Drugs found in Campus Desk

by Joe Nuesslein
staff writer

A packet was found in a desk here at Christopher Newport. Although that is not unusual, the contents found within were. They consisted of hypodermic needles and a pipe for smoking what was believed to be narcotics.

The desk that the packet was found in was once housed in the campus police property room. It was then moved to the grounds building where a grounds worker found the packet while installing the desk into an office.

Along with the materials were police reports on the individuals caught with the items. The individuals were released and charges never pressed. Campus officials chose to deal with the individuals through administrative channels. A similar case happened back in 1982 were a syringe found in the girls locker room, but an investigation was never launched into the incident.

According to police chief, Johnnie L. Capehart, the packet was prepared to go to a lab in Richmond as part of the process that evidence goes through.

Once evidence has been tampered with it makes it inadmissible in court. That is why items are placed in plastic bags and packets to preserve finger prints and any possible narcotic residue left on the items. Police chief Capehart went on to say that "when the packet was in police custody it was locked in the police property room and only accessed by my secretary and myself."

Chief Capehart is going to make every effort to make sure that this does not happen again. He also stated "It really is an isolated case. Evidence has rigid and strict controls for proper handling."

The packet is now in the process of being given to the proper authorities so it can be destroyed.

Soviet's true intent must be kept in mind

by Nathan Smith
staff writer

Five years ago on Sept. 1, 1983, a Soviet MiG jet fighter shot down a Korean Airlines Boeing 747, killing all 269 people on board.

Eight Soviet jets had tracked the Korean airliner flight 007 (KAL-007) for two and one-half hours and a MiG pilot who had contact with the Soviet ground control, reported that he knew it to be an unarmed passenger airplane.

According to Human Events, at approximately 1812 hours Greenwich Mean Time, the Soviet pilot aimed and fired a missile, reporting 14 minutes later that the target was destroyed.

Of the 269 people on board the Korean airliner, including some Americans, one was a member of the United States Congress, Rep. Larry McDonald, Democrat Georgia.

At the time there were many people in this country claiming that the downing of the Korean airliner was an accident, but the Soviet Union never formally apologized either to Korea or the United States. Also, there was no reprimand of the Soviet Union by the United Nations over this incident.

The Soviets said it was a case of mistaken identity even though the MiG plane had followed the Korean airliner for two and one-half hours before firing its missile. The pilot admitted he knew what his target was when he had fired the missile.

The world should never forget this disaster which happened five years ago. We must not forget that the Soviet Union does not care whom or what it destroys when furthering its own ends.

Whoever is elected president on Nov. 8, whether it be George Bush or Michael Dukakis, should keep this and other incidents in mind when going to future summits with the Soviet Union.

Photography a black and white issue for CNC student

Alan Hilliard, specializing in black and white photos, has proved himself to the above mentioned words. A simple hobby that started eight years ago has expanded into many honors, the most recent being the Hampton Bay Days juried art show. Although Hilliard did not receive a cash award for his photos, having two selected to hang among 100 is an accomplishment in itself.

Hilliard's first big award happened to be his first entry into a competition. A picture of an old Buick won first place in the black and white pictorial category of the Shutterbug Sweepstakes sponsored by The Daily Press and Times Herald. That same photo was recognized in the 52nd Kodak International Newspaper Snapshot Awards Competition. With this honor came the picture being displayed at EPCOT center in Orlando, Florida.

Another award came along and this time from Christopher Newport College.

The Literary Magazine Currents presented Hilliard with the art award for the cover picture. His first published print was a shock to him. In the Spring of last year came his final award, and maybe the most prestigious of them all. Photographer's Forum Magazine student photographic contest selected one of Hilliard's to be published in the College Photography Annual, 1988. What is so ironic is that picture was in color.

Hilliard is a senior English Literature major with a minor in Fine Arts. When I asked Hilliard if he was going to continue photography as a career, he laughed. "If I had to do this as a career I don't think I would enjoy it as much." Hilliard then informed me that he does not like to take pictures of what someone else wants him to take. "I just go out on my own and if I see something worth taking I take it." Yes, Hilliard does carry his camera in his car almost everywhere he goes.

Beginning in the next issue of The Captain's Log there will be a column designed for advice. Students and faculty are welcome to write and ask questions concerning what is on their minds. Just drop a line and place it in The Captain's Log box near the stairway by the theatre. All names will be kept strictly confidential.

Do you think it's a good idea to have a lottery in VA and will you participate?

by Brent Klich, Photo Editor

Ann Catherine Braxton

I don't think the lottery is a good idea because too many people on fixed incomes will be tempted to spend their food, rent, or health care money on tickets only to contribute to somebody else's grand prize.

Lizabeth Moore

Yes, I think it's a great idea and too long in coming. Of course I will participate, how else can I retire before I start to work?!

This kind of gambling can bring unwanted trouble in this peaceful area. Presently, this area is expanding and gambling is not needed in order to achieve this.

Linda Sawanowich
Campus Police Secretary

I think some good benefits might come out of the system - lower taxes, funds to worthy organizations, but I don't believe the end justifies the means. I am personally opposed to the lottery system and will not participate.

Field Judges Wanted

BIO: Ruth Castellon

NAME: Ruth Castellon

TEAM: Volleyball

MAJOR: Biology

BACKGROUND: Ruth was born in Los Angeles and attended Canyon High School in Anaheim Hills, California. She graduated in 1981 from high school and participated on the volleyball and swim teams. Ruth will be graduating from CNC in 1989.

The volleyball team is coached by Coco Hoffman who joined the program late last season. With several returning players and a head start on practice, this year's team should see a great improvement over last season's 1-35 record.

CNC Track wins Championships

Last year after everybody else went home there were a few CNC athletes who lingered around to participate in the Division III National Track and Field Championships. CNC sent an eight woman contingent team and a six member men's team.

CNC finished with 95 points, Mass-Boston 65, Wisconsin-Oshkosh 39, Smith 25, Augsburg 25, Wisconsin-LaCrosse 24, St. Thomas 24, SUNY-Albany 23.

The women's team brought home a total of 18 All-American awards, and the men's team produced 5 awards. The women's team has now totalled 77 awards, out of the 98 of CNC men's and women's track and cross country awards.

CNC Rugby loses; gains experience

by Joe Nuesslein
staff writer

Mary Washington showed a decisive victory over the Christopher Newport College rugby team on September 11. Coach Philip Tipton felt that although Mary Washington had home field advantage, it was not the only contributing factor to the team's defeat. He feels that part of the problem could be that "a good deal of our players have never even seen a rugby game."

The team started showing better form in the last half of the game and were called for less penalties. Although the score was very lopsided at 45-0, the team played as well as could be expected under these conditions. The CNC Ruggers hope to have a better turn out for the game against The College of William and Mary on October 1.

Captains surge over ECU, 4-2

The Captains split a pair of games on the road last week against two Division I opponents.

CNC beat East Carolina, 4-2. A power surge in the second half took the win for the team. Dusty Scott scored in the first half to make the score 1-2 at the break. Junior Carter tied the game with 10:13 remaining. John Fitzgerald hit a penalty kick with 5:22 left when a certain goal by Eric Pyle was blocked by an ECU defender's hands. J.R. Lippus added the final goal with 4:00 left.

CNC lost the game to Radford in a reverse situation. The Captains were up at the half 2-1 with goals from Brad Crandall and Peter Olsen. During the final 10 minutes of the game, Radford powered two more goals and stole the victory, 3-2.

The team is 5-2 all around which puts them in the lead in the conference with a 71% win average. Jon Schwartzman is third in conference points with 11, Fitzgerald is sixth with 10 points.

Captains' sports world

Volleyball wins two

The Lady Captains volleyball team have boosted their record to 2-4, which posts more wins already than they produced all of last season. The team defeated Lynchburg (15-0, 8-15, 15-4), and Averett (15-8, 15-10, 15-6). However CNC lost to Eastern Mennonite (4-15, 3-15), and Marymount (15-10, 15-8).

The team is fourth in the conference at 50 percent.

Golfers place 15th

The CNC golf team came in 15th out of 22 teams at the Aubrey Apple Invitational held in Greensboro, NC. The Captains finished the first round in 11th place with a 311, then went on to shoot a 319 in the second round, finishing with 630 total.

Barry Head shot a combined 149, Jack Bizzell closed with 158, and Warren West had a 160.

Intramural update

The Intramurals Department is sponsoring a flag football tournament. The deadline for rosters are Thursday for powder-puff, and Friday for the men.

On Sunday the first round of men's action was played. In game one, the Wild Bunch forfeited to U-Square. In game two, Sigma Pi defeated ROTC, 3-0. In game three, Team Honus defeated the Party Reptiles, 19-6. In game four, Bum Rush defeated Double Oh-Oh, 7-2. The Big Boys Club had a bye in the first round.

Lady Captains lose

The women's tennis team lost to the Division III National Champions, Mary Washington, 9-0. The team also lost to Catholic University, 9-0, but had several close rallies. Amy Baker at number three singles, lost a three set match, 7-6 (7-1), 5-7, 1-6. The number one and two doubles teams also came close to a victory.

SGA to sponsor Fall Fest on Saturday

by Ann Catherine Braxton

CNC will host its Ninth Annual Fall Fest on Saturday, September 24 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The campus's seasonal open house will be held outside the Campus Center.

Long held as a CNC tradition, Fall Fest invites traditional and non-traditional-aged students to mix and mingle, bring their families, and extend the school's friendly atmosphere to the surrounding community. This year artists and craftsmen of all types of media will display and sell their creations as a part of Fall Fest. Most are members of the community and have applied through Charlotte

Delaney of Hampton and the Peninsula Artists and Craftsmen's Guild.

The Fall Fest Committee, comprised of SGA and CAB officers and representatives, met on September 13 to screen proposals for each club or organizations' contributions to the festival.

SGA President Michelle Johnson listed the participating organizations' booth and display ideas available at press time.

The American Marketing Association will sell hot dogs and chips. The Baptist Student Union will sell nachos, cheese, and lemonade. The Campus Activities Board will give out balloons.

The Captain's Players will do face painttings and perform scenes at 12:30 p.m. and 3:00 p.m. The Fine Arts Society will display a club information table and sell T-shirts and various media artwork. The Intervarsity Christian Fellowship will provide hamburgers and soft drinks.

A baby-sitting service and a homemade bake sale will be offered by the Sociology/Social Work Club. The Minority Students Association will bring a giant sub and sell sub slices and lemonade. The National Association for Accountants will hold a raffle for dinner for two at Chi Chi's. The Rugby Club will offer cotton candy and Sigma Pi fraternity will sell Steak on a Stick. The Yearbook will sell prints from its

The Student Government Association is sponsoring a dunking booth with such victims as Director of Student Life Tisa Johnson. The festival will begin with a demonstration by the Equestrian Club at 10 a.m. Other demonstrations will be provided by the Karate Club and Army ROTC.

The League of Women Voters will be conducting opinion polls, distributing flyers on topics of community concern, and recruiting. Two video programs on farming and voter registration will be included in their program for political awareness.

Founder's Day Celebrated

Christopher Newport College celebrated its first Founders Day on September 16 by dedicating the plaque erected in memorial to Forrest C. Coile, Jr., primary architect for the campus. Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Coile, Sr. will be the guests of honor at the luncheon commemorating the event.

Mr. Forrest Coile, Sr. donated the "The Ships" sculpture located on the campus lawn between the Administration Building and McMurran Hall. The plaque identifies "The Ships" sculpture as Forrest Coile, Sr.'s gift to CNC in memory of his son who died in 1976.

The sculptures were designed by Edward L. Martin of Coile Associates, and the installation and bases for the sculptures were donated by the W. M. Jordan Co. The sculptures were constructed by Globe Ironworks.

The Coile firm designed most of the campus buildings at CNC, including McMurran Hall, Gosnold Hall, Ratcliffe Gymnasium, the Captain John Smith Library, Wingfield Hall, the theatre, the bookstore and the administration building. Forrest Coile, Jr. developed the distinct architectural style of the campus buildings, called by some "Williamsburg oriental".

"The Ships" sculpture represents the three ships commanded by Captain Christopher Newport during the historic voyage that culminated in the landing at Jamestown in 1607. Captain Newport commanded the flagship, the Susan Constant, Captain Bartholomew Gosnold commanded the Godspeed, and John Ratcliffe was captain of the Discovery.

According to the architectural and landscaping plans of the College Buildings and Grounds Committee, the sculptures are set on axis with the Administration Building. The individual sculptures are asymmetrically arranged around the east-west axis with two of the sculptures on the axis and one to the south of it.

The sculptures were positioned in such a way as to suggest movement as the observer moves along side them on the adjoining sidewalks. The landscape setting was designed to suggest ships coming into harbor.

The Coile plaque is placed in the "depth of the harbor where the lead ship would come to a stop." To the reader of the plaque, the sculpture looms overhead, as a ship would do. Significantly, according to the College, the viewer's vision at the plaque includes three of the buildings which Coile, Jr. designed: Smith Library, the Administration Building, and Wingfield Hall.

Santoro Speaks to SVEA

Members of the Student Virginia Education Association were greeted with congratulations for receiving the "Ultimate Chapter Standards Award," by Dr. Santoro on September 8, 1988, at their first meeting for this school year.

Dr. Santoro told the future educators that "You are in a position to encourage pupils and students to take advantage of opportunities for cultural exchange and understanding. You need to excite that level of curiosity in those you teach, and you need to show by example how we all gain from the exchange of ideas with those whose backgrounds are different from our own."

Dr. Santoro reported that the National Commission for Excellence in Teacher Education stated that "instruction processes are essential for the teacher...but that the study of pedagogy is equally important with the study of the subjects to be taught."

Students were told that "expectations for the teaching professional go beyond the demands of discipline and pedagogy to an appreciation of the micro social and macro cultural worlds in which pupils reside."

Dr. Santoro believes that "present and future graduates of our Teacher Education Programs distinguish themselves in the field not only by their competency in discipline and pedagogy and the ease by which they accommodate to the changing social and cultural mix of their students, but by their consistent demonstration of empathy, equity, responsibility, and civility."

The next meeting of the SVEA will be October 10, 1988 at 4:15 in Smith 127. The speaker will be Ms. Lindy Perks, Deputy Director of Programs, NASA Visitor Center. Guests are welcomed. In April, Mrs. Mary Bicouvaris, Virginia Educator of the Year will speak.

Poetry Contest Offered

A trip to Hawaii for two is the new Grand Prize prize in the American Poetry Association's latest poetry contest. There is also a $1,000 First Prize. In all, 152 poets will win $11,000 worth of prizes. Contest entry is free.

"Students have been winners in all our contests," said Robert Nelson, the publisher for the Association. "So I urge students to enter now. Later they may be too busy with exams."

Poets may send up to five poems, no more than 20 lines each, with name and address on each page to American Poetry

Association, Dept. CN-74, 250 A Potrero Street, P.O. Box 1803, Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Poems are judged on originality and sincerity. Every poem is also considered for publication.

In the last six years the American Poetry Association has sponsored 27 contests and awarded $101,000 to 2,700 winning poets.

Poems postmarked by December 31 are eligible to win. Prizes will be awarded by February 28, 1989.

Department and Professor of the Week

by Janet Ogden-Day
production editor

DEPARTMENT OF THE WEEK:

One of the most creative departments at Christopher Newport College is the Department of English. Each year the English Department brings a current writer or poet to our campus for a reading as well as a workshop with that poet or author. This week the Department of English holds the honor of Department of the Week.

The members of the English Department and their respective offices located in McMurran Hall are as follows:

Dr. Douglas Gordon, Chairman	206
Dr. Alma Chambers	209
Professor James Cornette	214
Dr. Burnam MacLeod	209
Dr. Albert Millar, Jr.	207
Dr. Jay Paul	206
Dr. Roberta Rosenberg	208
Dr. Madeline Smith	214
Dr. Charles Wilson, Jr.	208
Professor L. Barron Wood	207

by Janet Ogden-Day
production editor

PROFESSOR OF THE WEEK:

Dr. Roberta Rosenberg has been chosen as this week's Professor of the Week. Since her arrival at Christopher Newport in 1986, Dr. Rosenberg has initiated a course in women's literature titled, "Growing Up Female, Growing Up Male," which will be taught this Spring. She aided in the redevelopment of the freshman writing program, and the development of the assessment program for the English Department. Dr. Rosenberg is also a member of the faculty women's caucus headed by Dr. St. Onge of the Modern Languages Department, which is interested in social issues and academic programs on campus. In the future the caucus hopes to become involved with the development of a women's studies minor at CNC.

Dr. Rosenberg received her B.A. from City University of New York in 1971. She then married Ronald Rosenberg, and both began their graduate studies at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. In 1975 Dr. Rosenberg received her Ph.D. in English. Her husband received his Juris Doctorate as well as a Masters in Regional Planning. He currently teaches environmental law at Marshall Wythe Law School.

Dr. Rosenberg's primary fields of expertise are literature and religion. She has taught these subjects at Georgetown University, Cleveland State, and the Institute of Early American History and Culture sponsored by the College of William and Mary and the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. She has also taught business communication in the MBA program at William and Mary.

Dr. Rosenberg is interested in the way culture is reflected literature and how they influence each other. She believes literature can help people understand themselves and their relationship to their society.

Glass in November

by Kay Helm
staff writer

The theatre department at Christopher Newport College will produce Tennessee Williams' The Glass Menagerie in November. CNC's production should be just as interesting to people familiar with the play as it will be to those never before exposed to this classic drama.

Menagerie tells the story of a family trying to survive hard times in the 1930s. Director Bruno Koch, head of the theatre department, calls it, "A magnificent piece of writing that lays bare the nervous system of a family that's down on its luck."

The role of Amanda, considered one of the great dramatic roles in American theatre, will be played by Margaret Thomas. Matt Reibe will play her son Tom. Laura, whose glass menagerie gives the play its title, will be played by Tina Terrell. Shawn Bradley will play Jim, the gentleman caller Tom describes as "The long-delayed but always expected something that we live for."

Menagerie was produced at CNC several years ago. Koch says the main reason for producing the play again, besides the fact that it is a classic, is that almost everybody reads it in high school. Since CNC's Fall productions are performed for high school audiences as well as for the general public, choosing something that will play for high school students is important.

When asked if this production would be much different from others audience members may have seen, Koch said, "There are some plays that are very difficult to adapt...I'm not sure we have that sort of distance."

The style of acting will be realistic, in a play where Koch recommends, "Stay with what the playwright gives you instead of going out on limbs." He is, however, planning some surprises. "We are not, for instance, doing the set as it was prescribed by Tennessee Williams."

The characters' appeal to audiences stems from their realism. They are people "with whom we can easily sympathize." This is especially true with the character of Laura. Koch says, "The difficulties that she's facing in dealing with problems are all things we encounter at one time or another."

The play will run November 11, 12, 18, and 19 in the John W. Gaines Theatre, which is located in the Campus Center.

The set for this production will, according to designer Hank Sparks, "Give an unreal feeling in terms of the overall visual aspect."

This will be accomplished largely through the use of projections of "mood-eliciting kinds of things - color, shapes, sometimes suggested aspects of a city slum environment" onto the set's walls.

Sparks says the original concept was "a lot less realistic...but what does unrealistic furniture look like?" As the costumes, which are being designed by Laurel Tsirimokos, and set evolve, there may be more changes. Tsirimokos is still in the creative process, and Sparks is experimenting with lighting effects.

Rehearsals for The Glass Menagerie began early this Summer because the roles are so difficult. Koch says, "We want to offer our audiences the absolute best that we are capable of producing."

Koch is "primarily interested in getting to the truth of how the family interacts...how they are somewhat unsuccessfully trying to extricate themselves from what seems to be a rather hopeless situation."

Concert Friday

Christopher Newport College's fourteenth season of Monthly Concerts will open on Friday evening, September 23, with a recital by soprano Myra Merritt. A native of Washington, D.C. and a graduate of both the Peabody Conservatory and Catholic University, she made her Metropolitan Opera debut in 1982 as the Shepherd Boy in "Tannhauser." Since then, her roles at the Met have included Musetta in "La Boheme," Antonia in "Tales of Hoffmann," Le Feu in "L'Enfant et les Sortilèges," Clara in "Porgy and Bess," Frasquita in "Carmen," and Elvira in "L'Italiana in Algeri." She was also featured on the television Gala performance of the Metropolitan Opera's celebration of its one hundredth anniversary.

On her CNC recital, Merritt will include works by Handel, Ravel, Mendelssohn, Debussy, Rachmaninoff, and others. She will be accompanied by Michael Cordovana. Dr. Cordovana is Chairman of the Voice Department at Catholic University and Assistant Director of the Dallas Opera.

The recital will be held at 8:15 p.m. in the John W. Gaines Theatre on the CNC campus. Individual tickets are $5.00 for regular admission. Students, faculty, staff, alumni, and senior citizens are admitted for $4.00. CNC students are admitted free.

Remaining concerts on the series include cellist Elsa Hilger on September 23, duo pianists Rees and Stoyanoff on November 11, harpsichordist Andrew Appel on December 9, tenor Stephen Haas on January 20, pianist Frank Wiens on February 24, pianist Alwyn Bar on March 10, pianist Berenice Lipson-Gruzen on April 21, and the Nova Trio on May 26. Season tickets are available for $22.00 and $16.00.

Olympics on

by Renee Hamilton
staff writer

The long, hot days of summer are nearly over. Autumn is quickly approaching. Schools are back in session and last year's sweaters are being pulled from the mothballs of old cedar chests - soon to make their reappearances. Families are packing their station wagons, heading up winding roads to picnic or to enjoy college football games, and Halloween candy haunts the supermarket shelves. Ah, Fall - what a perfect time for...the 1988 Summer Olympics?

Okay, so the games got off to a late start. But when the president of the International Olympic Committee, Juan Antonio Samaranch was giving his speech at the opening ceremonies and the Olympic flame was being lit, there were still six days until the Autumnal Equinox. So, in fact, summer was still upon us.

In addition to its seemingly unseasonable beginning, the 1988 Summer Olympics boasts several other firsts. A record number of countries will be competing in the games this year - 160 in all, nine of which are competing for the first time.

For the first time in 32 years, the United States, The Soviet Union, and China will be competing together. China's new strength will undoubtedly raise a few eyebrows.

The Soviet Union and the U.S. are competing for the first time on the basketball court since the 1972 "reset the clock" fiasco.

For the area locals, there are three of our own athletes competing as part of the U.S. contingent - Yogi Hightower in field hockey, J. R. Reed in basketball, and Hope Spivey in gymnastics. The 24th Olympiad should prove to be truly exciting.

The games are scheduled into October and NBC is offering more hours of Olympic coverage than cable has channels. So put on a sweater, take a seat by the fire, and enjoy the 1988 Summer Olympics!

CONDOMINATION

Consul General to Speak

The Consul General of Japan, The Honorable Takayuki Kimura, will speak to the CNC faculty, students and guests in the Anderson Auditorium at 3:30 p.m. on September 28. The topic will be "Japan-U.S. Relations" and "Japanese-American Trade Issues."

The Consul General is the number one representative for the Japanese Government in the southeast region of America which includes Virginia. He is headquartered in Atlanta, GA.

The Consul General is visiting Newport News to discuss Japan-U.S. relations with business, civic, government, and education leaders. The Consul General believes that his visit will give him the opportunity of learning first-hand about the area's dynamic social, cultural and business climate. Through his interaction with the citizens in this major industrial and commercial city, that there will be greater opportunity to foster mutual understanding and trade between Japan and Newport News.

CNC is co-sponsor with the City of Newport News. Mayor Jessie M. Rattley will give a brief overview of the City's Japanese Investment Recruitment and Sister City Program.
