Monday, December 3.

The Sociology Club is sponsoring the viewing of a widely acclaimed documentary film entitled: "COMMUNES." This film presents an investigation of various forms of communal living prevalent in the world today. The film's strongest point is that it is primarily composed of footage taken "on location" - the viewer literally sees the daily operations of many major communes. Fundamental questions concerning the present and future status of the "typical family" are raised. Do come!

Time: 12.00 sharp

Location: N-110

Film duration: exactly 60 minutes

APPLIED MATHEMATICS SYMPOSIUM, DECEMBER 7TH.

Prof. Markusen will be the guest lecturer in the third meeting of the Applied Math Symposium on Friday, December 7th at 3.00 p.m. Her talk will be concerned with binomials and genetics - topics with which Prof. Markusen is well acquainted since she herself is a marvelous example of applications of the Binomial Theorem to genetics. Slightly more than a century ago, the experiments of Gregor Mendel taught us that sexually reproducing organisms live and reproduce in a binomial world. The Mendelian Laws that emerged from this concept have led to elucidation of the ways in which genetic material have been conserved during the evolutionary process. As usual, after the formal presentation by the sprightly Prof. Markusen, the Symposium (true to its name) will withdraw to the faculty Happy Hour being held at the Board Room of the Campus Center.

POSITION PAPER DELAYED

I am sorry that it has become necessary to adjust the timetable that President Windsor and I projected for circulating a position paper on the educational identity of CNC. It now appears as though the paper will not be completed until somewhere near the end of January. As soon as it has been circulated, President Windsor and I will follow through with our plans to discuss this paper with each department.

DATE OF FACULTY MEETING CHANGED

A number of faculty members have suggested that the December faculty meeting be held on Thursday, December 13, so as not to conflict with any final examinations. The request is reasonable, and I would like to change the date accordingly and set the time of the meeting for 1.00 p.m. There are no classes or final exams on Thursday, December 13.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT
RESIGNATIONS and LEAVES OF ABSENCE

The President, Dean, Associate Dean, and Business Manager have recently been giving very serious attention to the matter of new faculty appointments for the coming academic year. It is still not certain exactly how many new appointments there will be, or which departments will receive them, but an important consideration in determining this is the number of current faculty members who are planning not to return to CNC next year.

In order to arrive at a decision on new appointments as soon as possible, it is requested that any faculty member who is planning to resign or request a leave of absence notify the Dean of his or her intention by December 7.

FROM THE SELF STUDY OFFICE

The Self Study Office is now housed in Campus Center 208. The telephone extension is 318. Nancy Tobin, Self Study Secretary, is on duty from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday except during the lunch hour (12.00-12.30). Mrs. Tobin is willing to work during the noon hour if appointments can be made in advance.

There are a number of Self Study documents from other institutions, as well as other research materials, on file in the Self Study Office and available for use. The office is locked when unoccupied. The Campus Center Information Desk will issue a key on a sign-out basis. If you wish to remove any of the research materials please check the sign-out list, so that we can locate the material if necessary.

My Gosnold Hall extension is 258, but if I do not answer there please try the Biology office, Ext.215.

EXTRACT FROM WILLIAM & MARY NEWS, November 27, 1973.

CNC, RBC Students Excel as Transfers

Richard Bland College students who transfer to William and Mary have compiled a winning scholastic track record at the College, while students from Christopher Newport College who transfer to William and Mary tend to improve their grades after transferring, a new study has revealed.

The study encompasses a 4-1/2-year period, covering 1,150 transfer students, and was conducted by the new Office of Institutional Research as the first in-depth analysis of undergraduate transfer students.

Results of the four-month study were announced by George R. Healy, William and Mary's vice president for academic affairs. The investigation covered the records of transfer students from September, 1968, until the end of the last academic year. It was designed to show the number, fields of concentration and academic characteristics of transfer students.

Academic records were compiled in terms of quality point average, or QPA, in which "A" grades earn three points per semester hour, "B" grades earn two points, and "C" grades earn one. Lower grades earn no points, but the credit hours are used in determining the QPA.

Richard Bland transfers, according to the study, earned a 1.9076 QPA at William and Mary, the highest of the 19 colleges and universities which sent ten or more transfers to the College during the period covered by the study. In all, 56 Richard Bland transfers were included.

According to the compilation, the average QPA of Christopher Newport College students before transferring was 1.6718 on a scale of 3.0. Their average performance at William and Mary rose to 1.6753. The overall average performance of all transfer students was 1.571, lower than the CNC transfers.

William and Mary accepted more CNC transfers than from any other college during the period of the study. In all, 98 CNC students transferred, followed by 56 from Richard Bland College in Petersburg, William and Mary's other branch college. Third was Mary Washington College, with 31 transfers.

The overall average of transfer students at William and Mary was shown to be 1.4644, significantly below the Richard Bland record. The study also showed that women transfers from Richard Bland College to William and Mary earned a QPA of 1.9325, better than women transfers from the other 19 institutions; and men transfers earned a QPA of 1.8808, also better than those from other colleges and universities.

Reservations can be made and tickets purchased at the Campus Center Information Desk.

Because students will be off-campus for most of January, it is essential that we line up reservations and sales now.

If we are financially successful with this venture, we shall be able to continue offering exciting theatre productions like these to our students, high school students, and the entire community. If ticket sales are off, we shall be hampered in our growth.

Can you help by promoting this theatre series and organizing your classes to attend? Any help you can give us will be greatly appreciated. And remember that theatre tickets made good Christmas gifts!

If you need further information, please contact Rita Hubbard (Ext.250) Thank you.

TO ALL ADVISERS AND STUDENTS

Please note that course offering Psychology 495 and Mathematics 495, Research Statistics, should be titled Organizational Psychology.

This course is an in-depth study of Christopher Newport College, open to senior majors in Business, Mathematics, Political Science, Psychology, Sociology, and M.I.S.

Christopher Newport College as an organizational system is the "living laboratory" for students who elect this course. They will be provided initially with readings, materials, lectures and discussions selected to help them plan and conduct individual research projects. These will be designed to describe and evaluate the organizational climate, leadership patterns, leadership styles, economic challenges, communication networks, decision-making strategies and other relevant variables.

Students will select their own projects and their research will be conducted to enhance their individual learning experience and not for any other use.

Virginia Museum Automobile Exhibition

ENCOUNTER II: COLOR

This exhibition is concerned with the expressive use of color in a selection of original works of art from the permanent collection of the Virginia Museum. These paintings and prints include works by Monet, Stuart Davis, Anuszkiewicz, Andy Warhol and other twentieth century artists.

Color perception, or "the seeing of color," involves both the eye and the brain in a process of comparison and contrast. Seeing what happens between colors is the concern of this exhibition presented by comparison and by contrast.
