Emergencies call for quick action

by Wesley Witten

For those who witnessed last week the fellow CNC student who passed out in the field in front of school, the student is all right and back in class. It was a shock to me being on the spot when it happened because I did not know what to do. The following article should help students know what to do should another emergency arise.

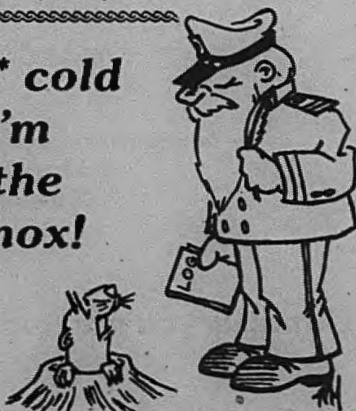

If a person should become unconscious in your presence, and if you have no prior medical training, the best and fastest thing to do is to call an ambulance, according to Captain John Capehart, Chief of Security at CNC. He suggests calling an ambulance directly, because if someone came to the Campus Police first, the Police would only, in turn, call an ambulance.

There are trained medical personnel on the campus, but Capehart suggested that it could take time to locate them. If the need should arise, there are stickers with emergency telephone numbers on most telephones on campus. If there are any other types of problems, the police desk is located in the main entrance of the Campus Center.

The State of Virginia does have "Good Samaritan" laws which will protect people from lawsuits if they try to help an injured person and that person should die.

If you know what the problem is, go ahead and render first aid, but never try to aid a person if you do not know what you are doing; you could put that person in a worse position than he was in without your help.

"It's too !&# cold out there! I'm waiting for the vernal equinox!"

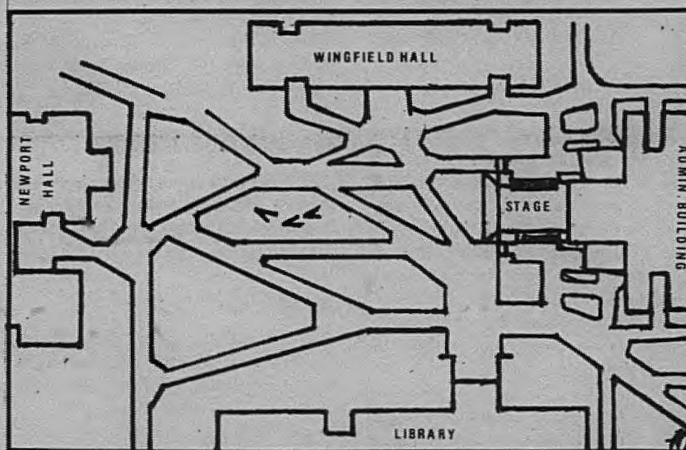

ROTC scholarships won by several CNC cadets

Headquarters, U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command, Fort Monroe, recently announced winners of three- and one-year U.S. Army ROTC Scholarships, including two CNC students: Brad Dunkin, a sophomore, and Lance Wilson, a senior. If accepted, the scholarships will entitle them to receive payment for all tuition, fees, lab fees, textbooks, and supplies, as well as a $100 per month subsistence allowance (not to exceed ten months per school year). Upon graduation and successful completion of ROTC advanced camp, they will receive commissions as officers on active duty with the Army.

This announcement marks the close of the 1980 scholarship competition which saw a remarkably successful year for students of CNC and the host detachment at William and Mary in nationwide competition for three-, two-, and one-year scholarships. In the three-year competition, on 12 applicants, seven were winners. All six applicants were successful in winning two-year scholarships. In the one-year competition, Lance Wilson won a scholarship, while Vic Southern, another senior, and Rob Oliver, a senior at William and Mary, were identified as alternates. There are currently five scholarship cadets attending CNC.

A major new initiative will be undertaken this year which allows freshmen and sophomores who are not enrolled in ROTC to compete separately from enrolled cadets for three- and two-year scholarships. More scholarships are available for award and enrolled cadets will continue to compete as in the past. In addition, a scholarship has been "set aside" for award to a student at CNC as part of its new status as an Extension Center. Applications are now being taken with deadlines for two- and three-year scholarships of February 15 and April 15, respectively.

An outdoor stage is one of the changes planned for the courtyard enclosed by Newport Hall, Wingfield, the new administration building, and the library.

Outdoor stage a part of college schematic plan

by Patricia Nuckols

Outdoor concerts, plays, on-campus graduations—all will be possible upon completion of the outdoor theatre planned for the future. The theatre and some slight redesigning of the area between Wingfield, the library, Newport Hall, and the new administration building are part of the general schematic plan of the college.

The outline of the stage is visible since the new administration building took its final shape. It consists of a raised platform for maximum viewing throughout the area. The sides of the stage are embraced by plants and trees to hide those who are waiting to come on stage. The rectangular area extending from Newport Hall to the new building provides room for seating.

Flowering trees and plants will provide colorful scenery for this area. The schematic plan shows the existing flowering plants to be extended around the edges of the theatre area. Instead of grass, a different ground cover will be used between the theatre and the old administration building and also on some of the space behind the ships sculpture.

For informal gatherings and studying, students may wish to use benches placed alongside the theatre area buildings. If benches are used frequently, more permanent ones will be installed in various places around campus.

Due to lack of funds, however, the construction in this area will take longer to (Continued on page 2)

Computer Club

The Computer Club (ACM) will meet on Thursday, Feb. 12, at 12:15 p.m. in N-117. Interested students are welcome.

Alpha Chi

Alpha Chi National Honor Society will meet on Tuesday, February 12, at 12:15 p.m. in the Admiralty Room, Campus Center.

Outdoor People

For those who prefer to take a break from studies in the great outdoors, there are a number of ways to go. If you like company and the advantages of carpooling, you can join one of the local organizations.

The Peninsula Biking Association (PBA) has monthly meetings and rides every weekend which are listed in the newsletter, The Chainstay. You are welcome to come on rides whether you are a member or not. The Chainstay may be picked up at bikestores and is also posted on the bulleting board opposite G-230. A mere $3 sent to PBA, P.O. Box 5639, Newport News 23605, will make you an associate member and bring The Chainstay to your door. On the other side of the water, it's the TBA, P.O. Box 12254, Norfolk 23502. Both groups cater to every type of rider, beginner to racer.

The Tidewater Appalachian Trail Club has more than 200 members from both sides of the water and is involved in all sorts of activities. They maintain ten miles of the Appalachian Trail, are building a cabin, give educational talks, are mapping local day hikes, and are planning a trail to link Dismal Swamp to North Carolina. For information about a ride or directions to the monthly meeting Feb. 18, see the bulletin board.

There is a group called the Coastal Canoe Club, as well as a Carolina Canoe Club. Sue Gray Al-Salam can give you the name of a member. If you want to try a canvas kayak, Al-Salam owns one.

ENTERTAINMENT

CAC opens busy semester with top entertainment

by Ana Kimball

Despite the hurried pace of the "back to school" rush, students took the time to attend this semester's entertainment "openers." "Redbird" and "J.D. Black" performed January 28 and 30. The "Over-the-Hill-Gang"-sponsored events drew rather good-sized crowds. On February 4, the CAC opened their season with the "Bruce Olsen Band" and their version of "jock rock."

The remainder of the semester brings back some CNC favorites and introduces some new, yet accomplished, musicians. February 11 sees the return of "The All-Stars," the South's premier White Blues band. "Street Talk" features their version of jazz-rock on February 25. On March 4, the CAC introduces the "Bill Blue Band," billed in this region as "... one of the best if not the best, in the area."

March 11 brings back the "Brice Street Band" and the sounds of contemporary rock. CNC's favorite, "States," makes their return appearance on March 18 after completing their second album in Los Angeles. The "Harvey Dalton Auto Band" performs the sounds of country-rock on March 25. April 1 sees the introduction of the "Super Grit Cowboy Band" with the best known and best loved country rock tunes. "Snuff," one of the most sought-after acts in Virginia, appears April 8.

CNC's annual Springfest will be held the week of April 27-May 1. Activities include two daytime outdoor events and the sounds of the jazz band, "Skip Castro" on April 29. Plans for an outside all-night movie are in the making.

The final event planned by the CAC is a tentative "New Wave Night" featuring the "X-Raves" and "The Nerve," May 6.

It's obvious the CAC did more than vacation over Christmas break! This semester's package of entertainment offers an excellent variety of talent and music to please everyone.

cinema scope

by David Woodford

Recently on the Merv Griffin Show (forgive me but there was absolutely nothing else on the TV), I happened to catch an interview with Jane Fonda. She was relating to Merv what a zany time her new film 9 to 5 was.

Well, Jane must not only be getting older, but also senile at the same time. The only true laugh I got out of the film was that it's supposed to be a comedy with social value. To put it bluntly, this film makes I Love Lucy look like it came from the pen of Jonathan Swift.

Truthfully, this film is on the same level as a sitcom pilot for one of the major networks.

What starts out as a nice piece of comedy in the first 20 minutes (some nice photography and direction) soon falls into cliché routines. The women (Jane Fonda, Lily Tomlin, and Dolly Parton) think they've poisoned their chauvinist boss (Dabney Coleman) and attempt to steal his corpse from the hospital. But guess what? The body they kidnap isn't their boss at all. Now that's really zany comedy and original, too!

But fear not; there are several redeeming qualities about this travesty. One is Dolly Parton. She is truly something to watch; she has a wonderfully natural feeling to her acting. It's true that the role is very easy for her to relate to, but her comic timing and delivery is very much in tune.

The other good point is Dabney Coleman as the boss of the operation. He is the ultimate chauvinist, which he plays to its extremes. When he's on screen, you forget about the rest of the film's problems. He gives a beautiful comedic performance in an otherwise mundane and pretentious film.

Otherwise, this film is something to fear, it's so bad! Lily Tomlin's talents are totally wasted. Very rarely in the film does she rise above the material. I felt for her.

But the worst thing about 9 to 5 is Jane Fonda. Her character is not a character at all. No, she pretends to be this person. Her character has never had a job before, and she has an obvious fear of facing the working world. But as Fonda plays her, it is nothing more than a bunch of nervous mannerisms she's picked up in her career. A squeaky voice and shaky hands is what she gives us in the beginning. Then as she

Lady Captains are 5-8 with last week's split

by David Bean

The Lady Captains finished their first week of play in the new semester and they came away even. Last Friday, Jan. 30, they traveled to Lynchburg to taken on Liberty Baptist, and came away cold. Play in the first half can best be indicated by the half time score of 30-18, Liberty Baptist.

"It was a game that everyone thought was going to be easy and it wasn't," says Susan Walthall, coach of the Lady Captains. The first half shooting percentage was 24 percent, while the second half was a little better at 33 percent. Linda Richardson had a game high of 16 rebounds and 11 points. Gloria Freeman had ten points and Benita Coker put in six.

"The game was tougher than we had thought it to be," Walthall said. "We couldn't buy a basket if we had to. Most of our scoring came from lay-ups, and we missed a great deal of those." The end result was the Lady Captains' eighth loss of the year, 62-45.

Saturday night against Eastern Mennonite was a different story altogether. The Lady Captains immediately went on the offensive, putting in baskets where the night before, there had been none. All this hard work resulted in a ten-point lead at the half, 33-23. Eastern Mennonite was determined not to make this easy at all. CNC saw their ten-point half time lead almost vanish, thanks to EM's Dawn Markier, who hit 19 of her 21 points in the second half. Patty Kelliher replied by putting in 10 of her 16 points too to wipe it out.

"Our defense was in a slump the last couple of games, and Saturday night, they seemed back on the right track. If our defense is aggressive during a game, the offense will also start to become aggressive," says Walthall.

The Lady Captains went on to defeat EM, 59-55. Leading scorers for CNC were Kelliher (16), Richardson (14), and Coker (8). "We are having a tough time so far," stated Walthall, and the schedule proves it. "Six of our eight losses have come against Division I or II teams."

"We're also one of the shortest teams around, so we suffer a slight disadvantage there. The rest of the season is going to be very tough on us." The Lady Captains' record is 5-8 overall with a conference record of 3-2. They play at home Friday against Lynchburg at 5:30 p.m. and Saturday against Bridgewater at 2:00 p.m.

DIAC champs get set for season

January 26 marked the start of the 1981 Indoor/Outdoor Track season at CNC. The Captains will seek to defend their DIAC Championship for the fourth consecutive year. All persons interested in participating this spring, please see or contact Coach Vince Brown in Ratcliffe 109A any afternoon at 4:00 p.m. Sprinters, jumpers, distance runners, and weightmen are needed.

Captains' victories give Vaughan 200th career win

by David Bean

Good things come to those who wait, and the Captains' Coach Bev Vaughan proved that waiting pays off. Last week, Vaughan also got his 199th and 200th career victories. To a lot of people, it's enough to start building legends around, but not Vaughan. "I'm more glad for the team and the college with these victories than for myself," said Vaughan.

Saturday's game against Virginia Wesleyan saw a different Captain squad as far as attitude was concerned. "We've been very inconsistent this season, and it has been a factor in our play." The game against Hampden-Sydney last Wednesday, Jan. 28, was another game in which the Captains found themselves having to go into overtime to win. They won, 69-64, but it was a game in which the inconsistency Vaughan spoke of was present. Although down by two at the half, 33-31, CNC seemed to be in control all the way. At the end of the second half, it was all tied up at 54. When the overtime was done, CNC, with the help of Otis White, who got eight of his 23 points in overtime, came out on top, 69-64. Wendell Moore had 14 points and five rebounds, while Brian Lyon had 11 points. Lyon was to be a factor in the next game against Virginia Wesleyan.

In Saturday night's game against Virginia Wesleyan, there was no lack of enthusiasm from anyone on the squad, or from the fans, who came all the way from across the water to cheer on their Captains. A low scoring game all the way around, it was still very exciting. With a half time score of 22-22, the Captains began to press their attack again and again. It started to pay off as the defense became tighter than before. Lyon had covered Virginia Wesleyan's big man Lonnie Blow with a blanket all night long. Blow, who usually averages 23.1 points a game, ended up with only 16. Lyon had 14 points and a rebound, but his job was done. Otis White put in 14 points, including the game winner with three seconds left on the clock. The main excitement was not so much that White had put it in, but who passed it to him. After much discussion, Jeff Thomas was awarded the assist, and thus sealed their victory, 54-52.

The Captains' record is now 12-7 overall and 6-2 in the Dixie Conference. Friday, the Captains are home against Methodist, and Saturday they play host to St. Andrews. Coach Vaughan also commented on the effect that the fans from CNC had on his players. "I feel that they were just outstanding in their support of the team and that they were a major part of the victory. It was very good to have them there."

Homecoming begins with the voting . . .

by Kim Fizer

The nominations have been made and only the voting remains for choosing the 1981 Homecoming King and Queen. Voting for your choice will take place today, February 5, and tomorrow, Friday, February 6.

Ballots this year may be obtained at the Campus Center Information Desk. A valid CNC ID is needed before a ballot will be given to a student. After making your choice, return the ballot to the desk. Friday evening after the balloting has been completed, John McCaughey, Director of Student Life, and Greg Jackson, Chairman of the Campus Activities Committee, will count the votes. Last year the ballots were printed in the Captain's Log. McCaughey advocates this year's method as a means of eliminating ballot box stuffing. On Thursday and Friday, a student will be able to vote only once.

Each club and organization on campus was asked to participate in the Homecoming Court. Deadline for nominations was Friday, January 26. The students nominated by their respective clubs are as follows:

Ben Farrah and Karen Richardson, AKPsi

Herbert Charity and Denise King, AKA

Ignacio Novo and Anne-Marie Rainville, OTHG

Vernon Green and Dee Vee Tracey, Sigma Pi and Pi Kappa Sigma

Phil Roche and Debbie Pickering, Delta Psi

Wendell Moore and Debra Thomas, BSA

Nat Webb and Janet Beahm, the Buccaneer

Jim Miller and Cathy Chilton, the Sailing Club

Jeff Rountree and Kim Fizer, The Captain's Log

Keith Rathbone and Peggy Glasheen, Student Association

Mike Hogge and Cheri Trestrail, Pre-Law Association

Mark Maltby and Lena Torres, Music Club

These representatives will sit in a designated area in the stands during the CNC-Methodist game. At half time, the couples will be introduced by Lisa Cipriano, President of the Student Association.

The King and Queen will be crowned by Mr. Tom Johnson, President of the Alumni Association, and by President John Anderson.

The February 6 date for Homecoming was chosen after considering the CNC home game basketball schedule. Only two weekend dates were scheduled for the second semester. A weekend during Christmas break was the other choice.

McCaughey explains that previously "... basketball was the only sport at CNC." He would like to see Homecoming moved to fall during the soccer season. He further explains that the weather in the fall is less likely to be inclement than in February, when Tidewater seems to have its major bouts with snow and cold weather. However, McCaughey adds that Homecoming is a student event and that the students should decide when to have that event. He would abide by their decision.

The dance will be held Friday night starting at 10:00 p.m. at the Warwick Yacht Club. A D.J. will play a variety of music.

Admission to the dance and to the jazz trio concert is free. The concert will be in the cafeteria Saturday night after the game. The Pub also will be open. A parade is also scheduled for Saturday morning. The route extends from Todd Stadium to CNC.

The actual orchestra once led by Tommy Dorsey will entertain Sunday evening in the Campus Center Theatre. "This is a great opportunity for young people to hear the big-band music," encourages McCaughey. (In Europe, the music of the big-band era is being revived by the younger generation.)

The orchestra is under the leadership of Buddy Morrow. Featured singer will be Leif Pederson, who will perform the early hits of Frank Sinatra.

Tickets for the concert are on sale now at the Information Desk for CNC students, staff, and alumni. The general public will be able to buy the tickets February 6-8. The Information Desk will sell tickets on Saturday from 10:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m. Advance tickets are $6.00 per person. Price at the door is $7.00.

Elevator between floors

Picture this: Ralph Average Student is taking his calculus exam. He rushes through it in 30 minutes so that he can make it to his Session A summer school class which starts on the same day. He hands the exam to his professor uneasily because he knows that this exam takes at least three hours to complete correctly. He swallows the dreaded thought of an "F" like a raw egg as he rushes to class. Which decision should he have made? Should he have taken his time with the exam, gotten a higher grade, and missed the first class of summer session physics? Or did Ralph do the right thing--rush his exam, sacrifice his grade, and go straight to his new class?

It's a dumb decision, caused by poor planning and wasted time management. As a person who has occasionally--and inadvertently--scheduled two classes for the same time on the same day, we can attest to the fact that poor planning makes life difficult. But this time the planning isn't Ralph's fault.

The fault is in the college catalogue, which lists the dates for exams as May 18-May 23. Directly below this is the schedule for summer classes: "May 18 - 'A' Session Begins," it states. Understandably, a good many people finish exams early in the week, but very few have them completed before exams even begin! Even for a very remarkable student, this expectation is too great!

Picture the pre-semester rush going on during the exam week rush. And then imagine the people caught between it. The whole thing is sort of like a man caught in an elevator between floors.

Into the pit, endlessly falling

Ralph is really upset. His girlfriend Claudette, in her little Renault, fell into one of those potholes at the front exit of the Campus Center parking lot. He hasn't seen her since. She avoided the first two really wheel-chugging holes, but upon swerving past them, she fell into the third one, which was hiding around a corner. She should have been warned; just yesterday her friend Tina had fallen into one in the back part of this parking lot and tore out the transmission from her Datsun.

When are these holes going to be repaired? If memory serves us, these holes are the ghosts of the same holes that haunted us last semester. Somebody had better get on the stick before a motorcyclist or bicyclist--or even a motorist--is injured in one of those holes.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

Sunday, January 11, CNC held its semi-annual graduation ceremony. This would mark my last official dealings with the school I had transferred to in 1978. Not unlike anything else that CNC does, it was first class. This came as no shock to me for everything about CNC had always been done with a professional yet friendly attitude that only an outstanding administration, faculty and staff such as the one at CNC would be capable of.

Never before have I encountered such a positive attitude, willingness to help and cheerful atmosphere at any other institution of any type, whether it be academic or place of employment. CNC, you've been wonderful. Thank you.

I'd also like to praise the Biology Department for the tremendous support, hours of extra help and excellent preparation imparted to me for the graduate program in which I'm now enrolled.

Sincerely,
 Peter J. Adams

newsprint. His opening quote refers to "100 cardboard figures." I have not heard this saying in four years of association with Greek organizations nor could I find another soul who had. Thus, I will not expound upon the ignorance of the statement. second, he states, "I stand firmly straddling [sic] the line," "autonomous" to choosing sides. Why then, sir, would you use the following four of five paragraphs to abuse the Greek system.

We do not require "a few words in our defense," as our actions clearly speak for us. It was the brothers of Snob Pi, you recall the ones with the "holier than thou" attitude, who scrubbed 600 potatoes. Then early the next morning donned [sic] white shirts and ties, and served guest, faculty [sic] and our fellow students at the president's inauguration [sic]. This same group of Greek aristocrats have planted trees, washed cars and performed other tasks on campus and in the community. When sir, may I ask was the last time you sanded and painted benches for the school?

Dear Editor,

Mr. Byrn's letter [Ed.'s Note: "Crow's Nest" column, December 4 issue] on Greek Societies was expected, if not overdue. It seems most staff writers feel it their duty to inform the student body on the pitfalls of fraternities at least once a year. It is a shame that Mr. Byrn's first attempt was little more than a waste of

Mr. Byrn, I am strongly convinced your "fraternal experience" lies in viewing Animal House twice at The Village. I am both hurt and insulted by parts of your letter. There are no "artificial friendships" in my fraternity. Only a deep and [sic] honest love for each other. I feel it is this love, this friendship, that "non-

Well, my personal choice for President is at the helm and the United States is not sponsoring a peacetime draft, experiencing rampant inflation rates, or fighting Moslems, so I believe that the next four years will be prosperous (I would be willing to concede that anything would be an improvement over the last four years).

Even though many students already have begun to make their reservations at the Hotel Toronto, the warmonger picture drawn of our new President is not materializing.

With the moral but thoroughly incompetent President-ex gone from the scene, the country should once again experience economic gain and elevated prestige under a tough Reagan Administration.

What is the importance of prestige? Ask any economic expert, and he will tell you that the gauge of worldwide confidence in the United States significantly determines the worth of the "Yankee Dollar." Just as a definite correlation exists between a raise in pay followed shortly by a tax increase, so exists this confidence/worth economy.

Reagan's promise of cutting waste and unnecessary manpower from federal operations was no joke, as the unemployment line in Washington swelled with ex-bureaucrats of all echelons who weren't spared the ax. Even though the new federal hiring freeze may affect many jobs, the ones that have been deleted from the federal payroll weren't ever really important enough to warrant funding. I realize that if I were dependent on some government aid, I would be upset, but our new President, luckily enough, does not bow to pressure from special interest groups who are concerned only with their own welfare instead of the country's.

Times will be hard, but that is because the new administration will be releasing industry and citizens alike from the grips of an interfering and faceless government that has increased its role in regulating and monitoring private concerns until they have become a hindrance to progress and advancement. The new administration is not proposing anarchy, just simple and unregulated freedom.

Americans have made a choice to get the government out of our private lives and to stop throwing money at our problems. Given a chance, Reagan has the plan to straighten out our domestic and foreign ills.

Want to be the most popular professor on campus? Then don't select your next textbook from Gucci Press. I am simply staggering at the cost of one single text. Does the bookstore get a piece of the action, or is this strictly a Mafia operation? Either trees have grown awfully expensive or someone out there is making a killing, me being one of the dead! If it weren't for the college book swaps and exchanges, we all would be begging to pay for school. Remember when you used to worry about tuition?

committed people" resent, not our involvement.

Mr. Byne [sic], it is this love and dedication toward each other that will keep this fraternity alive. Sigma Pi will be on this campus long after you and your papermate have vanished. That sir, is something for you to think about.

Ronnie Sloan

Mr. Byrn replies...

Mr. Sloan,

If the Captain's Log staff writers have constantly pointed out the "pitfalls of fraternities" then something must be amiss with the organizations.

As for the trite attacks upon my character, I will not bandy words with someone I do not know. Hereafter, please heed this good advice.

Had I chosen to "abuse the Greek System," my comments would not have been nearly as reserved or confined; believe it when I say I chose no side. I would suggest that you re-read my column without taking immediate offense; specifically recall that paragraph which states, "No doubt about it, without the fraternities and sororities this campus would suffer severe social and extracurricular setbacks." Also, please notice that most of your anger is directed at direct quotations from persons I have interviewed—not my opinions.

Strangely enough, I have noticed that no one from any fraternal organization has answered my charge of discrimination; I wonder why?

As for my Papermate, don't worry, they make refills....

begins to get the hang of the job, she becomes a real working woman! And the hand begins to play!

It's unfortunate that this movie has made a huge success at the box office. I guess moviegoers have gotten desperate. I think that's why I saw it: desperation.
