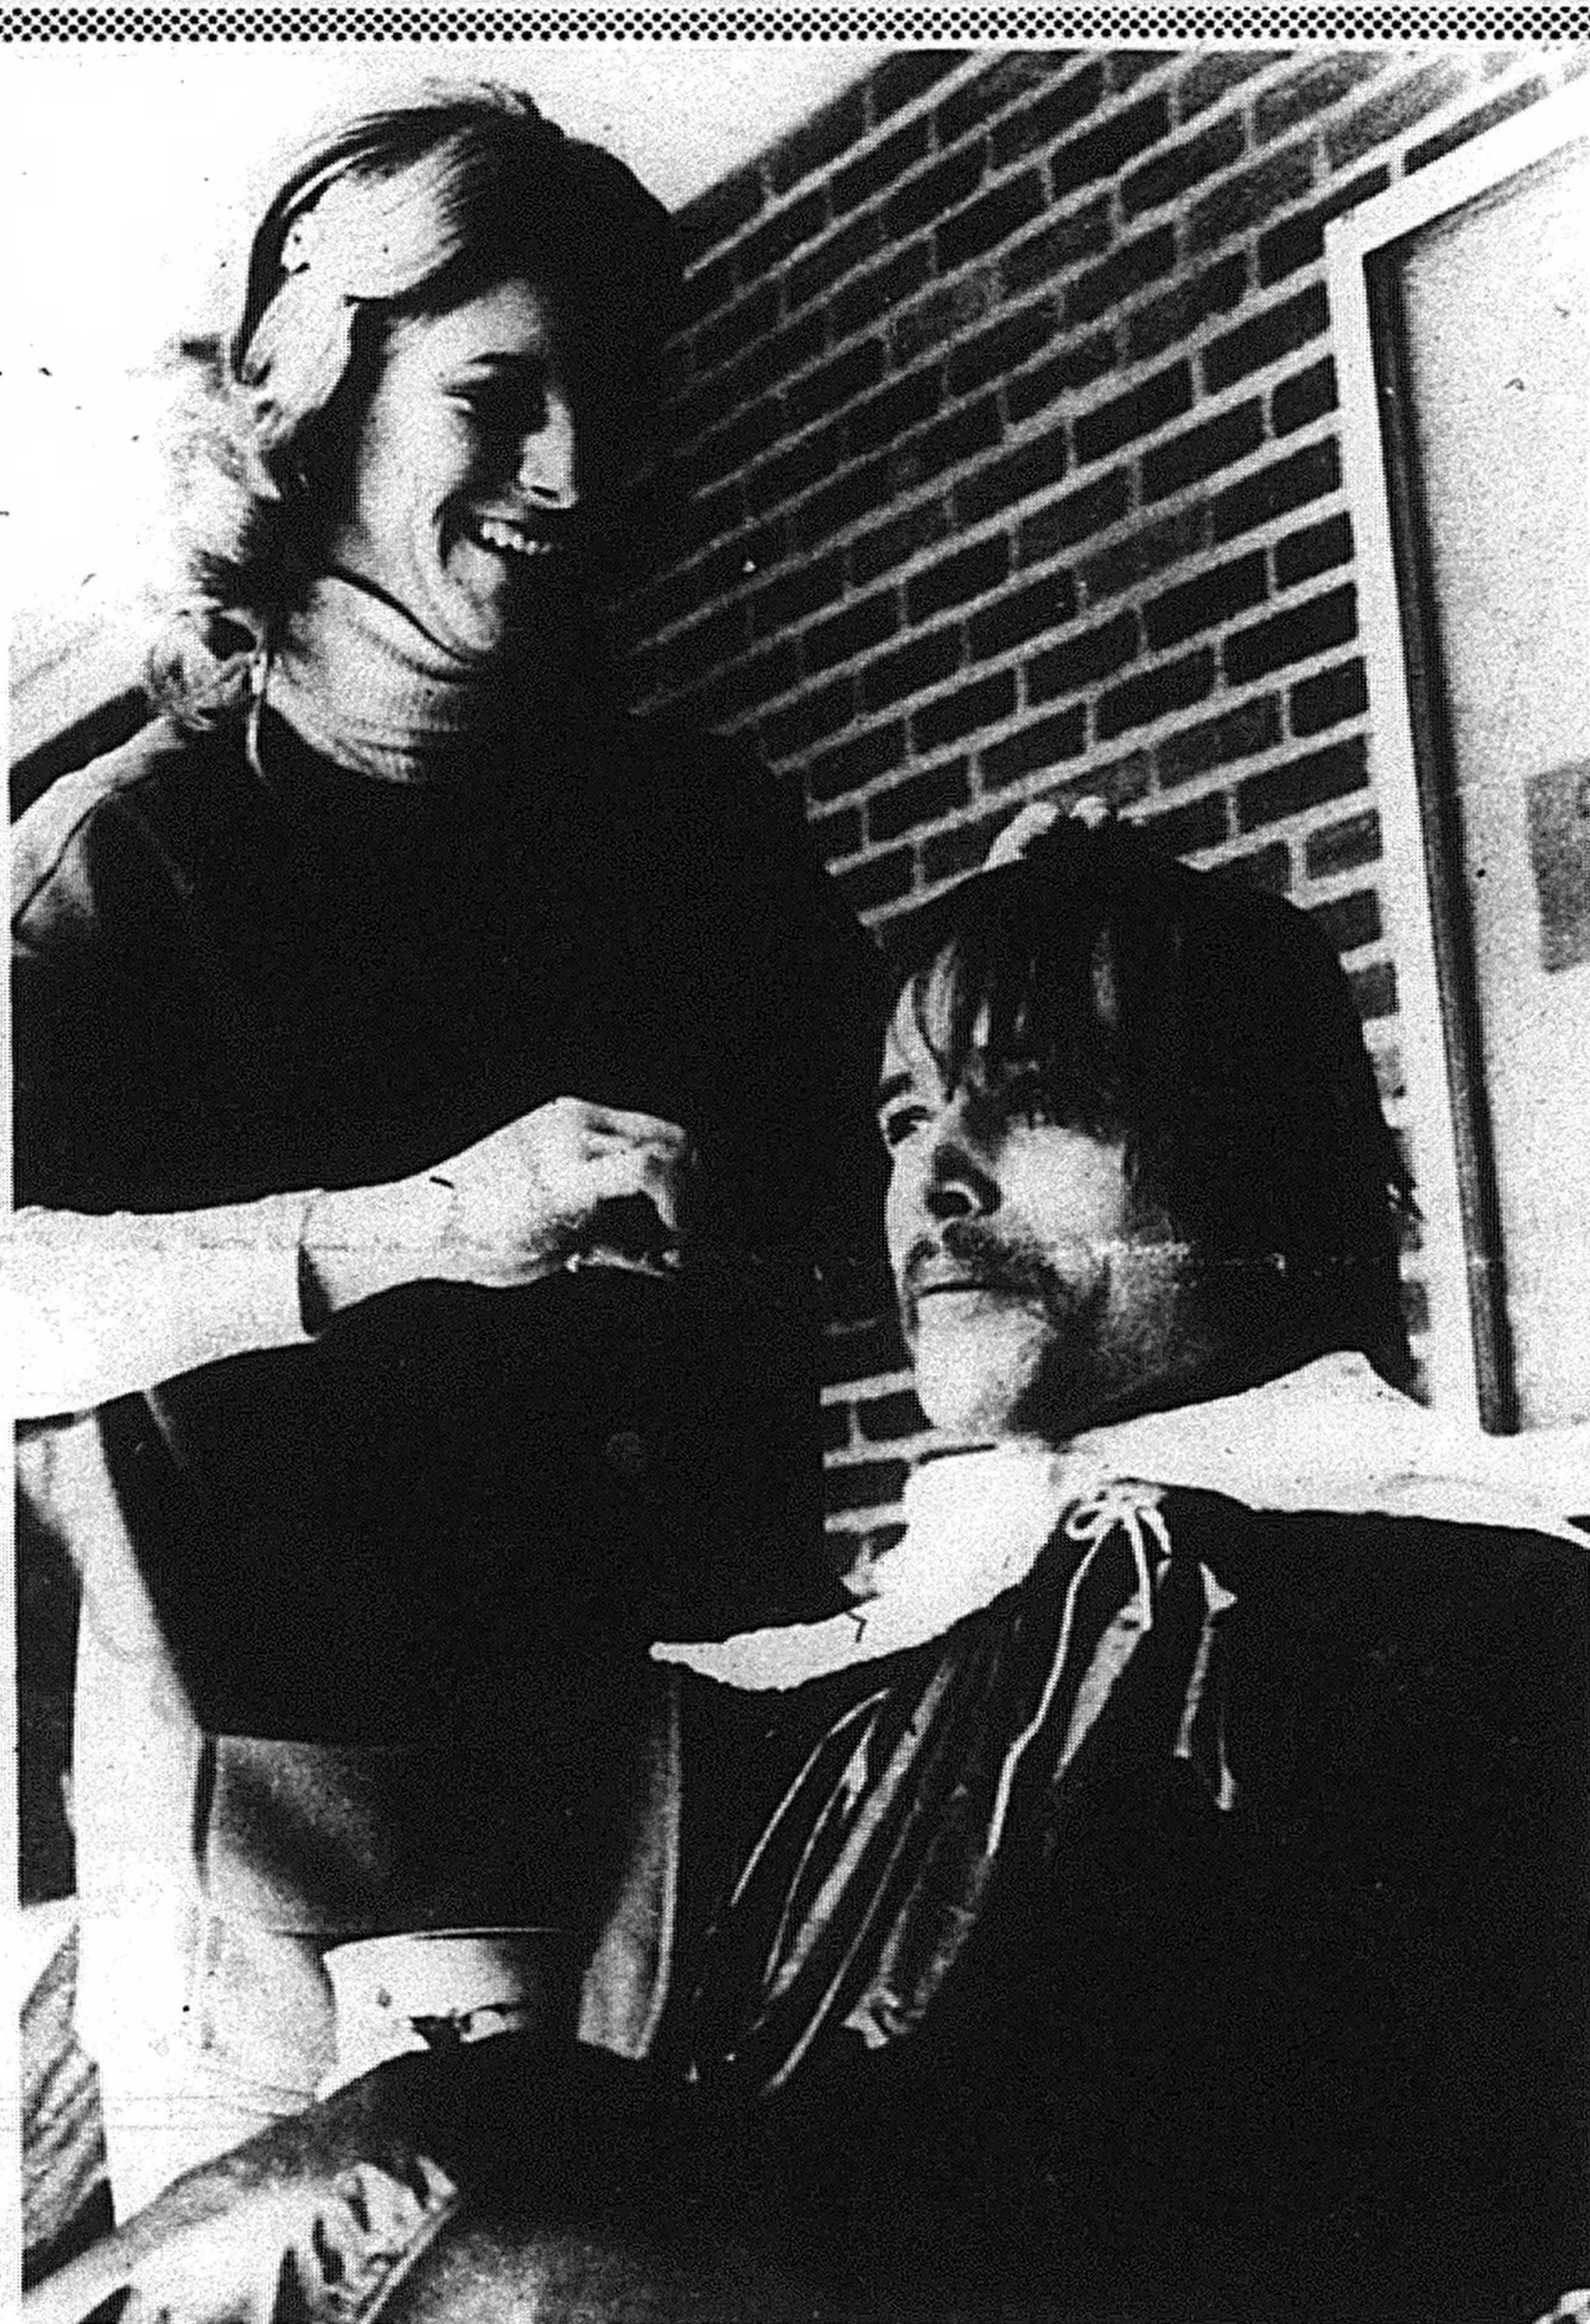

The performers are Paula Robison, flutist, Scott Nickrenz, viola, and Heidi Lehwalder, harpist.

Attendance at the concert and presentation will be limited to season ticket holders in the concert series and to guests invited by the College and the Junior League of Hampton Roads.

Cut-Off for May PACE, April 20

The last series of PACE written tests for the school year 1974-75 will be given in May. The cut-off date for applications for these exams is April 20. Application forms and detailed information booklets may be obtained from the Counseling Center, W-116 or from Norfolk Area Office, U.S. Civil Service Commission, 415 St. Paul Boulevard, Norfolk, Virginia 23510. Referendum Results, 287 Voted | SGA Elections, April 15-16

The SGA referendum on the reorganization of classes on divisional levels as the faculty are, was conducted on April 3 as scheduled.

As in most matters requiring the voice of the student, the turn out was small. Less than 10 per cent of the student body voted on this issue.

Of the 287 ballots cast, the tabulation was as follows: To retain the class organization structure, 85; To substitute the divisional organization for class organization, 110; and An interim period of one year with both class and divisional organization with power divided between them, 92.

Tom Johnson, President of the Student Government Association, said that a committee consisting of E. Bankit, E. Brower, and S. Fisher has been appointed to draft the necessary By Law Amendment for the SGA.

Spring Fest Meeting, April 18

There will be a meeting on April 18 in CC-230 for finishing up the last minute details concerning Spring Fest. Clubs not interested in sponsoring contests may still make arrangements to enter a team in the competitions.

Skits and concessions are needed to fill Saturday's events; this will provide the clubs with a good opportunity to raise funds and gain members. Sign up at the Dean's office or at one of the SGA offices.

"Fox" day, April 25; will only effect those classes which carry the instructor's consent; the SGA cannot cancel classes or excuse absences. Check with your professors.

6:30 pm until 9:00 pm on Tuesday and from 8:30 am until 3:00 pm Wednesday.

Candidates for President are Edd Brower, Eric Bankit, and Bill Levinson. Theresa Shaffer, Barbara Anderson, and Deborah Jones are running for SGA Vice President. Candidates for SGA Secretary are Linda Walkup and Martha Fulcher. Claudia Almquist is running uncontested for SGA Treasurer and Skip Fisher, and John Clark will be competing for the office of SGA Attorney General.

The only petition received for a class office is that of Maureen Walker, who will be running uncontested for the office of Senior Class Vice President.

Editorial Dr. Bronfenbrenner, Too Many Statistics

As a student interested in child psychology, I was disappointed in the speech presented April 8 by Dr. Urie Bronfenbrenner.

Perhaps I was expecting, or maybe only hoping, that a critical analysis of children and families in America would include more than statistics. Because of a class commitment, I was forced to leave at 1:00, and because the speech began 15 minutes late, I feel sure that Dr. Bronfenbrenner had not yet inaugurated his topic. At that time, however, he was still presenting his introduction of statistics that I had memorized in a lower level sociology class, and are available in newspapers.

I also felt uncomfortable with Dr. Bronfenbrenner's disorganization, in that his slides and notes were disarrayed, and some of his presentation jumbled. I only hope his lectures at Cornell are better constructed.

However, this is only "one man's opinion," and if anyone heard the remainder of Dr. Bronfenbrenner's speech or felt a different impression, please enlighten me and expose the contents of his worthwhile subject.

Let The Girl Eat Her Lunch

Editor

This letter is written in response to one written by Stan Fedyszyn in last week's Captain's Log.

I think the main purpose of his complaint was not having a cigarette when he needed one (I hope his lungs did not collapse in his fury), but his contemptuous sarcasm directed towards the working student misguided me and were clearly indicative of Mr. Fedyszyn's feelings towards students in general. I am not sure which point he was attempting his best to convey. Perhaps Mr. Fedyszyn needs to take a creative writing or public speech course in order to learn to communicate better.

The impression was clear to me that Mr. Fedyszyn feels that the poor working student should not, does not, and perhaps cannot, eat lunch. Well, we do come up with a dime occasionally for a cup of coffee. If Mr. Fedyszyn is so intent on helping the "poor working student," why doesn't he contribute some of his cigarette money to a scholarship fund, and let the poor girl in the Campus Store eat her lunch.

Correction of Inaccuracies About Soccer Team

To the Editor,

After reading the April 4 article or soccer in this paper, I feel compelled to write and attempt to correct some of the inaccuracies in the article.

First of all, the Soccer Club that has been playing this winter and spring does not have a losing record- in fact, they are 9-4-1, so it is not so much of a surprise, as was intimated that they won the Naval Invitational Tournament. Neither is it surprising that they beat the Apprentice School to continue in the Azalea Festival- since they have already defeated the Apprentice School twice this winter.

Perhaps the facts would be more accurate if there were a reporter at all of the games. The team has been working hard and improving all season- and has played some very good games, so it is no real surprise that they are winning now.

As a final comment, I have noticed that no soccer schedule was ever given in the paper, nor was an upcoming game mentioned in the schedule of upcoming activities. It hardly seems fair to the team or to other students to keep them uninformed about these games, as they are well worth watching.

Try Bookstore for Cigarettes

Dear Editor.

In reply to Mr. Fedyszyn's dilemma about the purchase of a pack of cigarettes, I would like to inform him that they are on sale from 8:30 am until 4:30 pm in the College Bookstore located in Christopher Newport Hall. Also they are available in the Bookstore from 6:00 pm until 7:00 pm Mondays through Thursdays. No, we would rather have our profit go up at CNC than make Dixieland Co. stock go up.

In defense of the College Shop in the Campus Center Building being closed briefly, the young lady does require a bathroom break and time to dash to the cafeteria to pick up some lunch. The lunch, as a matter of fact, is brought back to the College Shop and eaten while tending shop.

Now, my dear Mr. Fedyszyn, if this is not the answer to your smoking problem, perhaps you should ask our "Bus Ad Department to make a study of the situation."

Open House, It Actually Happened

By Mary Dvorak

The SGA Open House has come and gone. For those who do not know, it was April 10. For most students the day came and went and they were completely unaware of the activities of the day.

.....in your ear

By Chuck Edwards

America's priorities always seem to be somewhere beyond the three mile limit. With as many things going wrong in this country as there are, you would not think it necessary to go to the other side of the world to find something helpful to do.

For the last seventy-five years this has been the policy of our government. If there is something wrong in another country, fix it immediately. If that wrong is in this country, then it can wait. On the other hand, complete isolation from the world would be just as wrong.

Education has long been considered as playing a secondary role. With all the defense and national security priorities, roads, and senator's limousines standing ahead of it, education is lucky to get a piece of the short end. A quality education for the masses would not solve all of the problems of this nation, but it would go a long way towards solving many of them. If that average of $20 billion wasted each year during the Vietnam "conflict" had been partially spent on education, this country certainly would have been better off for it.

What does this cosmic problem of priorities have to do with Christopher Newport? Christopher Newport is a young, expanding college. In order to expand it needs more students, more buildings, and more teachers.

The added students do not seem to be a problem. Teachers and buildings, however, require additional money, something that the state does not seem willing to give. Therefore, in a time of expansion in the student body the number of teachers is being reduced and no money is available for buildings. This has to have a bad effect on the quality of education received from this institution.

In a year for state elections, as this is, there is much that an individual may do about this situation. There are candidates that support the proposition of more money for education. Find out who they are and support their campaign. Involvement can lead to a better future.

All in all it seemed that approximately 50 high school students showed up for the program which had been planned with them in mind. But, at times it seemed that more of those college type students were taking advantage of the programs.

One of these programs did not even occur. After the presentation of Jim Rollins' film, which featured students and activities of CNC, the theatre emptied completely. It was soon after that, that the next speaker was seen leaving the Campus Center, probably totally unprepared to speak to an empty theatre.

But that was not the only thing which did not occur that day. To the dismay of some students, the plant sale in the greenhouse was not held. It appeared that appropriate arrangements had not been made and plants were not for sale.

The afternoon brought a performance by the chorus which was attended by an unidentified audience, but it was attended. The chorus was followed by the CNC players and their presentation of a one-act play. The play was attended by only students and faculty of CNC, for by the time the play began (1:30 pm) all of the high school students had departed for other parts.

Probably the most startling part of the day came when it was discovered that some of the faculty had become aware of the Open House only by reading the local newspapers, which shall remain nameless.

By now you are probably saying, surely something good must have happened. Well, of course, something good always happens and in the Open House it came in the form of cooperation.

Cooperation came from faculty and staff who participated in programs, demonstrations and instructors who allowed students to set in on their classes.

There was also cooperation from students who participated in various programs and from students who served as guides which there seemed to be plenty of, for some were even turned away.

The one real delight of the day, for those who visited it, was the "Lucy Booth" set up by the Counseling Center and monitored by Mr.

Vought. It was found that anyone with a problem was given a standard answer of "Go fly a kite." Not a bad idea at all.

Just down the way one found the energetic AKPsi Fraternity selling raffle tickets for a 10-speed bicycle. The drawing for the bicycle will be April 25 and proceeds from the raffle will go to the CNC Child Care Center. Tickets are $.50. (OK fellows, now what do I get for giving you that plug? Some free tickets? The bike?....)

Its not Mysticism, Religion, nor Lifestyle

Some people do it to relieve insomnia. Students do it to improve memory and comprehension. Athletes do it for faster reaction time and better coordination. Businessmen do it to increase creativity and productivity. Doctors prescribe it for everything from hypertension to asthma. What is this panacea? Its called Transcendental Meditation (as taught by Maharishi Mahesh Yogi).

The name conjures up mystical incantations, unlikely yoga postures and sitars playing softly in the background. All this is exactly what Transcendental Meditation (TM) is not. It is neither mysticism, nor religion, nor lifestyle. TM is a simple natural technique practiced sitting easily twenty minutes in the morning and evening.

TM provides a profound rest to the nervous system. The rest serves a dual purpose; it relieves stress and expands the awareness, or consciousness, providing a stable basis for activity. The nervous system becomes normalized- that is, it is freed from impurities (stress) and strengthened so that it functions with maximum smoothness and efficiency. Because it is fundamental to all experience, the normalized nervous system effects all areas of life. Therefore, whatever your reason for starting TM, the results can only be positive.

CNC's chapter of the Students' International Meditation Society (SIMS) will be sponsoring a regular column on TM- questions sent to the Captain's Log or left at the information desk will be answered in the next column. Or call 877-5580 for further information.

Mike Hash and Mike Youngblood in doubles practices at Centre Court.

Match Point

By

JIM EYRE

The Captain's Tennis Team had an active week. With the season nearing an end, all teams are fighting for good seeds in the Dixie Conference Tournament to be held on April 21 and 22.

The match lost to Randolph-Macon College (6-3) was a non-conference match. Coach Armistead felt that the team played well in this match. CNC was in the match until the last two doubles matches.

Mike Youngblood and Mike Hash came away with impressive wins in the singles, CNC needed to win all three doubles matches to win the match. The first set of each of the doubles matches were won by the Captain's, which made things look promising. While winning the No. 3 doubles match easily, the No.s 1 and 2 doubles went 3 sets before being won by Randolph-Macon.

A tough match was lost to North Carolina Wesleyan College, 6-3. After the singles, the teams were tied, 3 all. North Carolina Wesleyan was impressive in the doubles, winning all three matches.

CNC GOFTERS LOSS MATCH IN HIGH WINDS

CNC's golf team was swept off the Lake Wright Golf Course in Virginia Beach by Madison College, Old Dominion University, and gale-force winds that gusted to 60 miles an hour.

The playing conditions were easily the worst of the year as the golfers had problems keeping shots in bounds and maintaining balance to swing and putt. Madison College won the match, defeating ODU by eight strokes, as the wind lifted many scores over 100.

No golfer broke 80, despite Madison's pre-match average of 75. Only Jim Trask managed to play bogey-golf for the Captains.

CNC's next outing will be the Virginia State Intercollegiate Tournament in Hot Springs, Va., where all college golf teams in the state participate in a 36 hole tournament.

The Captain's are now 3-2 in conference play with an overall record of 5-4. The team is tied with Lynchburg College for second place.

The Captain's next home match is scheduled for April 19 against St. Andrews College on the Ferguson High School courts.

Should Men be Liberated Too?

By Carol Ehrlich
Research Group One

The flood of books and articles about women's liberation has been accompanied by a small trickle of writings about mens liberation. This must puzzle many people who know that the women's movement is a necessary response to male oppression. Men's liberation? What do men think they have to be liberated from?

A partial answer can be found in a new collection of readings entitled 'Men and Masculinity.' 'Men and Masculinity' is edited by two psychologists, Joseph H. Pleck of the University of Michigan and Jack Sawyer of the University of California at Berkeley. It is one of Prentice-Hall's series of short paperback texts intended for use in sociology and psychology courses. The existence of such a book is encouraging, because the editors and many of the writers insist that men must give up all power to dominate women (as well as other men). But because the anthology dwells almost exclusively upon the personal aspects of the masculine role, it is unbalanced and without scope.

Perhaps this is because both editors are psychologists, and psychologists tend to act as if personal solutions are the answer to all social ills. Or perhaps the problem lies in the class and race characteristics of most of these writers. As the editors state frankly, this is a book by and for "males who are white, middle-class, heterosexual, and live in the United States." It is, by and large, about relatively privileged men who have become aware of the personal costs of the 'good life' open to them in a capitalist society. It is about men who know that the good life requires conformity to the masculine role, and who, to extend the capitalist theme, aren't buying it. These are men who have learned that a man who is successfully socialized into the twin role demands of 'getting ahead' and 'staying cool' loses touch with other valuable aspects of himself, such as gentleness and caring for others.

Inevitably, the reader becomes witness to the inner journeys of men who describe the relationships of individual men with other men, with women, with children. We learn of the traumas suffered by males who are good at sports/not good at sports; males who have erections when they don't want them, or, far worse in our culture, can't have them when they want them. We learn that the latter problem is called 'sexual dysfunction.' We read about men who cannot decide whether to relate sexually to men or to women. There are males who can't talk to each other; can't cry; can't love. There are men involved in child care, but the emphasis tends to be on the man rather than the children, on men getting in touch with their buried inner selves.

"All The Girls Came Out To Play" to Play CNC

Critic's Review

IN MY OPINION

By Doug Ferris

Experimental theatre has found a home on CNC's campus with some very remarkable results. First, by definition, theatre of this sort differs from most other theatre simply because it does not necessarily focus on plot or storyline. The director and actors have an opportunity to express themselves with a new sense of freedom once they have escaped formal theatre which, for the audience, may mean very little in the way of appreciation.

Case in point, Samuel Becket's play "Embers," as performed by the CNC Players on April 11. The players interpretation was one of a non-being's recall of his mortal experiences and how he wishes to be there now and then again, how he is glad that he isn't.

The focus of the play, according to the producer Gary Brown, was on feeling and presenting the part of Henry, the protagonist, as anyone, anywhere. Through introduction, the scene is set in a graveyard but from there it is up to the audience to decide what they are to receive from the play.

For me the focus was not on feeling or the realization of Henry being anyone but rather on "Who is he" and "Where is he?" Throughout the play I kept asking myself if this was some forwarning of future days or was this simply a retelling of a frightful, inevitable end; that all men must suffer with their memories.

Whatever the case the acting was impressive, but not polished. Mickey Shiller, Henry, kept losing his audience when he buried his grieving head and so his lines. Truly, Mickey can be complimented for his interpretation which was a degree higher than his performance.

Ada, the dead wife of Henry, was played by Vicki Clark. Although Miss Clark had no stage lines, I could see some interpretive skills but not many. All of Ada's stage time is taken up in movement and non-movement. Her appearance is appreciated but, with the use of a sound track, not necessary.

One major fault with the play is the light in which it was cast, a pale green. Effective for a while, the single green light begins to strain on the audience's eyes and then begins to detract from the play itself. Another device that bothers me, in or out of experimental theatre, is the use of sound tracks. At times, like this one, a sound-track may present a totally different concept than what is seen on stage or, they may be garbled or inaudible.

Don't get me wrong, with all of its faults, "Embers," is still a worthwhile show. It has to be seen to be appreciated; something that not enough students here seem to understand. The CNC players have the capacity for good theatre but no one will know how good until they see it!

of Handicaps Unlimited, will begin at 8:30 pm.

"All The Girls Came Out To Play" is an adult comedy that starred television's Dennis Cole on Broadway. The show is about Ronnie Ames, a young Broadway songwriter whose producer has moved him to the suburbs to keep him away from his New York girlfriends so he can get the music finished in time for rehearsals to begin for his next show. However, his suburban neighbors discover Ronnie and Ronnie discovers that anything New York women can do, the girls in the suburbs can do better.

The play is similar to the movie "Shampoo" in it's story about the amorous adventures of the youthful Casanova and his girlfriends.

Starring as Ronnie is Carl Cole, promising young actor hailed in the national entertainment magazine "After Dark" for his performance in the original musical, "The Great American Hero." He has starred in regional productions of "The Apple Tree," "6 Rms Riv Vu," "Forty Carats," and "The Wonderful World of Broadway."

Co-starring as his suburban neighbors are Betsy Jones, Barbara Yellich, Sandy Briley, and Rose Marie Whitmore. Rey Aponte will make a special appearance as Ronnie's producer.

Other supporting roles will be played by Tim Harris, Mike Diana, Bill Manning, Reing Kary, Susan Dauphine, and Alice Rangel.

Reservations may be made by calling the Christopher Newport Campus Center Theatre.

How to make your last two years of college mean even more.

Take advantage of the Army ROTC Two-Year Program.

If you've just about completed your second year of college, and you're planning on two more, it's not too late to take Army ROTC.

You start the program with six-weeks of Basic Camp (you'll be paid for it) between your sophomore and junior years.

Then it's back to school in the fall. Learning how to become an Army officer while you're working on your college degree. Earning an extra $100 a month, up to ten months a year.

And two years later, you'll graduate with your degree, your commission as an Army officer, and some real experience at leading and managing people.

Va Traffic Deaths Show Decline

Virginia's 1975 traffic deaths for the first three months of the year showed a slight decline when compared with those for the same period of 1974, Colonel H.W. Burgess, Superintendent of State Police, reported today.

The 1975 total was 218 while that for 1974 was 227 but Colonel Burgess said the gap would be narrowed due to late reports and deaths of persons now carried as injured.

However he noted that the reduction was achieved in the face of a raise of about six percent in traffic volumes and that the death toll for all of 1974 was the lowest annual one since 1964.

Pedestrian deaths were down from 35 to 33, those of motorcyclists from eight to three and those of servicemen from 10 to four. Deaths of bicyclists rose from none to two.

Join the third biggest family in the world.

Imagine an order of 22,000 priests and brothers in 73 countries around the world. (That's a pretty big family.)

But that's what the Salesians of St. John Bosco are all about — a large family of community-minded men dedicated to the service of youth. (And no one gets lost.)

In Italy in the 1800's a chance meeting between a poor priest and a street urchin served to create a movement of such success that it is still growing today. Don Bosco became the priest who brought youth back from the streets — and back to God.

He reasoned that a program of play, learn and pray would make useful citizens of the world. He crowded out evil with reason, religion and kindness in a (what was then unheard of) atmosphere of family.

The ideals of St. John Bosco are still with us today. His work goes on in boys clubs, technical and academic schools, guidance centers, summer camps and missions. And his very human approach is very evident in the family spirit of the Salesians. This is the way he wanted it. This is the way it is. The Salesian experience isn't learned — it's lived.

VETERANS' HOT LINE: Questions and Answers on Education Benefits and Problems

Q: I originally intended to attend during the summer session but now I find that I will not be able to go to school during the summer months. How will this effect my VA checks?

A: Your benefits will stop as of the last day of the spring term. You will probably receive a check for the whole month of May and you will be notified at a later date by the VA Regional Office of the amount of the overpayment.

Q: Does the VA offer any type of job finding assistance?

A: Yes. A job bank is maintained by the Regional Office in Roanoke. When the VA is notified of a job opening in your home area, they search the files to find veterans who are qualified or interested in the position. The veteran is then furnished a short description of the job. Contact Mr. Aspell in the Counseling Center to complete a job order card.
