Stuckey Directs Minority Program

By Lorraine Rand
staff writer

The Female Minority Adult Learners Program at CNC is a project to recruit, retain, and improve academic performance for black female adult learners. Grace Stuckey, Assistant Professor of Sociology and Social Work, directs the program, which is intended to supplement equal opportunity efforts under way within the CNC Student Recruitment and Retention Plan and the CNC Transition Project.

CNC serves a metropolitan area with a black population of approximately 30 percent. The college enrollment of black students has averaged 10-11 percent the last five years. The percentage of black students who remain and graduate from CNC has lagged below the enrollment average by approximately three percent, fixing black CNC graduates at 7.6 percent. Due to this small graduating percentage, blacks are under-represented in the pool of citizens that CNC sends into the community.

According to Stuckey, the adult learner, or mature student, is defined as someone older than the traditional-aged college student, and someone returning to, or having already returned to school after leaving the classroom to assume adult roles and responsibilities.

The black female adult student does not relinquish her life responsibilities when she returns to the classroom, however. Whether she is a part-time or full-time student, she must continue the roles of wage earner and parent while furthering her education. The project intends to direct attention to the unique problems of the mature student.

Stuckey said she bases the program on her educational experiences as a mature student. "I sought out like students and formed peer groups. We talked about what it was like to be in college and not be eighteen."

As project director, part of Stuckey's job is to organize and conduct workshops for potential students. Workshops are arranged through black community service sororities, black church groups, women's clubs, and black civic organizations. "The purpose of the workshops," said Stuckey, "is to demystify college." The workshops include information about returning to school, shopping for an appropriate school, and preparing to assume student responsibilities.

The Female Minority Adult Learners Program also provides on-campus services such as academic assistance, and support and resource services. Academic assistance is provided through a program of academic consultation and peer tutoring. Support and resource services include college orientations for incoming students, and their families, workshops on time management, study techniques, stress management, test-taking, and personal adjustment; and self-help and peer support groups.

According to Stuckey, there is also a social side to the program: "We are a very different peer group, so we plan activities where we can all go and not feel different. I believe very strongly in the project, and believe that the college is committed to it. The college has been behind me in every aspect of the project." Although the program is for minority students, Stuckey said she is here to talk to everyone. "I have an open-door policy and I look forward to a long relationship with the school."

ROTC Awards presented at ceremony

By Beth Emerson
staff writer

On Monday, Oct. 28 at 3 p.m., adjacent to the soccer field, the CNC ROTC held its Reserve Officer Training Corps Fall Award Ceremony for 1985.

The ceremony recognized cadets who have exceptional achievement both in academics and Military Science studies, and who have demonstrated leadership traits within the cadet corps. According to Garrett Fisher, Master of Ceremonies, "These young men and women are among the finest students to be found on our nation's campuses, and the honors which they are about to receive are well-deserved."

The first award, the Brett Lassiter Memorial Award, was presented by Mrs. Lassiter in memory of her son, a former CNC ROTC student, to cadet Jonathan M. Kashouty.

Dr. John Anderson, president of CNC, presented the Distinguished Military Science Award, selected on the basis of excellence in all academic areas. Recipients of this award were cadets Jonathan M. Kashouty, Lisa G. Hunt, Kurt E. Allebach, and David B. Crum.

Dr. Richard Summerville, vice president for Academic Affairs, presented the Scholarship Award, a three-year scholarship of $8,000, was presented to cadet Cynthia Stein.

Mr. James Eagle, vice president of Financial Affairs, presented the 300 Club Award, given for a maximum score of 300 on the Army Physical Readiness Test. Cadets Jonathan M. Kashouty, Robert J. Lehman, Michael R. Radcliff, and Debra C. Woodard attained the score of 300 on their tests.

Dr. Charles Behmyer, vice president of Student Affairs, presented the Airborne School Completion Certificates, from Ft. Bragg, N.C., to cadet Steven R. Clopper, and from Ft. Benning, Ga., to cadets Robert J. Lehman and James Parker.

Dr. Jovett Powell, dean of the School of Letters and Natural Science, presented the Military Proficiency Award for Outstanding Performance at Advanced Camp to cadets Jonathan M. Kashouty and Lisa G. Hunt.

Dr. Robert Durel, dean of the School of Social Science and Professional Studies, presented the Reconde Badge to cadets Kurt E. Allebach, Steven R. Clopper, John B. Gill, Keith D. Holloman, Donald R. Johnson, Fontaine R. Johnson, Jonathan M. Kashouty, Robert J. Lehman, Debra C. Woodard, and Michael R. Radcliff.

Keith McLoughland, dean of Admissions, presented a certificate of Achievement for Outstanding Performance while attending the Cadet Troop Leadership Training Program, to cadets Jonathan M. Kashouty and Kurt E. Allebach.

Lieutenant Colonel Coates, Professor of Military Science, presented the Honor Cadet Award for cadets who ranked number 2-21 on the Advanced Course Order of Merit List, the Company Honor Cadet, and the Platoon Honor Cadet Award to Jonathan M. Kashouty.

Colonel Voke, Area IV Commander, 1st ROTC Region, presented to Jonathan M. Kashouty the Area Commander Individual Award. This trophy was presented to the top cadet in Area IV based on outstanding performance at Advanced Camp. Area IV comprises the states of Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia. Kashouty ranked number four in the 1st ROTC Region, which encompasses cadets from 111 colleges and universities.

The ceremony ended with traditional military pagentry including a pass and review. LTC Coates commented, "It's not easy to be the best and to work hard, but you've proven that it can be done." A reception in the Campus Center followed the ceremony.

Dear Editor,

I really enjoyed the article on Dr. Douglas Gordon that was published in the October 9 edition of The Captain's Log. Will we be seeing more on Dr. Gordon or other professors? I would really like to know if Dr. Gordon "seizes the moment".

Signed—

Dear Editor,

Last Saturday I was privileged to attend a performance of "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof". It was most enjoyable. The casting of the characters was excellent — all of the characters were so believable, really making the people and the story come alive. Beth Williams did a marvelous job portraying Maggie, the frustrated cat. Lori Paschall was marvelous as Big Mama. She was perfect in the way she portrayed this old southern woman. She reminded me so much of an old, proper southern lady that used to be a neighbor of mine. Leaving the theatre after the show, I felt proud to be a student here at CNC and glad that such talent and such a wonderful performance was available and a part of the college.

CAREER COUNSELING AND SERVICES WORKSHOP

The Office of Counseling and Career Services is pleased to sponsor its annual informational workshop on obtaining employment with the Federal Government Thursday, Nov. 21, at 1:30 p.m. Ms. Susan Holland, Staffing Specialist from the Fort Monroe Civilian Personnel Offices, will be the featured speaker.

Topics of interest will include appropriate procedures in the federal application process and suggestions for working through bureaucratic red tape.

Ms. Holland will discuss coming changes in the Office of Civilian Personnel, as well as the establishment of the Peninsula Civilian Personnel Support Agency, and its impact on services currently offered by the Norfolk Office of Personnel Management.

Information on vacancy announcements, types of appointments, required examinations and procedures for rating applicants will be addressed. Help in completing the Standard Form 171 will be offered, as will a question-and-answer period for individuals with specific concerns.

The workshop is open to all interested CNC students, faculty, staff, and alumni. A $3 (cash) materials fee is required for participation in the Federal Employment Seminar. Early registration is recommended due to limited seating. For further information and pre-registration, contact the Office of Counseling and Career Services in CC-146 (599-7047).

WHERE ARE THE VOLUNTEERS?

We know you are out there somewhere — hiding out in the library, running from tree to tree to cover your getaway from those early classes, and even being so bold as to try to blend in with the fixtures in the Campus Center. CNC wants you! Not for petty things such as parking tickets or even for skipping that lecture because your "alarm didn't go off." We want you to be a student volunteer.

It is easy to sit around and complain about the lack of events on campus or, when an event is put on, say that it wasn't well planned or attended. But how many times could these situations be changed if more people would simply get involved? The success of a campus event is not a matter of magic; it involves careful planning, hard work by more people, continuous guidance towards a common goal, and it takes volunteers to bring it all together.

Of course by now the gears are turning in your mind and you are asking yourself, "Self, why don't I volunteer?" If you fall into this category, here are some possible reasons why volunteering could be more than worth the effort: 1) Resume builder — When you graduate, someday, prospective employers are going to look at what you did in school besides go to class. How involved you were in college says something about how involved you will be in the workplace, and a student who took active part in life on campus is much more marketable than someone who only concentrated on academics. 2) Social contacts — Planning and working events is a great way to meet people and increase your visibility on campus, but more importantly gives you a chance to develop the skills necessary to interact and cooperate with others. 3) Compensation — We know your time is valuable and in many cases, student volunteers are in some way compensated for their time. 4) Authority — Someone has to be in charge or control the situation. Can you handle the responsibility? 5) Personal reasons — Do you feel the need to contribute to something worthwhile? Do you have a talent that you feel can be useful such as artistic, organizational, or human relations skill? Do you want to feel part of something or possibly gain prestige. If you answered "Yes" to any of these questions, then find out where you are needed and participate!

Despite all these good reasons, a majority of students still do not volunteer. Many students simply lack the awareness of the need for volunteers, or do not know where they are needed. Others feel that they lack the knowledge or skill to join an organization, but this argument is just proof of the sad fallacy that it takes experience to do everything. Where do you think experience comes from? Other reasons for failure to volunteer are the fear of rejection and the fear of not being appreciated. These fears are unfounded; you are needed and wanted desperately! Some students feel that they do not have enough free time in their schedule to make a commitment while others want to go home after class. Granted, many students work while going to school, but we are not making unreasonable demands by asking for a little bit of your free time. If forty people put in one hour of work on a project, then isn't that the same as one person putting in a full work week? Every little bit helps and the more people the merrier.

We do not have all the answers, but hopefully we have at least enlightened you of the need for volunteers. We challenge you to give some of your time and effort to CNC. Not only will you be helping to enhance the social and cultural life on the campus, but you will be helping yourself as well. Here are some of the organizations which can use your help: Intramural Dept., Student Association, Campus Program Board, and the Captain's Log.

Adele Hornik was incorrectly quoted in the article titled "Students visit U. of R." Her quote should have been that "a judiciary council would serve the students as the Honors Council serves its members."

Faculty Recital Next Thursday

CNC will present a faculty recital Thursday, Nov. 14, at 7:30 p.m. in the Campus Center Theatre. Mary Matthews, Terrence Laufer, Ruth Easterling and John Boyles will perform.

Matthews and Laufer will sing selections from Defalla, Faure, Villa-Lobos, and Rossini's "The Barber of Seville." They will perform the famous "Largo" and "Una Voce poco Fa," Figaro and Rosina's arias, and follow with their duet "Dunque io son." Easterling and Boyle will accompany them, on piano and guitar, respectively.

Matthews teaches voice at CNC while maintaining a full schedule of private students in her home studio. She received her Bachelor of Music degree, cum laude, from Bucknell University in vocal performance, and has continued studying the last six years with Dr. Genevieve McGiffert.

Matthews has performed frequently with Virginia Opera

Association, Virginia Choral Society, and the CNC Concert Choir.

Laufer, a baritone, is Minister of Music at Grafton Baptist Church. He received his Bachelor of Music degree from the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, and he also studies with McGiffert. Laufer has performed as soloist with both the Virginia Opera Association and the Virginia Choral Society.

Easterling and Boyles are members of CNC's music faculty. Easterling holds a Bachelor of Music degree from Winthrop College and a Master of Music degree from Indiana University. She recently returned from her European debut in a duet piano recital with her husband Glen. Boyles received his Bachelor of Music degree from VCU, where he is currently enrolled in a Master's degree program. He also teaches in the Newport News School System.

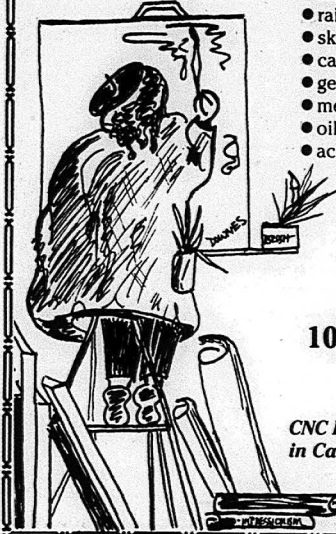

Mary Matthews will participate in the faculty recital, Nov. 14, 7:30 p.m., in the Campus Center Theatre.

Ramseur Concerts Opening Saturday

CNC will open its twelfth season of Ramseur concerts Saturday, Nov. 9, with a performance by the London Early Music Group. This will be the first Tidewater appearance of this internationally-acclaimed group.

At CNC the London Early Music Group will present a program entitled "English and Italian Music for the Theatre, Court, and Opera by Henry Purcell and the most fam'd Italian masters."

The flexible group has numbered up to 20 singers and instrumentalists for its large-scale recording projects for such labels as RCA, Archiv, Argo, Philips, Nonesuch, Saga and Hyperion. In its primary role as an early music touring ensemble, it numbers from six to ten.

James Tyler, founder and director of the group, began his career as a lutenist when he performed as guest soloist with the New York Pro Musica. In 1969, he joined both the Early Music Consort of London and the Musica Reservata. As composer/arranger, Tyler has provided music for several BBC television programs, including four productions in its series of the plays of Shakespeare.

Founded in 1976, the London Early Music Group's performing schedule has included the U.S., Great Britain, France, Italy, Germany, Austria, Spain and Sicily. Future plans include a series of ten recordings, "The Italian Cantata" from Luigi Rossi to Alessandro Scarlatti.

Future Ramseur concerts at CNC include Richard Goode, pianist, Jan. 11, An die Musik March 8, and Evelyn Lear, soprano, April 19. For reservations or ticket information call 599-7074, 9 a.m.-4 p.m. daily.

Car Safety Signs

An inexpensive reflective banner that asks passing drivers to "Call Police" and help the stranded motorist is available from the Los Angeles Commission on Assaults Against Women.

The reusable plastic banner is recommended as an important part of every car's safety equipment by many law enforcement agencies. The banner folds to fit inside the glove compartment. When a motorist has car trouble, all she or he needs to do is lock the car doors, get the banner out of the glove compartment, place it in the rear window (four corner stickers are provided), and wait for the police to arrive.

The signs can be ordered by sending a $4 donation per sign and 50¢ for postage and handling per sign to: Car Safety Signs, P.O. Box 48903, Los Angeles, CA 90048. Proceeds go to LACAAW's Rape and Battering Hotline and its other prevention programs.

Marine Corps Birthday Concert

Team Honus will face the Good ol' Boys in the championship game. Last weekend in the play offs, Team Honus faced I.P. Amgis, while the Good ol' Boys battled the Sandlot 69ers.

With the conditions less than ideal, unbeaten Team Honus and I.P. Amgis showed up early, and when the mud dried it was Honus 12-I.P. Amgis 8.

Honus drove deep into Amgis territory in the first quarter and scored on a Rick Comer run to lead 6-0. The Amgis receivers could have made the game more interesting but the slippery ball proved too much to handle.

Because of hard hands and a slick ball, the I.P. Amgis offense found it hard to move the ball.

The Honus defense pressured Amgis throughout the game, but when they did score it was too little, too late. Phil Winslow scored a touchdown for Amgis, and Bill Wescott added a two-point conversion, but an insurance TD by Rick Comer in the third quarter made it 12-8. With a strong running offense and a very stingy defense, Honus goes into the championship still unbeaten.

In the second play off game, the Good ol' boys took advantage of the grim field conditions and defeated the Sandlot 69ers. Good ol' Boy QB Todd Repass, in his multi-colored shorts, tossed two TD passes, one to John St. George and the other to Mike Cooke.

The Sandlot 69ers' offense never really got on the right track, but when they did, late in the fourth quarter, QB John Hamilton found Rob Jozwiak in the end zone for the TD and the two-point conversion.

Mike Cooke of the Good ol' Boys also ran back an interception for a touchdown, and possibly tied a CNC intramural record of four interceptions in one game.

Captains split recent games

The CNC Captains traveled to Randolph-Macon College last Wednesday and hosted Roanoke College this past Saturday. The Captains split their games, losing to Randolph-Macon 4-1 and defeating Roanoke 1-0.

Junior Carter scored the only goal against Randolph-Macon on an assist from Andrew Crockwell, while Gerard Mosley, assisted by Chris Frazier, scored the winning goal against Roanoke.

Coach Seth Roland expressed his displeasure with the performance of the Captains against Randolph-Macon. "We played without intensity, heart or intelligence. We deserved to lose that game. We had it in our hands to clinch first in VISA (Virginia Intercollegiate Soccer Association), but we didn't, so we now have to wait and see if we make the play offs."

Roland went on to say he was very pleased with the way the Captains played against Roanoke. "The guys played with the intensity they did in the first half of the season. This wasn't an easy game because of the condition of the field being muddy, and puddles everywhere. Andrew Crockwell and Jeff Sahms had two very difficult assignments. They had to mark two players with a combined total of 27 goals for the season. Karl Greaves played well and in a manner that typifies him, all heart. Karl is the ruler or yard stick that you use to measure heart. It's a shame that he had to be taken off of the field on a stretcher with two broken bones in the lower part of his leg with 18 minutes left to play. He was a big part of our success this year. Tom Hammon was in his last home game as a CNC player. He's the first player to play all four years for me. Tom has grown in his maturity, heart and character during his high years at CNC," concluded Roland. Sr. fullback, Tom Hammond, expressed his feelings about his last home game this way: "I hate last games, but I appreciate the fan support. The players wanted to finish the season with a couple of victories. We started the season well and wanted to end it in the same manner. Lately, we haven't played with the desire to win as a team, but the guys regained that desire to win this game. A portion of the game was dedicated to Karl and myself, for playing with heart our last home game. If we had 21 guys with the heart of Karl, we'd play with a lot more enthusiasm and heart." Hammond went on to say, "I'm not into the professional aspect of soccer - I have my education to think of. I'd rather make my money with my education and keep soccer as a love. I play soccer because I love the sport, not because I have to earn my money with it."

The Captains travel to Methodist College Wednesday for their final regular season game.

Lady Captains Finish 1985 Season

By Hector Gonzales

The Dixie Conference Volleyball Tournament was held this past weekend at St. Andrews College, where the Lady Captains ended their '85 volleyball season with a heartbreaking loss to host St. Andrews College.

In Friday's first round game the Lady Captains breezed over North Carolina Wesleyan by the scores of 15-11, 15-10, and 15-2.

Saturday's semi-final opponent was arch-rival UNC-Greensboro, which they beat in an electrifying five set match games, 15-13, 9-15, 10-15, 15-2, and 15-12.

With only 30 minutes rest between games the Lady Captains had to regroup and play their final round match against St. Andrews College for the conference title and an outright berth to the NCAA Tournament.

The squad ended up losing this match in straight sets 9-15, 10-15, 8-15, but according to Coach John Baughman the team was not mentally and physically prepared to face St. Andrews so soon. "We were emotionally drained from our previous match with UNC-Greensboro."

The team however may still receive an invitation to the NCAA Tournament based on their strong performance during the season.

CNC had two players named to the All Tournament Team, Tina Sage and Michelle Masco. Also receiving honors were Dawn Terry named to the first team All Conference, Tina Sage 2nd team All Conference and Angie Cook named honorable mention.
