Office of Veterans Affairs lacks needed federal grants

by Cheryl Seymore

Rumors abound within the veterans' community at CNC that the College's Office of Veteran Affairs (OVA) will close due to lack of funds.

In an interview with Bob LaVerriere, Admissions Officer for Veteran Affairs at CNC, it was learned that the federal grant which had funded the OVA was not awarded to the College for the current fiscal year. LaVerriere explained, "The College has received federal funding for the operation of OVA since 1976 through the Veterans' Cost-of-Instructions Payments (VCIP) program. This program was established by Congress to allow institutions of higher learning the opportunity to increase their enrollment of Vietnam-era veterans by offering outreach, counseling, and recruiting services to area veterans.

"This greatly affects CNC," according to LaVerriere, "because we have over 500 persons utilizing VA education benefits. This program has also assisted some 6,500 Tidewater veterans since its establishment in 1976."

LaVerriere added, "Since the VCIP grant is made for a period of one fiscal year, each participating college must re-apply for grant renewal every year. The College was fortunate enough to have received continued funding from 1976 through June of 1979, but due to ambiguous instructions which accompanied the application for renewal, it was determined by federal authorities that CNC was not eligible for the grant this year."

These ambiguous instructions marred the application process, for May 30, 1979, was thought to be the deadline for submission. "After submitting the grant," remarked LaVerriere, "the College learned that the actual deadline was May 16, 1979, and all grant monies had already been awarded to participating schools by the time our application was received."

What does all this mean? According to LaVerriere, "Although the College has not received funds from the VCIP program, a commitment has been made toward the continuation of the operation of the OVA from various College funds. Hopefully, the College will make it through next June, at which time the College hopes to receive another VCIP grant that would fund the OVA through the following year." LaVerriere also pointed out, "If the grant is not approved next year, the College would have to close the OVA and transfer the records maintenance functions to the Office of Admissions. This would mean that the VA enrollment certifications would take much longer to be processed, due to a decreased staff."

LaVerriere suggests and encourages all collegiate veterans to write letters to Congressmen, Senators and the U.S. Office of Education. When writing, LaVerriere suggests that the student mention the VCIP program by name, the fact that he/she attends CNC under the auspices of the VA education benefit package, and that the program has assisted him/her in specific ways.

Financial Aid Office hires Assistant Director for new post

by Patricia Earls

Sidney P. Dugas may have been hired in the newly-created position of Assistant Director of Financial Aid, but he is not to be considered a freshman by any means in this field.

Dugas arrived on August 16 to assist Mr. Clark Ward, the present Director of Financial Aid, with the immense paperwork involved in processing the forms required. It was because of this mountain of paperwork that Dugas was hired. Mr. Clark and his secretary simply did not have enough time to counsel students and keep the flow of papers moving. Dugas will provide the counseling and assist in helping with the forms.

Dugas's job will entail listening to the unique problems of students and helping them determine which type of aid is best suited for their needs.

He states that he likes his job and feels that financial aid should be accessible to all students and that college students should not have to work their way through college as he did.

Although Dugas comes to CNC from the

Dr. Babcock receives fellowship for HEW study

by Stephanie E. Mosca

From approximately 650 applicants, Dr. Frank Babcock, Director of CNC's Counseling Center, was one of 45 chosen to receive the Educational Policy Fellowship.

The Educational Policy Fellowship Program is sponsored by the Institute for Educational Leadership, which is a part of George Washington University.

Through this program, the nationally recruited Fellows are brought to the Washington, D.C. area where they will participate in the educational policy-making process. This process centers around two major activities.

The first activity includes attending a variety of seminars and workshops which will focus on educational policy making on the federal level. Presentations will be made by various federal officials which include the Commissioner of Education and members of the White House staff.

The second major activity involves the placement of the Fellows in federal government positions. Through this placement, first hand observations of the policy making process can be made.

The Fellows will have the opportunity to work at the U.S. Office of Career Education. Their specific responsibility will be to coordinate the National Advisory Council on Career Education. This council was appointed by Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Patricia Harris. The National Advisory Council on Career Education is mandated to issue a report of its findings to the Secretary of HEW and to the appropriate congressional committees.

Dr. Babcock's responsibility will be to formulate the agenda for the meeting, coordinate the organization of the report and see that the report is issued.

During the fall of 1979, Dr. Babcock will study the way in which the federal government works in respect to education. The following spring will include a similar process. The Fellows will be transported to one of the states to observe policy making on the state level.

Dr. Babcock has worked for three years at CNC as Director of the Counseling Center. He holds a B.A. from Union College in Kentucky and a Ph.D. from Ohio University.

Dr. Babcock expects to return in early July. He feels that he will be able to make valuable contributions to the students by experiencing governmental processes. Dr. Babcock exuberantly foresees the Education Policy Fellowship Program as a "dynamite experience."

CNC offers new SOC program

by Cheryl Seymore

For the first time, servicemen will be allowed to study anywhere and receive a degree from Christopher Newport College.

Servicemen's Opportunity College, better known as SOC, is a new program at CNC, and is free to all participants.

According to Bob LaVerriere of the Admissions Office, "This program will accept credits from other schools and use these credits to award the student with a CNC degree. The major requirement for the program is that the student must have at least 30 hours with CNC and 12 hours of that working with his/her major."

Any interested student should see LaVerriere in the Admissions Office.

Planned Parenthood needs volunteers

Every year approximately one million teenagers become pregnant. Also, every year over one million teenagers are victims of venereal disease.

The staff at Peninsula Planned Parenthood is concerned with the social, economic and health problems of these young people. Peninsula Planned Parenthood is a private, non-profit health agency which provides family planning counseling services for the local community. The emphasis of Planned Parenthood is the prevention of social, physical or emotional difficulties encountered as a result of unplanned or unwanted pregnancies. They are able to offer their programs at mini-

Student Association

Members of the Student Association are planning to be out in the halls of Wingfield, Gosnold and Newport from 6:30 until 7:15 p.m. for a week starting September 24 to talk to students who primarily attend evening classes.

The purpose of the program is to acquaint evening students with the Student Association and let them know who their representatives are. The S.A. members are interested in learning if the students have any specific complaints, problems, or changes they would like to see made which would benefit the College.

This is an opportunity for students to provide input to their representatives. It is hoped they will take advantage of the opportunity. If the effort proves successful, it will be repeated at regular intervals.

Attention All Clubs

Attention All Clubs

Please furnish a list of your club officer's names, addresses and phone numbers for the current school year to the office of the Vice President for Student Affairs no later than September 28. The office is located in the Campus Center on the second floor, Room 238. Thank you for your cooperation.

Science Center presents program

The Peninsula Nature and Science Center is celebrating the tenth anniversary of the first lunar landing throughout the months of September and October in their planetarium.

The presentation, entitled "Footsteps," explores the evolution of the earth-moon system, pursues man's first fanciful thoughts on the nature of the moon, and recaptures the wonder and excitement of those fantastic journeys upon another world ten years ago.

Shows will be held Thursday and Friday evenings at 7:30 p.m.; Saturdays at 2:15 and 3:45 p.m.; and Sundays at 1:30, 2:30, and 3:30 p.m.

For more information contact Jon Bell, 595-1900 at the Planetarium.

Outdoor People

For those who like to take a break from studies in the great outdoors, there are a number of ways to go. If you like company there are a number of local organizations that sponsor regular outings. It is not necessary to be a member to go along; however, membership enables you to get the newsletter. Listed below are some activities available:

Biking: The Peninsula Biking Association (PABA) distributes a newsletter which can be picked up at any bike shop. Meetings are monthly and rides are scheduled every weekend for anyone from novice (15 to 25 miles) to expert (100 miles). There is also a racing group, and the TBA in Norfolk. For $4.00, the newsletter will be mailed to your house, or look on the bulletin board across from G-230.

Hiking: The Tidewater branch of the Appalachian Trail Club (TATC) meets the third Wednesday of each month at a church in Ocean View (ask Al-Salam or Hermann). They are 200 strong, and are maintaining ten miles of the trail, have built a side trail, and are working on a stone cabin. The dues entitle you to a newsletter to keep track of the hikes. There are short local hikes in nice places such as our own Newport News Park for starters, and carpooling up to the Trail. Visitors welcome. Come on out, gals--there is a surplus of guys! Schedule on G-230 board.

Birding. First and third Sundays, birders meet at the parking lot near the ranger's station in Newport News Park. They are another friendly bunch; just bring a pair of binoculars and they are happy to find you birds. Last Sunday we saw bluebirds, black terns, a red-shouldered hawk, great blue herons, green herons, little blue herons, flycatchers, and a red-breasted grosbeak--and more! Birding is the right word because the good ones do it 90 percent by ear. One of the Smith brothers located the grosbeak by a single call--then found it on a tree about 50 yards away, just a silhouette. They always have good telescopes so you can take a good look at distant birds.

Skiing: The Skiing Club is very sociable and holds swimming parties to stay in shape in the warmer weather. Someone out there must be a member; please let me xerox your schedule and post it on the board.

Coastal Canoeists: Mostly don't paddle near the coast, but they do have regular trips. They are rather a bunch of individuals. I'll try to get the one I know to xerox off the next schedule.

Cavers: There are a bunch of our own students trying to organize an outing around their biology field trips; find Dave Vodvark. If I left anyone out, come post your notice on the board! Come on outdoors!

Self-Help plans handbook

What are your rights as a student? Where would you go if you have a complaint? Why should you pre-register for classes? These questions are important and should be explained to CNC students. But how?

Operation Self Help, an organization designed to help initiate new programs at CNC, has come up with an answer. With the aid of the Publications Review Board and the Office of Student Affairs, a new student handbook is being planned. Unlike previous handbooks, this one will be written from the students' point of view--for and by the student.

Any student who is interested in helping in the layout, design, or writing of the student handbook is urged to contact Operation Self-Help, Room 230, Campus Center.

Asst. Director

U.S. Army as a retired lieutenant colonel, he is no stranger on a campus. His last assignment was as an Assistant Professor of Military Science at South Eastern Louisiana University in Hammond, Louisiana. He stated that he enjoyed his position and decided that he wanted to continue to be in a college atmosphere.

In reference to how he likes his new job, Dugas says, "Love it."

Career Planning & Placement

Ms. Gail Spengler

Ms. Gail Spengler, Personnel Assistant at Newport News Savings and Loan Association, will speak to the students on "How to Write a Resume" on Wednesday, September 26, from noon to 1 p.m. in the Campus Center Theatre. Ms. Spangler will not only talk about the techniques of writing a resume, but she will also be available to critique students' resumes.

Ms. Spangler is a native of Newport News and prior to joining the personnel department at Newport News Savings and Loan Association in 1978, she was associated with the personnel department of United Virginia Bank.

Seniors will benefit greatly from this seminar since most businesses and government agencies require a resume when applying for employment.

Student Senate seeks more involvement

by Debbie Burnside

Do you have a problem or idea about the student government, what you would like to do, or how you'd like to change it? If you do, then joining the Student Senate may be just what you're looking for.

Many people are under the impression that the Student Senate is like a "little brother" to the Student Association, but this is not the case.

Patrick O'Brien, who was asked by the Senate to represent them in this interview, stated that "the Senate could be a major influence for students on campus, but the problem is students don't understand the Senate, how it works, or what it does."

The Senate is composed of Division Vice Presidents, Department Chairmen and Vice Chairmen, Departmental Senators, unclassified Senators, the SA Attorney General, and one representative from each of the chartered clubs and interest groups on campus. O'Brien believes, "If all clubs and SA branches sent their representatives [to the meetings] like they should, then we would have a powerful and positive legislative influence for students."

David Kim

Child prodigy opens Monthly Concert Series

David Kim, 15-year-old violinist, opens CNC's fifth season of Monthly Concerts on Friday evening, September 21, at 8:15 p.m. in the Campus Center Theatre. This will be the young violinist's second appearance at CNC.

David made his concert debut at age six, and at age twelve he performed Paganini's violin concerto with the Columbus Philharmonic Orchestra. His television biography was featured nationally on NBC, CBS, and PBS. His other television appearances include Child Prodigy on WNEW-TV (New York) with Violinist Itzhak Perlman. He was also featured in a Walt Disney TV movie.

David was the 1978 First Prize Winner of the National Stillman-Kelly Award, a national competition sponsored by the Federation of Music Clubs. He has already performed extensively on the East Coast and in the South. His solo appearances with orchestra include a concert with the Juilliard Chamber Orchestra at Lincoln Center, N.Y.; the Florence Symphony, the Greenville Symphony Orchestra, the Charleston Symphony, and the Kingsport Symphony Orchestra.

David's CNC concert will include Brahms' "Sonatensatz," Op. posth; Beethoven's Sonata in D-major, Op. 12, No. 1; Saint-Saens' "Introduction ND Rondo Capriccioso"; Maasanet-Marsick's "Meditation" from Thais; and Sarasate's "Caprice Basque," op. 24.

Sound Solution

by Rick Dunn

After last week's dissertation on disco-rock you probably thought I'd lost a few marbles. Not to worry; head-banging rock and roll still turns my crank.

This week I'm gonna' briefly review two different proponents of powerhouse rock: Molly Hatchet's Southern-fried bogie and Foreigner's calculated business rock.

Molly Hatchet's second album is called Flirtin' with Disaster. I must admit, I figured these guys were flirting with disaster by releasing another album. Their first LP was marginal. It was a regional hit here, but only charted briefly nationally.

The first disc sounded so much like Lynyrd Skynyrd that you really had to wonder whether these guys could have landed a contract if Van Zandt's gang hadn't have boarded that fateful airplane.

"Dreams I'll Never See," the biggest hit for Molly Hatchet on their debut album, wasn't even written by the group. It was a Greg Allman tune. Naturally I was skeptical of the band's ability to come up with follow-up material of equal calibre.

So I was really surprised when I dropped Flirtin' with Disaster onto the turntable. Although stylistically predictable, the music's power was ferocious.

Southern boogie music is unique. You don't get high to it. You don't dance to it. You get drunk and fall out of your chair to it.

Just flip the album jacket over and look at the band on the back. These guys look like they've been getting drunk and falling on their faces for years. So they know what they're singing about.

The LP opens with a cut called "Whiskey Man." I mean, what else are they going to sing about? The song rocks out and is highlighted by Hatchet's triple-pronged guitar attack.

Except for the obligatory Southern ballad on side two, these good ole boys from Jacksonville never let the tempo slow up. Of particular note is "Boogie No More," which is reminiscent of "Free Bird."

On the other hand, Foreigner's third album, Head Games, breaks no new ground. The only new thing about the band is their bass player. Ed Galgiardi dropped out and was replaced by one-time Roxy Music bassist Rick Wills.

If you liked the first two Foreigner albums then you'll like this one. But if you've got the first two, there's no need to lay out your cash for this stuff.

Double Vision had some nice warm moments ("Love Has Taken Its Toll"), but Head Games has very few. Lou Graham's vocals are downright clinical and Mike Jones' songwriting is as unimaginative as it can get.

The criticism leveled at Foreigner most of the time is that they're too clean. Jones self-consciously tries to make the riffing on "Dirty White Boy" sound spontaneous, but the result is embarrassingly stiff.

The title track is an almost perfect copy of Foreigner's first hit, "Feels Like the First Time." In music, it's okay to borrow from your contemporaries, but when you copy yourself, it's time to retire.

Head Games is an artistic disappointment, due largely to Jones' songwriting. If he'd loosen his grip, maybe let Ian MacDonald write more, Foreigner could be a great band instead of the mediocre one on their latest offering.

Teams battle for lead

by Hobert Corbett

Quarterback Randy Lint passed for three touchdowns and ran for another last Sunday morning to lead the EHO's to a 33-0 victory over TASS.

The Headhunters put their offense in gear during the last game of the day as they rolled to a 51-0 win over the Over-the-Hill Gang (team #1). They were led by receiver and defensive back Glen Corey, who had two touchdown catches and three interceptions. Quarterback Marty Martin had a phenomenal day as he uncorked six touchdown passes and ran for two other touchdowns.

In the game of the day, Kappa Nu upset team #2 of the Over-the-Hill Gang in overtime. After a 6-6 tie in regulation time, each team was allowed to run a series of four plays. The team to roll up the most yardage during their possession was declared the winner. Kappa Nu was given the first opportunity on offense and came up with a total of 30 yards. When the OTHG #2 got possession, Kappa Nu's defensive standout Mike Carter rose to the occasion and sacked the quarterback twice, which led to a minus yardage total for the OTHG's series.

Even though TASS and OTHG #1 lost by a wide margin, these two teams were formed for the first time this year and showed a great deal of potential.

While CNC does not have a school football team, spectator participation is encouraged. For a small college, CNC has a wealth of good athletes, several of which can be seen on Sundays. For those interested, games begin approximately at 9:30 a.m., 11:00 a.m., and 12:30 p.m. A schedule of games may be obtained at the Campus Center Information Desk.

Golfers "rough it"

by David Bean

Practice makes perfect, and Wednesday, September 12, CNC golfers were swinging their way through another practice. They were not alone, however. Along with them at Slumpy Lake were the William & Mary Indians, Old Dominion's Monarchs, and the Apprentice School. This was the Captains' second practice tournament with the three schools. Compared to the first one, this session was much better, both score-wise and experience-wise.

William & Mary finished up with a score of 368; the other teams in finishing order were ODU (370), Apprentice School (391), and CNC (423). CNC's top finishers were Mike Hott (81), David Falin (82), Rich Burns (85), Mark Paquette (86) and Jim Baxter (89). Coach Hubbard says, "This year's team should be stronger depth-wise."

On September 24, the Captains will participate in the Methodist Invitational to be held in Fayetteville, North Carolina. The feeling seems to be that, based on their fall practice, CNC golfers should have a better spring swing.

Women's tennis

There will be a Women's Tennis practice on Thursday, September 20, and Friday, September 21, from 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. All team members must attend.

Trainers needed

CNC needs two volunteer Student Athletic Trainers to assist the varsity sports program. You will learn the techniques of first aid, taping the athlete, rehabilitative training, and other areas concerning the prevention and care of injuries to our CNC athletes. You need not have experience in athletic training; however, you must be willing to learn, provide some spare time to the Athletic Trainer's office, and on occasion travel with the varsity teams.

If interested, contact Bert Jones, Athletic Trainer, at 599-7023 or the office of the Athletic Director at 599-7025.

Women's basketball team looks good for this season

If an exciting Mutt-and-Jeff combination insured victories, Christopher Newport College's basketball team would be in good shape.

When CNC takes to the floor in Ratcliff Gym Saturday, September 22, the third team in the school's history--all under Coach Bert Jones--"we'll be better off skill-wise but not in numbers."

A year ago, 24 hopefuls turned out in pre-season practice. This fall, the number shrank to half that.

Still, of the eight-man squad toiling for Jones, two big pluses are 5-foot-10½ junior Captain Gwynn Drewry and 4-10 Janet Waddy.

Jones calls Drewry "the best women's athlete the school's ever had," and Waddy was awarded the title of "Most Competitive Athlete" last spring. Waddy's honor covered both men and women.

Other returnees are all sophomores. They are Becky Morgan, Kathy Spiller and Sandy Williams. The newcomers are freshmen Donnajean Dirksa and Sonya Pinkney and sophomore Sherie Kautz.

A 21-match schedule gives the Captains a shot at breaking .500 for the first time. They improved their initial ledger of 6-16 to 8-10 last year.

Major hurdles, however, lurk in the schedule against the likes of Virginia Commonwealth, University of Virginia, William and Mary and George Mason.

It's no wonder Jones calls it "our toughest schedule."

Captains outshoot opponent but fall short at the goal

by David Bean

Last Wednesday, September 12, found the Captains playing an away game against Longwood College. It started with the hope that the Captains would try to get things off on the right foot (the previous weekend saw them lose the opening round of the Soccer Festival and the consolation game held at CNC).

To score goals, the team must shoot the ball, and although CNC outshot Longwood, 28 attempts to their 17, they came up short on goals and lost the game 2-1.

Longwood's David Yerkes accounted for both of their goals and Joe Garone scored the Captains' only tally. Missed opportunities were a big factor, cites Coach Bob Cummings, who said, "The team played well most of the time. We did everything but put more shots in the net. We hit posts and crossbars, but they don't count." Cummings added that Longwood didn't play that well, especially on defense.

When asked about the upcoming tournament in Salisbury, Maryland, and his feelings and hopes for the team, Cummings replied, "We will definitely be the underdog there because the competition up there is so tough and for us to do well we'll have to play some really fine ball. If we just win one we have a starting place. It's hard having so many freshmen, but we have the best bunch of freshmen we've ever had, so all we have to do is to start jelling as a team should."

Hopefully they will start to jell soon so that they can start reversing their stumbling start.

CNC's on the runway

On Friday, September 14, the Daily Press featured a soccer column written by Tom Knott. Usually, Mr. Knott is low-key in his articles, but his September 14 article crucified and compared CNC's Captains unjustly.

We will be the first to admit that CNC does not have any potential Pele on its team nor do we have the essentials required to recruit such stars, but CNC definitely has a team of better stature than what the article indicated.

Mr. Knott apparently shows a genuine lack of fairness in his comparison of William and Mary to CNC. He stated, among several analogies, that "if W&M is a magnificent Concorde ready for take off, then CNC is a grounded DC-10." What he unintentionally points out is that CNC and W&M are incomparable as are these two planes.

In a conversation with Mr. Knott, we discovered that he really doesn't see a difference in a college which has established itself all over the country in 286 years of existence and one like CNC who has only 18 years of existence and is not a resident college—at least not in the area of soccer.

What Mr. Knott entirely failed to realize are several factors. The first has to do with available money. W&M grants scholarships and entertains a much larger budget for its recruiting efforts than CNC can ever begin to match. These scholarship monies and extra allowances create the "icing on the cake" during recruitment for W&M. Another point which includes the recruiting aspect is the extent to which W&M's name is known over the United States. What person would turn down a chance to go to a nationally-recognized school on a scholarship? Maybe if W&M didn't have the team reputation they do, no one would go, but it is highly unlikely.

The last factor to be pointed out is that fact that CNC is so transient and the retention factor is low. We must admit that CNC is a small college and is basically the starting point for a person en route to a higher education. Most of the students who come to CNC arrive from the neighboring high schools. This enables them to experience college life with all the comforts of home and allows them to save their money for the last two years to be spent graduating elsewhere.

Also not to be overlooked is the fact that not many people would take the trouble to go to CNC if it meant moving, finding a place to live for four years, and, especially, financing those years.

Moving on to other areas, it must be pointed out that our new freshmen certainly have potential. The Captains might have lost 2-1 to Longwood College, but the fact that they even had the ball close enough to shoot for a goal 28 times, as compared to Longwood's 17, shows that they are on the right end of the field at least. Knott must also consider the fact that W&M did not start off at the Division I level and that it took time for W&M to build their team. Right now the Captains are taking that time.

Granted, we at CNC know the problems Coach Cummings is having retaining players for seasons to come, but nothing warrants the attack Knott launched on the Captains in his column.

What bothers us the most is that when questioned about the angle taken in writing his column, Knott explained that sometimes sports is a dull subject and needs to be "jazzed" up a bit. We question his methods and feel that there are numerous ways to "jazz up" a story other than tearing down a team which is not even comparable to another.

We express our disappointment in Tom Knott's column and have prepared a little analogy of our own for him: If Jack Anderson is the king of the column writers, then Tom Knott is the newsstand attendant on 21st and Washington.

Captain's Commentary

by O. Werbinich

Every spring the Music Club holds an election to determine the most popular professor of the year. It's very nice and very traditional. It's also almost a foregone conclusion that the professor who wins will be one who teaches a subject that is a distribution requirement because those are the profs that the most students come in contact with.

Some of the more creative female minds on campus have made a suggestion that we have an election for the male professor with the Best Body of the Year.

Some likely candidates come to mind. The English Department might run Jay Paul or Bill Wolf. In Political Science, it would be a tough decision between Buck Miller and Bob Doane. And check out the Biology Department for Harold Cones. There's surely a few more around we don't know about.

Aside from the sheer pleasure of contemplating the subject, it might even serve a few useful purposes. It could be useful in promoting academic diversification (at least among female students). In order to compare the assets of the various candidates, students would have to take more courses in more fields to do a long-term study. Lots of students already know that if you get tired of listening to lectures on Parliament, Plato, or pluralism, you can sit back and be entertained just watching Dr. Doane. Along the same line of useful purposes, the "full-time equivalency" rate, which is the base Richmond uses to give CNC its operating funds, might increase as more students are attracted to taking more courses.

And finally it might prove an incentive to other profs to get rid of those sagging tummies and the stooped shoulder postures that would also improve their general health and outlook on life.

Before we're accused of female chauvinism, we want to add that admiration of the physical qualities of our male professors in no way implies disrespect for their intellectual capabilities. It just means we like to look at what we have to listen to.

Commencement Speaker

The President of the College will be pleased to receive the suggestions of the college community regarding the speakers for Commencement Exercises.

Virginia Philharmonic appoints Simmons Associate Concertmaster

Wendell Simmons will play a major role in the melodic output of orchestra violin selections in Norfolk and Virginia Beach through this upcoming symphonic and opera season.

He has now been appointed Associate Concertmaster of the Virginia Philharmonic, formerly the Norfolk Symphony, to perform an expanded concert season opening October 13 in Chrysler Hall. He is also Concertmaster of the Virginia Sunday Pops Orchestra holding forth at The Dome, Virginia Beach, starting with a concert starring Phyllis Diller on January 26.

He will perform as Assistant Concertmaster of the Virginia Opera, whose season opens October 26 with performances of Puccini's La Boheme.

Mr. Simmons is from Johnston, Pa. He performed as Assistant Concertmaster in the Indiana University of Pennsylvania Symphony, as well as conducting the orchestra's string ensemble for separate concerts. He has performed with the Colorado Philharmoni, the Winston-Salem (N.C.) Symphony and the North Carolina School of the Arts Orchestra, the latter on a tour of Italy.

Student Senate

The purpose of the Senate is twofold: first, it makes legislation, and secondly, it acts as a balance of power for the Student Association's Executive Council. The powers of the Senate include making legislation, considering and voting on all legislation proposed by the Executive Council, and also overriding any veto given by the Executive Council with a three-fourths vote.

The only way the Senate is going to work is for everyone to become involved. The success or failure of the Senate rests with the student body. Without student participation, the Senate will become nothing. To become involved, all one has to do is to go to the meetings, which are usually held on Tuesdays at 12:15 in N-125. Or, one can contact Mary Turner at the Campus Center Information Desk; Barbara Reder, SA Secretary, at 599-7197; or Patrick O'Brien at 380-0800.

York County Democrats will sponsor Seafood Fest, meeting with candidates

The York County Democratic Committee is sponsoring a Seafood Fest on Saturday, October 6, from 3:00 until 6:00 p.m. at the Cook Road Ball Park just off Route 17 in York County.

Included on the agenda for the afternoon is live entertainment, provided by Chubby Hill, and a chance to meet and talk with some of the local Democratic candidates who are seeking election or reelection to office. Among these are George Grayson, incumbent candidate for Delegate to the House of Representatives, and Merlin Renne, Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney and Candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney.

In addition, the following candidates for the County Board of Supervisors will be on hand: Rogers Smith (4th Precinct), Ben Rush (3rd Precinct), Shirley Cooper (2nd Precinct), and Chubby Hill (1st Precinct). And as an added plus, Dick Davis, Chairman of the State Office of the Democratic Party will also be on hand.
