Over-the-Hill Gang takes Homecoming crown

Donna Newsome
Homecoming Queen

by Jo Whistler

Although serious planning for the Homecoming festivities began only two weeks ago, and in spite of an obvious lack of publicity for the event, Homecoming '77 was a relative success.

Rick Trotman
Homecoming King

At 5:30 p.m. Saturday, the Young Democrats and the Over-the-Hill Gang co-sponsored the Bonfire which was to begin the Homecoming Events. This bonfire, which was held behind Wingfield Hall, was the least successful of all the Homecoming festivities. There was a very poor turnout and a very strong wind that made a blazing fire impossible. It did glow, however; it was said to have been very radiant amid the biting cold winds.

During half-time at the game between CNC and Methodist, the Homecoming Court was presented. The King and Queen, Rick Trotman and Donna Newsome, were from the Over the Hill Gang. Unfortunately, the Queen could not be present. The King of '77, Rick Trotman, received a lovely crown and a bouquet (also a kiss on the cheek from the King of '76) in lieu of his absent queen.

The rest of the court were: Bernie Huff and John Underwood of the Freshman Class; Lynn Ringen and John Sellenberg of the Sophomore Class; Laura Futrell and Steven Dore of the Junior Class; Katherine Louis and Mike Guida of AKPsi Fraternity; Brenda Wilson and Art Thatcher of Pi Kappa Sigma Sorority; Mary Matthews and Jeff Cahoon of the Soccer Club; and Micki Thackston and Mike Thaxton from the Cheerleading squad.

Mickey Mesic, president of the Junior Class and a CAC coordinator, presided over the festivities and acted as Master of Ceremonies. Assisting Mr. Mesic were John Schindel and Bill Wirt, who handed bouquets to the ladies of the Court and also to the unattended King. The prize, which went to Mr. Trotman and Miss Newsome, was dinner and entertainment for two at the Cabaret Room of the Jolly Lobster Restaurant in Newport News. Homecoming festivities were co-sponsored by the Campus Activities Committee and the Alumni Association.

Following the game in which the Captains defeated Methodist, a dance was held in the Women's Gym. Music was by the Gas House Gang. The dance was also sponsored by the CAC and the Alumni.

Captains beat Methodist 53-52

By David Nichols

Whatever myths or confusion that might have been invoked about a Christopher Newport basketball team having trouble beating a North Carolina College team were quickly diminished this past weekend as the team blatantly smashed one club Friday night and eeked out a must game on Saturday night. In both events, the Captains showed good maneuverability and for the most part key shot selection.

But let's back up for a moment before we look at the weekend's games. There were three games this past weekend and all deserve to be noted as to their merits.

Wednesday night the team traveled to Bridgewater College for a meeting which perhaps was CNC's best game on the backboards this season. In an earlier game this season at home, the Captains had already beaten Bridgewater by a score of 75-71. In that game they had had trouble defending against a hot shooting Barney Reilly of the Eagles squad but Wednesday night, some key defensive alignments by the Captains held Mr. Reilly to only 6 points for the entire evening. In the rebounding department, the Captains came up with an evening high of 43 rebounds. Dale Travis collected 17 of those rebounds and scored 14 points. High scoring honors for the night went to the Captains' Steve Brown with 23 points. Also in double figures for the Captains was Bill Hopke with 12 points. The Captains led at the half by 10, 31-21 and went on to score a convincing win with the final tally reading 73-60.

The Cagers opened a two night home stand in friendly Ratcliffe Gymnasium Friday with a thorough thrashing of St. Andrews College, 94-64, thus reversing an earlier defeat by the Knights just two weeks before.

Coach Bev Vaughan in his post game remarks said, "We cut their inside game out and that make the difference. We also out rebounded them 54-27 and our balance was super with 10 of 12 players scoring." The Captains did do everything in a SUPER way having had five players in double figures for the night. Leading scorer was John Paden with 18 points (also 13 rebounds), followed by Dennis Casey with 15, Steve Brown with 14, Stanley Ham with 12, and Dale Travis with 11 points (also 10 rebounds).

Undoubtedly the big game for the Captains was Saturday night as again they were out to avenge an earlier season (North Carolina team) loss to Methodist College. The Captains came out the victor, 53-52, but not before the game was to go into overtime and the defense-minded Captains shutting off some late heart-stopping Methodist shots.

The setting was perfect. It was Homecoming weekend. The new Board of Visitors of the college was invited to the game, the Captains' crew was present and all the returning alumni made the game's outcome seem even more important.

It started out slow with the first personal foul not coming until almost 6 minutes had passed into the first half as each team sort of felt each other's strong and weak points. The first half remained basically 20 minutes of deliberate ball handling and key shot selection with the Captains on top at intermission by a score of 24-23.

Neither team committed itself openly as to its superiority in the second half but it was clear that Christopher Newport had the slight edge in maneuverability and good shot selection. Patiently waiting until the right moment, the Captains erased a 44-40 lead by the Monarchs and went up by a score of 48-46 with 4:49 remaining in regulation time. This followed a four corners stall by the Monarchs which didn't seem to bother the Captains at all. They simply waited for a mishandled ball or a bad offensive strategy to capitalize on the Monarchs' mistakes.

Both teams went into a freeze for the final four minutes with the Monarchs' James McCrae tapping in a layup to knot the score at 48-48 with regulation time expiring.

In the five minute overtime period the Captains reeled off almost 2 minutes of the

Parking regulations

By Jo Whistler

Last semester, the administration declared a moratorium on parking tickets during the peak hours of 9 a.m. through 12 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. During these times, no tickets were issued.

That moratorium has not yet been renewed this semester and there has been a sharp increase in the number of parking tickets issued. (In recent days, as many as 50 tickets have been issued a day.)

John J. Sullivan, Director of Student Auxiliary Services, acknowledges the situation and hopes the moratorium will be reenacted so that only the most flagrant violators will be penalized. He is mainly concerned with persons who block roadways, firelanes, and fire hydrants with their cars. Mr. Sullivan mentioned regular violations by students and faculty who park their cars on the service road behind Wingfield Hall. No one should park on this road because of the passage of heavy trucks.

Students are now allowed to park on the exit road to Shoe Lane. There is a temporary gravel lot near the Vepco substation and a new lot is planned near the Radcliffe Gym. The long-range plan is a 250 space lot in the old soccer field behind Wingfield Hall.

First dance semi-success

By Adrienne London

The first dance of the semester took place at CNC on the 24th of January. Having not been to a dance in ages, the idea of reporting about one seemed interesting.

Arriving at CNC approximately five minutes before the dance, one noticed a small crowd and automatically assumed a dull evening was ahead. Harvest was the band, loud and proud. They also took breathers that lasted what seemed like a decade. About nine-thirty the crowds started in and the men took their usual place by the door, while the girls tried to look appealing. Soon the dance got rolling and the livelier people started running in and out (those who had over five beers), and dancing (spasmic attacks). There was one guy who fancied himself as a whirling dervish. It seemed he spun his partner around so much she had to sit out five sets to recollect her senses one at a time.

In between dances one got to talk to a few of the students. Mary Scott, a new student at CNC wanted to know if she really had to put her real age on the register. Jean-Claude Schindel commented on having a great time. Mary Matthews and a few other young ladies were busily observing the young men (surprising what women talk about when they get together). One young lady observed the debonair John Guida, better known in select circles as the "Italian Stallion" as being extremely handsome and a good dancer. His rhythmic sense was very good, which was more than can be said for the other dancers. Any sense couldn't have done some of the dancers any good.

All in all people seemed to enjoy themselves (especially the guy who slept through the entire function). The crowd didn't really begin to thin out before I left, which was a half-hour before the dance was over. The band played well and everyone got off the best they could. The first dance of the semester was basically a success with a large crowd. The dance never did get that lively but it did bring the students out.

Alpha Kappa Psi regional conference welcomed CNC females

The Mideast Regional Alpha Kappa Psi conference was held January 21-23 in Richmond. The University of Richmond Chapter hosted the conference attended by CNC, ODU, VPI, UVA, UNC at Charlotte, and Western Carolina.

Alpha Kappa Psi begins Rush

All business majors are invited to attend the first Pledge Coffee at 12:00 noon on Friday, February 4, in Room 233 in the Campus Center. Members of Alpha Kappa Psi will be here to answer questions and to tell you about our organization. We have an exciting semester planned and we hope you will drop by and let us tell you about it.

If you cannot attend this Pledge Coffee, another one will be held at 12:00 on Friday, February 11, in Room 233 in the Campus Center. If these dates are inconvenient and you are interested in pledging for Alpha Kappa Psi, please contact one of our members for details.

Delegates assembled from regional chapters to prepare for the National Alpha Kappa Psi Conference to be held in Atlanta in August of this year.

Katherine Louis, Mickey Mesic, Bev Bollinger, and Henry Jones (AKYs alumni) represented the Iota Pi Chapter in various committee meetings where resolutions were prepared to forward to National Headquarters.

This was the first Mideast Regional Conference held since female members were initiated into the fraternity. Katherine and Bev were the only visiting female representatives but found themselves in an extremely enthusiastic and cooperative atmosphere. Several brothers of other Chapters personally expressed the feeling that the active participation of Iota Pi females helped to demonstrate the concept that, just as in the fields of commerce and business administration, a diversity of ideas and individuals can be most helpful in the attainment of mutual goals. Brotherhood is a deeper spirit that transcends physical differences and can be exemplified by all brothers who cherish the aims and objectives of Alpha Kappa Psi.

Terror is the topic of new literature course

"The Literature of Terror and the Supernatural" is among the literature courses scheduled for the spring semester of the Office of Special Programs of the College of William and Mary. The course, taught by Lawrence Dotolo, will meet Mondays from 7 to 9 p.m. beginning February 7 at the Virginia Associated Research Campus in Newport News.

The class will investigate the psychological and aesthetic basis for the literature of terror, and will discuss such topics as psychokinesis, vampirism, and spirit possession. Students interested in the evolution of techniques of terror, from the Gothic novel to the modern film, are likely to find the course engaging.

The literary genres of the novel and short story are the main resources for the course. In addition, the instructor hopes to use a film or two and several television programs. Works to be studied in the course include Poe's "Selected Tales," Shelley's "Frankenstein," Stoker's "Dracula," Seltzer's "The Omen," Blatty's "The Exorcist," Stevenson's "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," and Levin's "Rosemary's Baby."

Register by telephoning William and Mary's Office of Special Programs in Newport News, 877-9231, Ext. 200, 238. Fee is $65., which includes all materials.

Blacksburg-College and university students from across the state are invited to gather at Virginia Tech, Friday to Sunday, Feb. 18-20, for the second Virginia College Volunteer Conference. The conference will be held at Tech's Donaldson Brown Center for Continuing Education.

"Students from the state's institutions of higher learning are the mainstays of a wide variety of volunteer programs. The students find time from their studies to work in the local communities with youth and elderly persons, contributing a great deal to the betterment of the locality where they reside while students," said conference coordinator Marsha Penn, of the State Office on Volunteerism.

The students, as well as the persons managing these programs, will be gathering for the conference which will feature 14 workshops. The topics will include starting a volunteer program; accountability and record-keeping; motivation of volunteers; recognition and reward systems; community college volunteerism; and Black community and volunteers.

The purpose of the workshop is three-fold, Ms. Penn said. "It is to highlight the many facets of student volunteerism in Virginia to share the experience of managers of volunteers and to gain renewed vigor for volunteerism, volunteer growth and program vitality."

Sponsors of the program are Virginia Tech through its YMCA program, Extension Division and student personnel office; the Blacksburg Voluntary Action Center; Washington and Lee University; Madison House; New River Community College; Southwest Community College; Tidewater Community College; George Mason University; Mary Baldwin College; College of William and Mary; Virginia College and the State Office on Volunteerism.

Cost for the program is $10 for all the workshops and meals. Participants may attend workshops only for a fee of $2. There also will be a place available for participants to stay if they wish to bring their own sleeping bags.

For more information, contact Marsha Penn, State Office on Volunteerism, 205 N. Fourth Street, (third floor) Richmond, Va. 23219.

Letters - Notices - Commentaries - Editorials

Is the CNC Bookstore a rip-off?

Dear Editor,

In the Captain's Log (January 17, 1977) an article appeared that criticized and questioned the operation of our campus bookstore. Unlike many students who took the article as the absolute truth, we decided to check the facts for ourselves and write a follow-up article that would support or oppose the previous article. We hope you will read the following paragraphs and decide for yourself either to support or protest the CNC bookstore. So now please read carefully the information we obtained from four local bookstores (chosen at random) concerning the cost and availability of school text.

We felt the place to start would be the bookstore that provided the main source of information for the attack on the CNC bookstore. This took us to the Coles (Coliseum Mall). Upon arriving we found a large collection of college, math, psychology, and history textbooks selling for 75 to 80 percent off regular price. Very Impressive!! But as we looked closer we found that these books were either out of print, old editions, or out dated. Also there was no great abundance of any of these text. At this point we decided we needed help in the textbook situation. When we asked the clerk, she explained to us that their textbooks are back-ordered from their own warehouse. She also went on to say that these books were either out of date, or out of print and were being sold to be used as reference or supplementary text in conjunction with the current text being used by the student. The book that has been in question for so long, "Experimental Psychology", was indeed selling for under $6.00. The clerk said that this was the first instance that she could recall, that a book they had for sale was still currently being used by the college. She said that it was one chance in a thousand that it had happened and in all probability would never happen again.

In response to the 44 schools failing to provide a list of text being used - it was not schools rather 44 departments a request was sent to. The request for such a list was so that the bookstore could order the books (if the books appeared on their special ordering list) from their warehouse. Here again note that the bookstore could not guarantee if they could get the book, or how many they could get, and that they could place the order only once.

Our last question for the clerk was, "if the school provided a list of textbooks currently being used and your bookstore ordered them through normal procedures what would the bookstore charge?" Her answer, "the same as the Christopher Newport bookstore."

We left Coles and visited three other bookstores to seek additional information. All of the stores explained that the cost of any current textbook purchased from their store would be the same price as the prices charged at the CNC bookstore. The reason for this is that all bookstores use a book called, "Books in Print", by R. R. Bowker Co. it comes in three or four volumes listing books by titles and authors. This book is used as a standard guide by all bookstores in pricing to verify book retail prices.

If you are wondering why most retail bookstores do not carry current textbooks it is because the profit margin is too small. That's right - the profit is too small. Textbooks are sold on a 20 percent profit margin while other books have a profit margin of 40 to 60 percent. So you can see that our bookstore has to take full advantage of their prices in order to be able to meet their own debts. Also, none of the bookstores we visited seemed interested in carrying textbooks because of the profit margin being so small and the market limited.

We feel since we had received the same answer to our questions from all four bookstores this article has a good base for support. We are not saying that if you look long enough you will not find a bookstore that will not sell given text cheaper than our bookstore, but it will be the exception.

So you see we do have a bookstore that supplies you with books at a fair and ethical price, its personnel also provides you that special attention to help with your ever present need for materials and texts. For these reasons we support the Christopher Newport Bookstore, its personnel and management. We hope you do also.

Sonny Harris
Bobby Clayton

What can we say?

Dear Bobby Clayton and Sonny Harris,

The article to which you refer was written neither to criticize nor question our Campus Bookstore, but to point out a very real situation in which some students have found themselves.

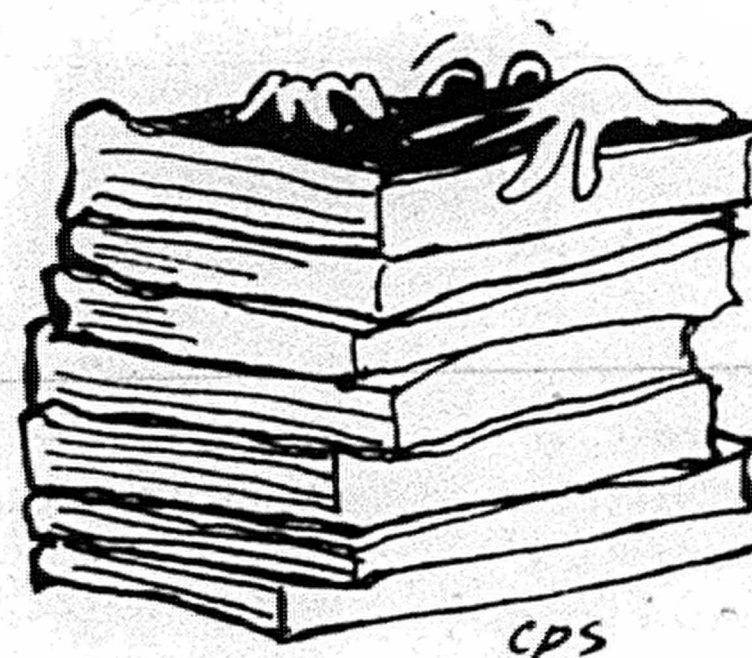

Follow-up investigation has shown the complete explanation for the Experimental Psychology price discrepancy and our recent article did point out that the Campus Bookstore has no leeway in pricing textbooks. However, this does not alleviate the pressure felt by those students who simply can no longer afford required courses due to combined costs of tuition and texts.

The article printed the truth about the urgency of the situation and was well warranted because of recent price protests from many students, several department heads and members of the Student Government. The article will have served a good purpose if it influences students not to blindly accept the situation, but to seek better answers. The answers may come through off-campus facilities or through influencing professors to require less texts.

At any rate, our job and our purpose is not to force solutions but rather to raise questions that must be answered by the College populace. Thank-you for the extra information you provided us about pricing books, all the information we recieved from Coles Bookstore was information recieved from the store manager...it was upon that interview that we based our article.

What is honor?

The honor system, what is it? How does it work? Who implements it?

The honor system of any school is, in reality, not a system. It is the individual effort of one person to commit himself/herself to one principle; that principle being complete honesty. Honesty includes such trivia as speaking only truth, partaking only of one's due, producing individual effort, and, of course, integrity.

If the word "system" is insisted upon, then the group of collective individuals practicing honesty would comprise the system. However, an honor system cannot be practiced unless all individuals included in the group practice honesty. When applied to a school, this "group" includes all of the students. Not some, all.

At any college, there should be no need of any type of "court" which must decide who cheated and who did not, who was honest and who was not. Unfortunately, we, the students of CNC, still have unsavory characters for whom this "court" is intended to judge. This court is usually comprised of a peer group.

It is, then, your peers who are forced to judge you, the cheater.

Well, then, let us use the system as it stands and purge our campus of the dishonest. That is, recognize the liars and cheaters (ugly words, are they not?) for what they are and take them to "court". These liars and cheaters reflect not only the ones who protect them because they are "friends," but they reflect upon the whole student body as well as the administration. This is not as it should be, but none-the-less that is how it is.

Some say that it only hurts the cheaters. This is untrue. It does hurt them, yet it also affects the rest of the students. How? Simple, look at how the class averages fluctuate when there is a cheater or a loose looker among you. If you do not want to learn the material, oh cheaters, get out of the class.

Now is the time for action, let CNC become not only a school of learning, but also a school where honesty, not convincing, is respected. A college where honesty and learning are on an equal par. Let us dispense, eventually, with these courts! It is up to you - an individual!

A versatile guitarist offers talent to CNC

By Michael Coburn

This last Friday night students and alumni of CNC were treated to another "heaping helping" of one of their favorite performers. The crowd was big, noisy and rowdy. Few really listened as they talked and partied, but all were glad to have their good friend back on stage.

Over the last two years Jeff Smith has sung and played for almost every major event at CNC. He has performed at the Octoberfest, Springfest, Wet T-shirt contest, special holiday functions and many others. He has volunteered free services for the Christopher Newport Young Democrats, the Outing Club, the

Over-the-Hill Gang Boosters Club and others. He has often been known to cancel outside engagements to work in the Pub for less money.

Jeff's story begins with a $23 Stella guitar for which he hounded his father after becoming interested in the Beatles. He took a few lessons and found himself bored so he dropped the lessons and bought himself an electric guitar and started playing "rock & roll". Jeff played in a band during his high school days, but his interests waned until one day he happened to hear some folk music. He thought to himself, "I can play that!"

Jeff was living in Arlington at the time with his folks. He made friends with several performers in Georgetown and began playing during their breaks. Finally Jeff got his real break - He was hired to play at Janson's in Georgetown; it was during the Watergate scandal so Jeff got off on doing satire on the Nixon Administration. Many of the Georgetown customers enjoyed his jokes as well as his music, and Jeff became very popular in and around Georgetown.

Jeff's father retired a couple of years back and began his move to Florida. Jeff decided he liked Virginia, had a friend with a townhouse in Newport News, so he chose to stay and go to school here. CNC was the lucky school.

Jeff would really rather be singing some of the "Black Blues" from the 20's and 30's or to move strictly into instrumental music, but he finds he has "to do crowd pleasers, too. You know - rowdy music". He has no real aspirations with music, it "just helps pay the rent".

Jeff is a sophomore at CNC, works part-time in the library and is interested in library science as a possible career. He is a quiet sort of fellow who has a remarkable number of friends at CNC. He's a regular at most any school function such as plays and concerts; and he would like to see a stronger cultural program at Christopher Newport with more student support and attendance in drama and music. He would enjoy hearing "lots of different kinds of music".

Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman goes to college

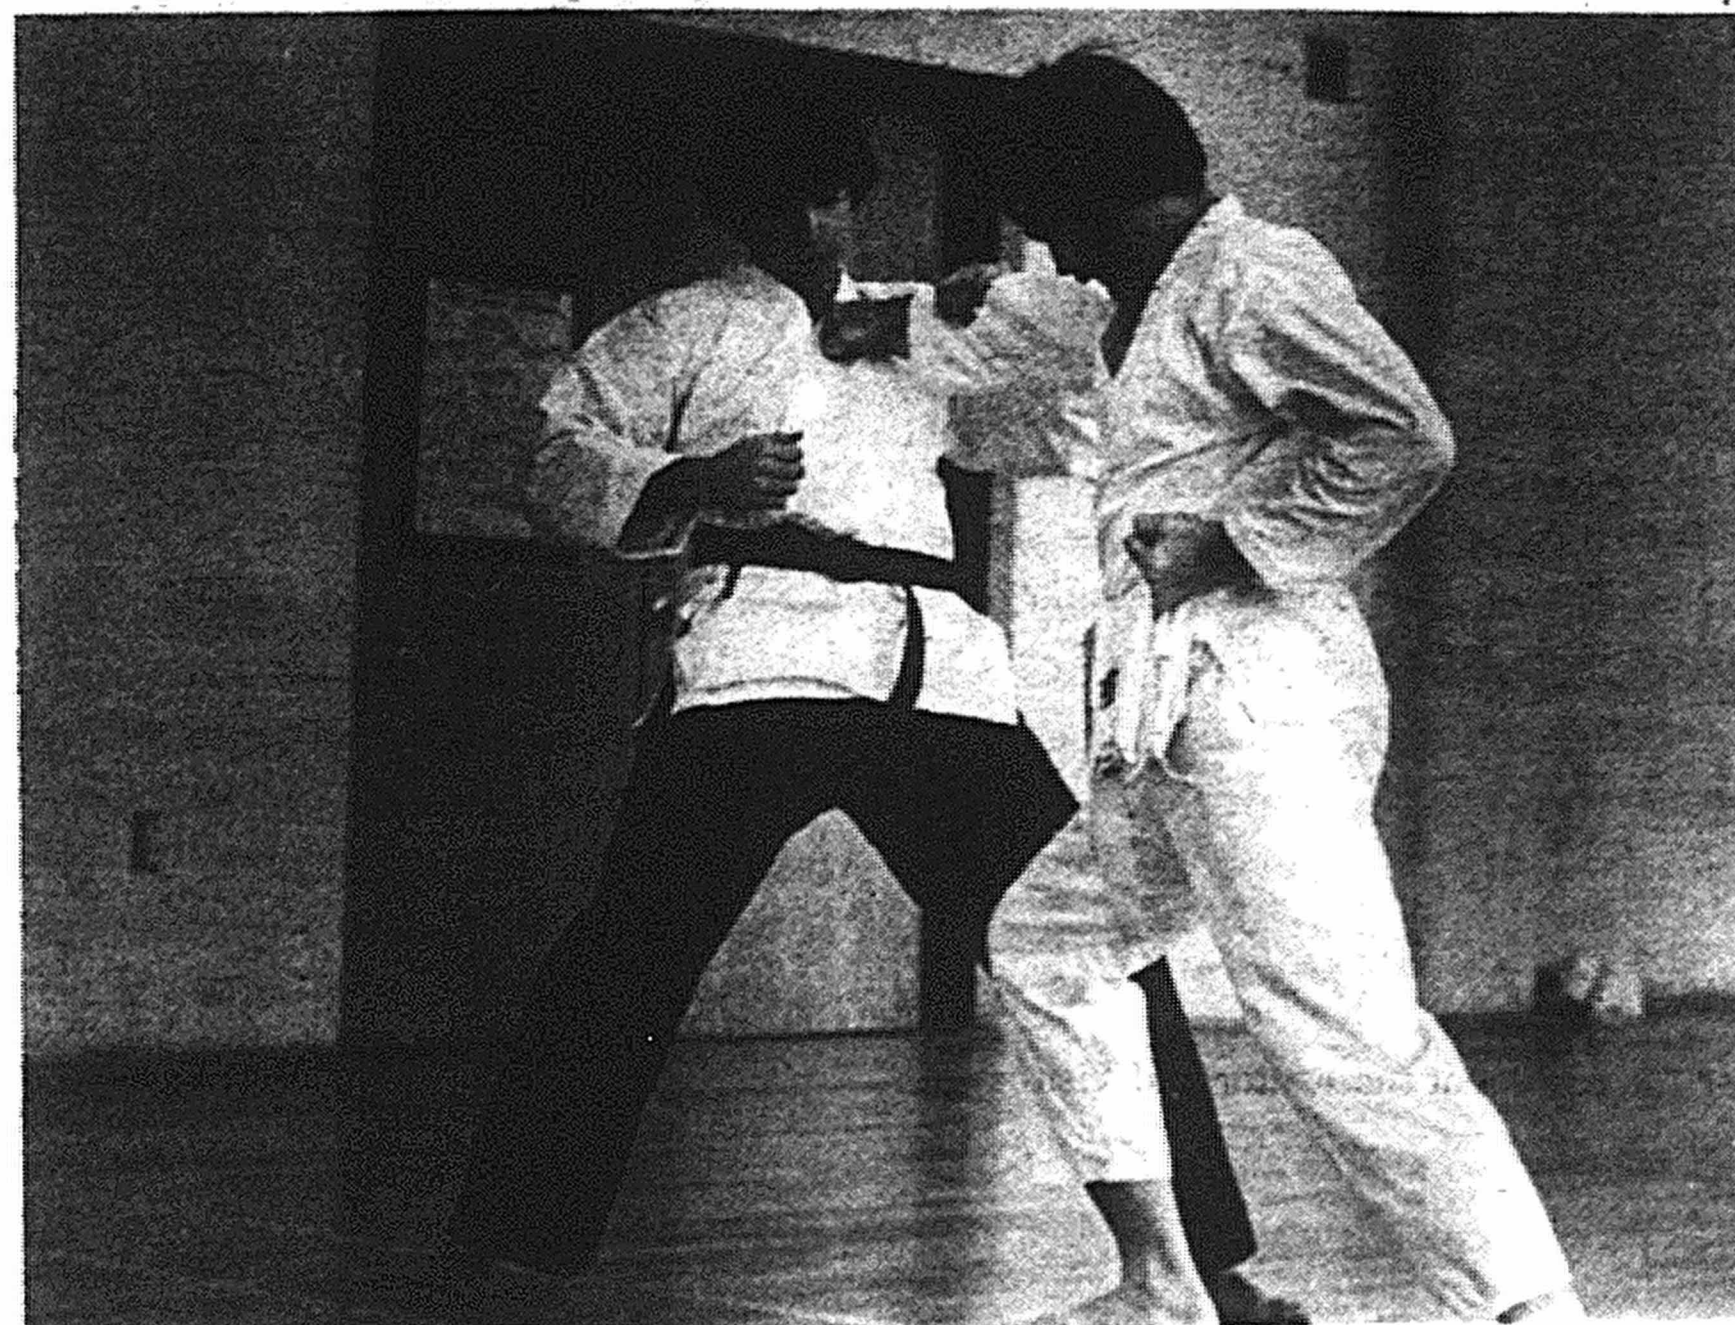

(CPS)--Students at Monmouth College, N.J., will have a chance to explore reasons why 30 to 40 million people a day are glued to their television sets watching soap operas.

The college has decided to offer a course exploring the psychology of soaps in an attempt to help the students come to grips with why people become addicted to watching Mary Hartman's marital difficulties and cringing at the pain and problems in "As the World Turns."

The instructors of the course are Monmouth professor Kenneth Haun and his wife, Julie. "People watch because they do not want to get involved in real life situations," Mrs. Haun said. "It's really an escape. Mr. and Mrs. Haun began watching soap operas after their sixth child was born.

"We would sit down to feed the baby, turn on the television set and discover ourselves involved in the soaps," she said. Her husband concluded that since 30 to 40 million people a day are glued to their tubes watching the soaps "there was something of interest to a psychologist here." He took his idea to the school and after a bit of apprehension, the school agreed to offer the course.

What the Board of Visitors means to CNC

By Adrienne London

On July 1, 1977 Christopher Newport College of The College of William and Mary will become Christopher Newport College. Under House Bill No. 252 of the General Assembly of Virginia, all real estate and personal property now existing in the name and under the control of the corporate body designated "The College of William and Mary" that is located in Newport News and exclusively used by Christopher Newport will be transferred to and shall be known and taken in standing in the name and under the control of the Rector and Visitors of Christopher Newport.

In lieu of this fact, Governor Mills E. Godwin appointed a board for our soon to be independent college. The board consists of twelve members. Of the members first appointed by the governor for terms beginning July 1, three shall be appointed for terms of four years, three for terms of three years, and three members will serve one year terms.

The Rector is the presiding officer and is in charge of all order of business and acts as spokesman and representative.
