Guidelines for Council of Higher Education Outstanding Faculty Awards for Teaching, Research, and Public Service

Introduction

The Council of Higher Education Outstanding Faculty Awards were established by the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia in 1985 to recognize excellence in teaching, research, and public service. Each year 13 outstanding faculty members from Virginia's public and private colleges and universities are honored for contributions made to their students, to their academic disciplines, and to the public. The Council of Higher Education, using general funds, makes a cash award of $5,000 to each of the outstanding faculty members, and using private sources for funding, structures an annual awards banquet to recognize the 13 honorees. Recipients of Council of Higher Education Outstanding Faculty Awards are not eligible for awards in subsequent years.

Criteria for Nomination

A nominee for a Council of Higher Education Outstanding Faculty Award should have a record of superior accomplishment in teaching, in research, or in public service. A nominee for an award in one activity may excel in others, but no amount of professional achievement in the other activities may be substituted for the activity for which the faculty member is nominated. The documentation submitted in support of a nomination should contain written evidence which includes details of the nominee's achievements and contributions in teaching, in research (or artistic accomplishment), or in public service, including written statements which are both descriptive and evaluative from, as appropriate, current and former students, faculty and professional colleagues, academic administrators, private and public sector leaders, and others qualified to comment. A significant part of each nominee's record of accomplishment should have been established while the nominee was a faculty member in the Virginia public higher education system. No fewer than four or more than eight of the awards should be made to outstanding junior or mid-career faculty, and no fewer than seven awards should be primarily for excellence in teaching.

Procedures for Nominations from Institutions

The selection of nominees for Council of Higher Education Outstanding Faculty Awards should be made by a campuswide committee. Copies of evidence in support of a nominee's candidacy should be submitted to the director of the Council of Higher Education through the president of the nominee's college or university. Documentation (in five copies) should include: (a) a table of contents, (b) full curriculum vitae, (c) documentation and evaluation of teaching, or research, or public service accomplishment, including summaries of any student course evaluations, and (d) any other material deemed relevant in support of the nomination.

Council of Higher Education Nominating Committee

An awards committee of thirteen members, appointed by the Council of Higher Education, should be representative of the several distinctive components within the Virginia higher education system, and shall include members not formally associated with higher education. The committee will be chaired by a member of the Council of Higher Education. External referees, as necessary, may be employed to assist the committee in its deliberations.
