Gamma Phi Beta and Sigma Tau Gamma take crowns

By Teresa Gibson
Editor-in-Chief

Sat., Feb. 1 was a joyous day for many students, faculty and staff at CNC. Not only did the basketball teams win both of their games against N.C. Wesleyan, but Michelle Venable, 1991 Homecoming Queen was on hand to crown the new 1992 Homecoming Queen and King.

The crowd cheered as the first and second runners-up were announced. There was tie between Jennifer Bagalawis and Bobby Haywood (representing Alpha Kappa Psi) and Trisha Hall and Richard D. Logue (representing Phi Mu Fraternity) for second runner-up. Tracey Harper and Daryl Gray, who represented BACCHUS, were first runner-up.

Those who filled the stands in Ratcliffe Gym then waited in anticipation as Miss CNC Kippy McGehee announced that both the Queen and King were jointly sponsored by Gamma Phi Beta Sorority and Sigma Tau Gamma Fraternity.

Homecoming Queen Kristin Collins was born and raised in Virginia and is a junior at CNC. She is majoring in Psychology and hopes to go to graduate school at the College of William & Mary to become a school psychologist.

In addition to being president of Gamma Phi Beta, she is also Sigma Tau Gamma's White Rose Queen. She was nominated last spring at their spring formal and will end her reign at this spring's dance.

Collins is a 1991 graduate of the Student Leadership Institute and a member of the Student Leadership Association.

She has also applied to be a Student Orientation Leader this summer. She will graduate in May, 1993.

When asked about her spare time, Collins replies, "there is no free time." But when she does get a free moment, she likes to spend time with her family and "beau", Jimmy Johnson.

"This school is more personal than other campuses," says Collins. "The students can get a lot closer to the faculty. I wouldn't transfer from this school. I love it here!"

Homecoming King Randy O'Neill was born in Wisconsin and is a senior at CNC. He is majoring in History and hopes to go to graduate school to get his master's degree in Administrative Education. He says that he wants to pursue the possibilities of being a college President or Administrator.

In addition to being a Gamma Phi Beta Big Brother, O'Neill is Executive Vice President of Sigma Tau Gamma.

O'Neill is also a 1991 graduate of the Student Leadership Institute and the Mentor Coordinator of the Student Leadership Association. He was a Student Orientation Leader in both 1990 and 1991. He will graduate this summer.

Currently, he is president of the Student Government Association. He is also the founder and a past president of BACCHUS (Boost Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students) and a past CAB (Campus Activities Board) director.

O'Neill also served on the Student Leadership Institute Alumni Steering Committee.

O'Neill is a very busy student, and when asked about his spare time, he replies "I don't have spare time."

Like Collins, O'Neill is also happy about spending his college years at CNC, "I like the Christopher Newport College is one step closer to university status much to the dismay of three House delegates.

House Bill 62, which would allow CNC to change its name to Christopher Newport University, was voted on two weeks ago by Virginia's House of Delegates. The bill passed with a vote of 96-3.

Delegate Cranwell of the Roanoke area, Delegate Jackson of Wythe, and Delegate Grayson of Williamsburg were the only delegates who were opposed to CNC's decision to become a university.

"I think it makes a mockery out of the term 'university,'" said Mr. George Grayson, a professor at the College of William and Mary, who was quoted in the Daily Press.

In response to the comment, President Anthony R. Santoro, said

Grayson's comment comes from a lack of information regarding CNC's present growth.

The Senate will make their final vote on the bill sometime next week. Dr. Santoro says he is confident that the bill will pass.

CNC's tuition will not increase as a result of university status but is expected to increase due to the recent state budget cuts. The college has already weathered a three percent budget cut this spring and will prepare for an additional two percent cut next fall.

The Board of Visitors will meet in April to decide how much CNC will raise its tuition.

Several years ago, the Commonwealth of Virginia paid for seventy percent of the college's total operating cost with students paying the remaining thirty percent. However, in times of fiscal constraints the cost will be

Colleges give bad message to rapists

Recently, the Student Conduct Committee at Old Dominion University suspended two male students because they were found "guilty" in an alleged off-campus gang rape of another ODU student.

According to the information published in ODU's student newspaper, The Mace and Crown, the student had attended a party sponsored by her sorority and another fraternity at a house off-campus in October. Later that evening, she left the party and went to a bar; when she returned to the house she was drunk and lost consciousness for most of the night. However, the student reports that she saw different men on top of her on two occasions.

The ODU panel issued its ruling after a 15-hour hearing three weeks ago. Under the ruling, the two male students will be suspended from the university for one year and will be required to perform 100 hours of community service and participate in a "Violence Against Women" course upon returning to school.

There are no criminal charges against the two students are pending at the present time. According to an article published in Friday's Virginian Pilot, Lucy R. Wilson, associate vice president for student services, said that ODU had not reported the incident to the Norfolk police because the victim had. However, Norfolk's Sex Offense Unit has stated that they are unfamiliar with the case.

Last year, Katie Koestner was in the public eye for her criticism of the College of William & Mary's handling of her date rape case. In her case, the male student was found guilty by the college, but his "sentence" was that he could no longer visit residence halls other than his own.

It seems to me that colleges in this area are giving a bad message to would be rapists: If you want to rape someone and get away with it, do it on a college campus.

Colleges need to be a little harsher on offenders and maybe then the number of rapes that occur on college campuses might start to decline.

Racism: the highest goal of an ignorant society

By Steve Siceloff
Opinions Editor

Race relations at Christopher Newport College reveal a lack of integrity and understanding within the campus community. If you doubt this, stroll through the Lounge in the Campus Center. You'll see groups of blacks and whites segregate themselves into corners and against walls. It may not be intentional, but it shows our attitudes.

Many say that racism is a complicated issue, one that can not be discussed in less than 25 pages. I disagree. I think that racism comes down to two things: ignorance and scapegoating.

The ignorance comes into play when a person does not know any better than to look at someone and say to himself "he's not as good as I am, because he looks different." Why the people are ignorant probably has a lot to do with history. Like it or not, the Civil War ended only a little over a hundred years ago, and populations need more time to adjust to a fairly new concept.

Watch the news coming out of Europe and you will see as much racism from those countries as you see from America. The only difference is that it is labeled "ethnic violence" instead of "racism." The Europeans are still killing each other for having different backgrounds. The best current example is the civil war in Yugoslavia. Croatia and Serbia have been fighting for years over little more than looks and history. Is that going to change within a year? Or a decade? I doubt it.

America separated from England because we hated the way they did things. America always tries to be the ideal place to live. When the idea of self-government came up in 1776, it was not a new idea, but it was one that had not been given much of a chance to succeed. After 200 years, it seems to be going along alright. That same year saw the creed the oft-quoted creed that "all men are created equal."

Even though that statement did not include everyone when it was first written—slaves did not count as people then—it has grown to include everyone in this country today.

It is time to take the idealism of our past and incorporate it into our future.

Scapegoating goes farther into our psyche than ignorance. No one ever wants to take responsibility for what they have done. Ask a two-year-old who broke the cookie jar. He will probably blame it on his imaginary friend, or maybe even say something enlightening like "The devil made me do it."

As we grow up, we start blaming whole sections of society instead of just one person. The white man blames affirmative action when he gets laid-off. The black man blames the "white establishment" when he doesn't get a promotion or raise. You never hear "Well, I didn't show up to work for eight straight days, so I guess I deserve it." or "She is just a better worker, and I am going to dedicate myself to getting better at this." In a college atmosphere you may hear things like "That professor gave me a 'C' because he was raised with the idea that we can't do as well as they can." (this comes from both races and sexes, by the way.)

The problem is not going to disappear when the sun comes up, so we are forced to make a decision; either learn to treat everyone the same as everyone else, or lock ourselves in our houses until we die.

Racists and bigots at CNC

It has been really hard to write this letter to you and to all the students at CNC. The reason for this is that I was angry, upset, and shocked to learn that CNC has so many racists and bigots.

It all started when I was innocently using the bathroom and was assaulted by a barrage of racist jokes and comments written on the bathroom walls and stalls.

It bothered me so much that I decided to write a letter to all of the people here at CNC.

When finding out what I needed to do to write this letter I found out that this display of ignorance is not limited to the men's bathrooms, check out Wingfield Hall's women's bathroom. This is wrong. Whether this is written in jest or intent is not important. What is important is that it stands against the fact that "all men are created equal"; a fact that this country was built on. If we are to have peace not only in the World, but in our own neighborhoods, we must understand this and make it a reality in our lives.

So let us fight this frightening hatred not with violent malice, but with understanding and determination; first and foremost within ourselves, and then among our friends. Do this through examples of tolerance and respect.

Personally, I would never have thought that CNC, a place of learning and growing, would be the home of the ignorance found in racism. I hope that all of us, whether black, white, red or whatever can join together in friendship to overcome our own ignorance and make "racism" and "bigotry" forgotten words.

Thanks to all who helped

Now that the holidays are over and all the bills have been paid, the Hunger Task Force at Christopher Newport College wishes to thank students, faculty, administrators and employees for making our third annual Thanksgiving Food Drive a success. In tough economic times when the need was greater than ever, you dug deep and enabled us to provide a Thanksgiving dinner for 33 needy Peninsula families; 25 from Hampton and eight from Newport News.

In addition to the food you contributed, we received $352.20 which we used to purchase a turkey for each family. We also donated $99.23 to Newport News LINK, an interfaith agency which provides emergency assistance to the poor.

We were surprised this year to receive a number of thank-you notes and cards from recipients of our food boxes. Their need seemed to be exceeded only by their appreciation. One family even sent a small donation as a gesture of gratitude.

Special thanks go to a number of individuals: Rita Schellenberg and the students at the Information Desk for so ably handling donations of food and money; Phil Nader for ordering and storing turkeys; facilities assistants for storing food in safety; Jackie Haskins for providing boxes from the Bookstore; and those students who helped us pack the food for delivery. We also appreciate those who gave their time to deliver the boxes to designated families: Tina Bachmann-Burt, Matt Gregory, Robby Hipps, Bob and Teri Hodson, David Kriner, Mario Mazzarella, Joe McGlone, Derrell McPherson, Stephanie Powers, Chris Shawen, and Ken White.

In addition to several anonymous donors, those who donated food and/or money include the following: Pat Accetola, Accounting Dept. students, American Marketing Association, Arts and Communication students, Magdiel Ashby, Carol Banks, Baptist Student Union, Nancy Barndse, Esther Beazley, Shannon Bridgam, Gerald Bright, Nancy Bruffey, Business Law and Tax classes, Ronnie Cohen, College Republicans, Libby Covairt, Martha Edgcombe, Paulette Ellis, Robert Fellowes, Dawn Fennell, Diane Frese, Gamma Phi Beta, Debby Gibbs, Clara Hancock, Barbara Harrison, Jackie Haskins, Marty Henderson, Sue Hoppe, Rita Hubbard, International Students Association, Joanne Landis, Cheryl Mathews, Kathryn McCubbin, James Moore, Tina Patrick, Jay Paul, Valerie Petersen, Phi Mu, Nancy Pile, Psi Chi, Emilie Smith, Social Work classes SW 406, 367 and 300, Sociology and Social Work Club, Arlene Stepnick, Mari Taliaferro, Louise Toole, Barbara Warren, Kim Wells, and Yvonne Wynn.

Contributing academic departments included Biology, English and History.

In addition, the following College offices donated: Admissions, Athletics, Bookstore, Continuing Education, Career and Counseling Services, Financial Aid, Information Technology Services, Library, Payroll, Personnel, President's Office, Registrar's Office, and Student Life.

As you can see, this was a College-wide effort involving numerous individuals. Each made a difference to needy Peninsula families. Thanks to all who made it such a success.

Sexual Harrassment in the school environment not appreciated

Now that sexual harassment has come out of the closet, so to speak, I would like to voice some of my concerns about male behavior on this campus.

I have been placed in several uncomfortable situations in which men have hugged or touched me in ways and places that made me feel awkward and uneasy.

Men may feel that they are just playing around or innocently goofing off, but I think that they should consider the other person's emotions and attitudes before doing what they do.

Men may also think that what they do is not sexual harassment, but any situation that makes a member of the opposite sex uncomfortable is now considered sexual harassment.

I'm not suggesting that students stop being friendly, or act like they are confined to a monastery or a convent, but merely that they be more careful with their actions and suggestions and take into consideration the feelings of the other person.

White: Dances and romances on Ritual of Love

By Sam Sanders
Contributing Writer

When one speaks of Karyn White, songs like "Superwoman," "The Way You Love Me," and "Secret Rendezvous," come to mind. Well, it's time to add more great songs to that already impressive list of hits. "Ritual of Love," White's new record is reaching higher plateaus than her debut album, despite it's solid hits.

This new album is selling more because those three songs established her as a successful Soul & R&B songstress. This diva is sure to be around as long as she wants, especially when she records hits like: "Romantic," and "The Way I Feel About You," which are the first two hit singles from the "Ritual of Love" Lp.

White implements a somewhat unique arrangement, by placing the up-tempo songs on one side and the rich, technical ballads on the other. This arrangement isn't what is so unique, the titling of the sides, Dance Me for the up-tempo and Romance Me for the slow songs, is what is so unique. She does a compelling job of making the listener do both.

Karyn White has style, which in present music making isn't a trait seen in most artists. Every now and again an artist with style and technical appeal will slip through the mesh of superficial, untalented, and mediocre recording artists. This says alot for White, who is on the way to musical stardom.

Open and honest on T.E.V.I.N

By Sam Sanders
Contributing Writer

When listening to T.E.V.I.N., the new album by Tevin Campbell, one would assume that this is not his first effort. He has a polished sound, smooth vocals, and tenured vocal ability. Campbell, Quincy Jones' former protege, is capable of establishing himself as a hit-maker on his first album. Prince also took a liking to Campbell, giving him a part in "Graffiti Bridge," and also helping reach number one with his first recording, "Round and Round," which is also on this album.

"Tell Me What You Want Me To Do," the first single is the story of a boy asking a girl to give him some sign of which direction they are to take. Campbell comes off as a soulful crooner with a sound reminiscent of a little Stevie Wonder. He has been compared to the likes of Wonder, Michael Jackson, and Luther Vandross for very different reasons.

The resemblance to Michael Jackson is displayed on the single, "Lil' Brother," which displays a child-like innocence, which Jackson once had when he was being backed up by his brothers. One only hopes he doesn't become a duplicate but a master copy of success.

Campbell displays the Vandross resemblance on the interlude entitled, "Over The Rainbow/ And On To The Sun." The whispering melodies are never abrupt, but endless. The tone of his voice tends to whisper away slowly.

It would be an understatement to just say Tevin Campbell is good. He is hot, fresh, funky, dope, bad, cool, and every other word describing the best. He is sure to be more than a one-hit wonder.

Williams is a bonafide hit

By Sam Sanders
Contributing Writer

The Comfort Zone, by Vanessa Williams is a true hit album. The fourteen song compilation is diverse in content, well-written, well-recorded, and is a well-produced masterpiece. Former Miss America, Vanessa Williams has a hit on her hands, and is on the road to mega stardom.

Next year, Williams is sure to be the front runner in the R&B category at the Grammys.

She has to be extremely pleased with this effort, as well as her record company, Wing/Polygram.

The first single, "Running Back To You," quickly became a number one single on the pop and R&B charts respectively. The up tempo dance track shows Williams in somewhat of a different light as she reaches into the grab bag of musical uniqueness and pulls out this single. It is a more R&B song than anything she has done.

"Two Of A Kind" and "Strangers Eyes" are the subtle hits on the album. They aren't likely to be released as singles but have the potential of becoming hits if released at the right time.

"What Can I Tell My Heart," "Better Off Now," and "Save The Best For Last," are the songs which express the talents she is known for. She has a jazz background, which is expressed on this album through these songs. Her jazz talents are strong and the strengths are readily available on these three tracks.

No one can dispute the talents that Williams possesses. Her musical abilities are polished, evolved, and "tailored." Williams is on a pedestal of excellence where she can no longer be reached by the struggling artists who are trying to make a name for themselves, just as Vanessa Williams has done for herself.

Academic departments search for faculty

By Diane Seymore
Contributing Writer

Despite a tight budget, several departments at Christopher Newport College are searching for instructors for next fall.

Most departments looking for professors are not creating new positions, but merely trying to fill vacant spots: When a professor leaves or retires from the school, it is difficult to find the most qualified person for that job in May.

Most departments hire full- or part-time faculty assigned to a restricted contract. Then in the fall, the department will begin a national search for a new professor.

The department of Physics and Computer Science is currently involved in the faculty search.

Dr. George R. Webb, chairman of the department, says that the search committee will probably invite three or four applicants to the school for interviews. He says that a schedule of the candidate's visits will be posted on the bulletin board in Gosnold Hall.

Candidates give two talks while on campus, and students are invited to attend both. The first is presented just as if the audience is made up only of college students. The second lecture is on that person's major field of research. The candidates are asked to speak on topics that they love to teach.

Dr. Webb is pleased by the interest students have shown towards these guests in the past and thinks their responses help committees make good choices.

Mainly, the department has two priorities: "first, to find really super teachers; and second, to find instructors actively doing publishable research," explains Dr. Webb.

The English department is presently involved in a search for a professor of literature and a professor of writing. In September, the department received official approval from the Vice President of Academic Affairs Richard M. Summerville and Dean Jouett L. Powell of the School of Letters and Natural Sciences to advertise for the positions.

Dr. Jay S. Paul, chairman of the English department, says the department placed advertisements in a variety of publications including the "Chronicle of Higher Education," the "MLA Job List," and the local newspapers.

Respondents sent letters of application to Dr. Paul which included a formal application and a curriculum vitae (somewhat longer than a resume), a transcript, and letters of recommendation.

By the deadline in November, the department received approximately 100 letters. By December, the search committee had narrowed the pool of applicants to three literature and three writing candidates.

The search committee in the English department is made up of seven professors and one student. Keith Delles, the English major serving on the committee, was given this opportunity because of his affiliation in Sigma Tau Delta, the National English Honor Society.

Delles says that he attended all meetings and interviews and was "treated as an equal on the committee."

When the six candidates visited the campus, each gave an informal presentation open to students. Several English majors attended the interviews which consisted of a twenty minute teaching sample and an open question and answer period.

Dr. Paul feels that seeing how candidates treat students in the classroom is important when choosing between such highly qualified instructors.

After these afternoon meetings, students expressed their opinions to the committee through student representative, Keith Delles.

The History department also received permission to advertise for faculty positions this year. Dr. Timothy E. Morgan, chairman of the History department's search committee, says that they are in the process of selecting candidates from amongst letters of application.

The department would like to hire two instructors under restricted contracts. Dr. Morgan adds that specifics have not been decided about the candidate's visits, but he is open to student involvement.

The Biology department is presently faced with a different hiring situation. One professor has retired in the department, but because they received approval to hire late, the search process will be put off until next fall.

Dr. Harold N. Cones, chairman of the Biology, Chemistry and Environmental Science department, feels that the best way to involve students in this hiring procedure is the way it was done in the past.

According to Dr. Cones, the department usually invites three people to campus, who present a lecture to an introductory Biology class before interviewing with the search committee. The students are given a chance to respond to the guest lecturer and Dr. Cones says their reactions are helpful to the committee.

In the Modern Language department, Chairman J. Richard Guthrie, Jr. admits that it has been almost twenty years since the department has conducted a formal search for professors.

He says that "because of legal ramifications," there are no students on the actual search committee. The department plans to choose three to five people to visit the campus for interviews and to teach a lesson plan to the professors on the committee.

Dr. Guthrie is open to including students in the candidates' presentation and even says that he knows a few language majors who would be excited about participating.

Each department must go through the same long and tedious procedures to hire faculty, but each committee tackles the actual interviewing in a different way.

Dean Powell concludes that "most departments do involve students in one way or another," even though there are not mandatory requirements stating that students must be involved during any part of the hiring.

F.A. Program a great success

By Dianna McKellar
Staff Writer

Due to budget cuts, on Aug. 15, 1991, Christopher Newport College's Campus Center Director, Assistant Director, and all hourly maintenance workers across campus were dismissed.

With the Campus Center's rigorous work schedule, the cuts left too much work to be done by the remaining employees.

To counter the effects of this dilemma, Virginia Keithley, Campus Center Facilities Manager, created the Facility Assistant Program in September of 1991, which utilizes students in the operation of the Campus Center.

Facility Assistants (F.A.s) are the highest paid student employees on campus earning $5.50 per hour. However, this benefit does not come without the addition of immense responsibility.

Few students realize the great amount of work that is performed daily to create a comfortable atmosphere in the Campus Center.

By assisting the dedicated full-time housekeeping workers, Loveine Alston and James Ruffin; and maintenance worker Dave Murray, F.A.s help maintain cleanliness, comfort, and security in the Campus Center.

F.A.s have a variety of responsibilities such as assisting the Facilities Manager with supervision of the Campus Center, setting up and cleaning meeting rooms, performing building inspection tours, and communicating closely with the Campus Center Police department during emergencies.

They also manage the Campus Center on weeknights when a staff supervisor is not available.

Qualifications for employment include maintaining a cumulative GPA of at least 2.0, willingly working days, nights, and weekends with a rotating schedule, accepting responsibility and working independently.

Currently there are seven students employed in the program: Doug Bean, James Buckley, Daryl Gray, Ken Hale, Harold Jordan, John Keeter, and Ahmet Taylor.

"They work anywhere from eight to twenty hours per week during the semester, but over the summer, students who are returning in the fall can work full-time--up to forty hours," says Keithley.

Work schedules are constructed around classes to avoid conflicts. "Mrs. Keithley is very fair in scheduling [our] work hours," commented Harold Jordan.

The Facility Assistant Program has proven to be a success for the Campus Center and the students employed. James Buckley, the first-hired F.A., says, "The program is outstanding. It gives an individual a great opportunity to develop a better sense of accountability and responsibility."

Students interested in learning more about the Facility Assistant Program should see Virginia Keithley in the

As a result of limited state funds, the State Council for Higher Education in Virginia (SCHEV) has recommended that CNC place a cap on their full-time student enrollment for next fall.

Last fall, the number of full-time students taking 12 or more credit hours amounted to 3,950.

According to this enrollment cap,

ROTC Cadets receive active duty commissions

By S. Jason Harris

Despite the latest military cut-backs, the U.S. Army recently awarded prestigious active duty commissions to four of five senior Christopher Newport College cadets. A fifth cadet chose to go into the Reserves.

Captain Bobby Locklear, professor of military science, was pleased with the news. "This is the first time in years that all the senior cadets have gotten all they requested as far as active duty vs. reserves as well as branch assignments."

CNC's enrollment cap is not absolute, because SCHEV will allow CNC to enroll an additional one percent plus fifty more students.

Academic requirements for admission will not change. However, Dr. Santoro says that "one effect of capping

Cadet James Smith received Active

Duty Transportation and Branch Detail Chemical.

Cadet Tawanda Godwin was awarded Reserve Transportation.

Those cadets receiving a Branch Detail will serve a few years in their detailed branch before going into their assigned branch. Branch detailing produces an officer with complementing specialties.

Just before graduation, all five cadets will be commissioned 2nd Lieutenants and will then attend their respective branch schools.

Concerning next year's assessments, Capt. Locklear predicted, "We never know quite what to expect, but this year's results tell me that we must be doing something right."

Daniel Hale Williams, a black American surgeon, performed the first heart surgery in 1893. He was born in Hollidaysburg, Pennsylvania on Jan. 18, 1856 and graduated from Chicago Medical College (now North Western Medical School) in 1883.

The surgery involved removing a knife from a stab victim's heart and sewing up the pericardium, which is a sac that encloses the heart and other major blood vessels. The patient lived happily for several years after the surgery.

Daniel Williams founded several hospitals and medical centers, namely the Provident Hospital and Medical Center in Chicago, one of the oldest free-standing black-owned hospitals in America.

SGA CORNER

The Student Government Association is presently seeking to expand its student base. We have always strived to achieve an equitable balance of student organizations, concerns and viewpoints.

In order to maintain this balance, we would like to recruit new, motivated students to represent the vested interests of the varying aspects of the student body on the General Assembly and on the committees of the SGA.

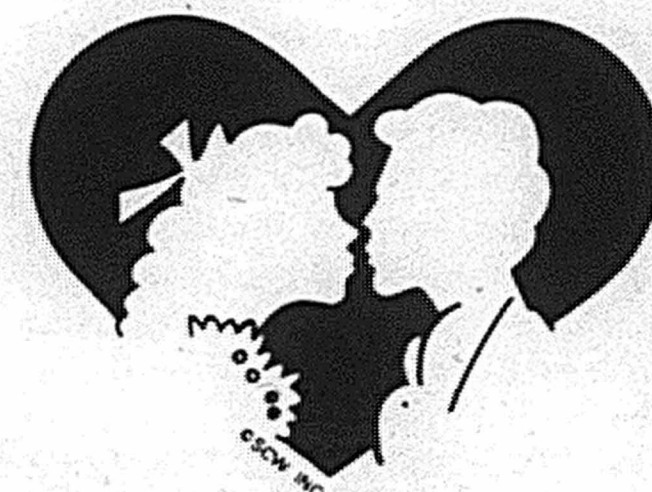

Any interested student should contact Randy O'Neill at 594-7197 or stop by to talk with a member of the Executive Council in rooms 229, 231 and 232 in the Campus Center. Take an active role in CNU!

Meetings this week include Executive Council at 4 pm in room 214 of the Campus Center on Feb. 17 and General Assembly will meet at 4 pm in room 150 of the Campus Center on Feb. 18.

Women's streak at 14, look for national ranking

It was all you could ask for in a basketball game. Two of the top ranked teams in the South battling head to head in what will go down as one of the most exciting victories in CNC history.

The Lady Captains, ranked fifth in the South, edged Marymount, ranked No. 4, 99-98, on Karen Barefoot's driving layup at the buzzer.

It was the third victory of the week for CNC and extended the Lady Captains' winning streak to fourteen, equalling the mark set last year and ended by Marymount. It was also CNC's 23rd straight win at home.

The Lady Captains actually trailed, 92-84, with less than three minutes to play, but rallied to grab a 95-94 lead on Liisa Barnes' jumper with fifty seconds left.

A pair of foul shots by Tia Johnson put CNC up by three ten seconds later, but Violaine Romans cut the margin to one at the twenty-five second mark, and after, Crystal Washington put the Lady Saints back in front, 98-97, with eleven seconds to play.

After CNC called time out with six seconds remaining, Barefoot took the inbounds pass and drove the right side of the lane to drain the winner just before the buzzer.

Barefoot finished with a career-high 35 points, and had 11 assists. Johnson added 19 points, while Kinsey Pritchett added 16 and Barnes 12.

Tia Johnson, ranked nationally in rebounding, in tight defense.

In the national rankings, Barefoot had 69 assists and averaged 6.3 assists per game in eleven match-ups to put her 13th at the Division III level.

Johnson also made the national scene at the 12th position in rebounding with 157 total rebounds to average 14.3 per game.

Earlier in the week Barefoot barely missed a triple-double, scoring 32 points, adding ten steals and nine assists in a 79-64 win over Virginia Wesleyan.

The Lady Captains jumped in front early, opened a 45-29 halftime lead, and never allowed the Lady Marlins closer than seven points the rest of the way. Johnson contributed 14 points and 11 rebounds, Barnes 12 points, and Crystal Richardson 11.

Homecoming night the Lady Captains broke the game open at the end of the first half, turning a 26-24 deficit into a 47-29 halftime lead over N.C. Wesleyan. CNC maintained its margin most of the second half, leading 70-48 before posting a 71-60 victory.

Richardson had a career night, with a personal high of 22 points and a school record nine blocked shots. Barefoot added 19 points, while Johnson had 12 and 14 rebounds, and Barnes had 11 points.

CNC's Lady Captains continue their quest for the Dixie Conference regular season crown with home games against Averett College on Fri. 14 at 5:30 pm and Ferrum College on Sun. 16 at 4:00 pm.

James Boykins is seen here posting up in the paint and waiting for the pass. Boykins has been recently ranked nationally at the Division III level for his outstanding rebounding efforts. He is 22nd in rebounding and averages 10.4 per game.

A late run in the first half turned a ten-point deficit into a four-point halftime lead, as CNC stopped N.C. Wesleyan, 80-65, in the Captains' only game of the week.

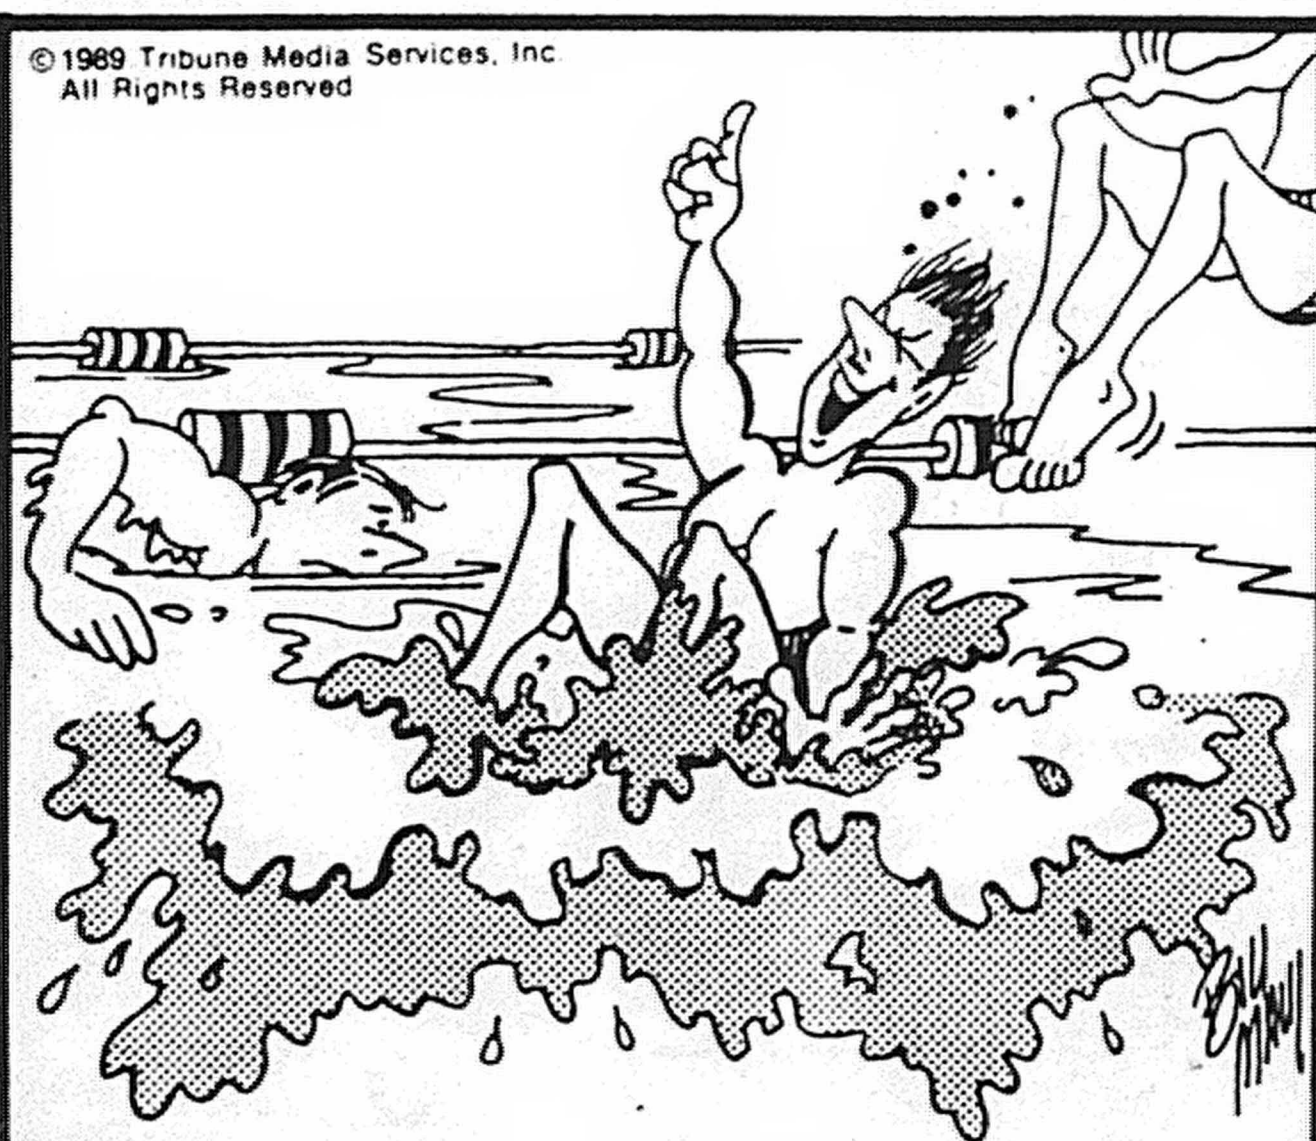

Trailing 20-10, CNC outscored the Bishops 21-7 over the final part of the first half to take a 31-27 lead. The Captains were never behind again.

Newcomer Ted Berry, playing in just his third game for CNC, led the way with 22 points; 20 in an outstanding second half effort. Those 20 points included the game ending reverse, alley-oop slam dunk that brought the crowd to its feet. Steve Artis added 18, while Donald Smith had 12 and Tyler Johnson 11.

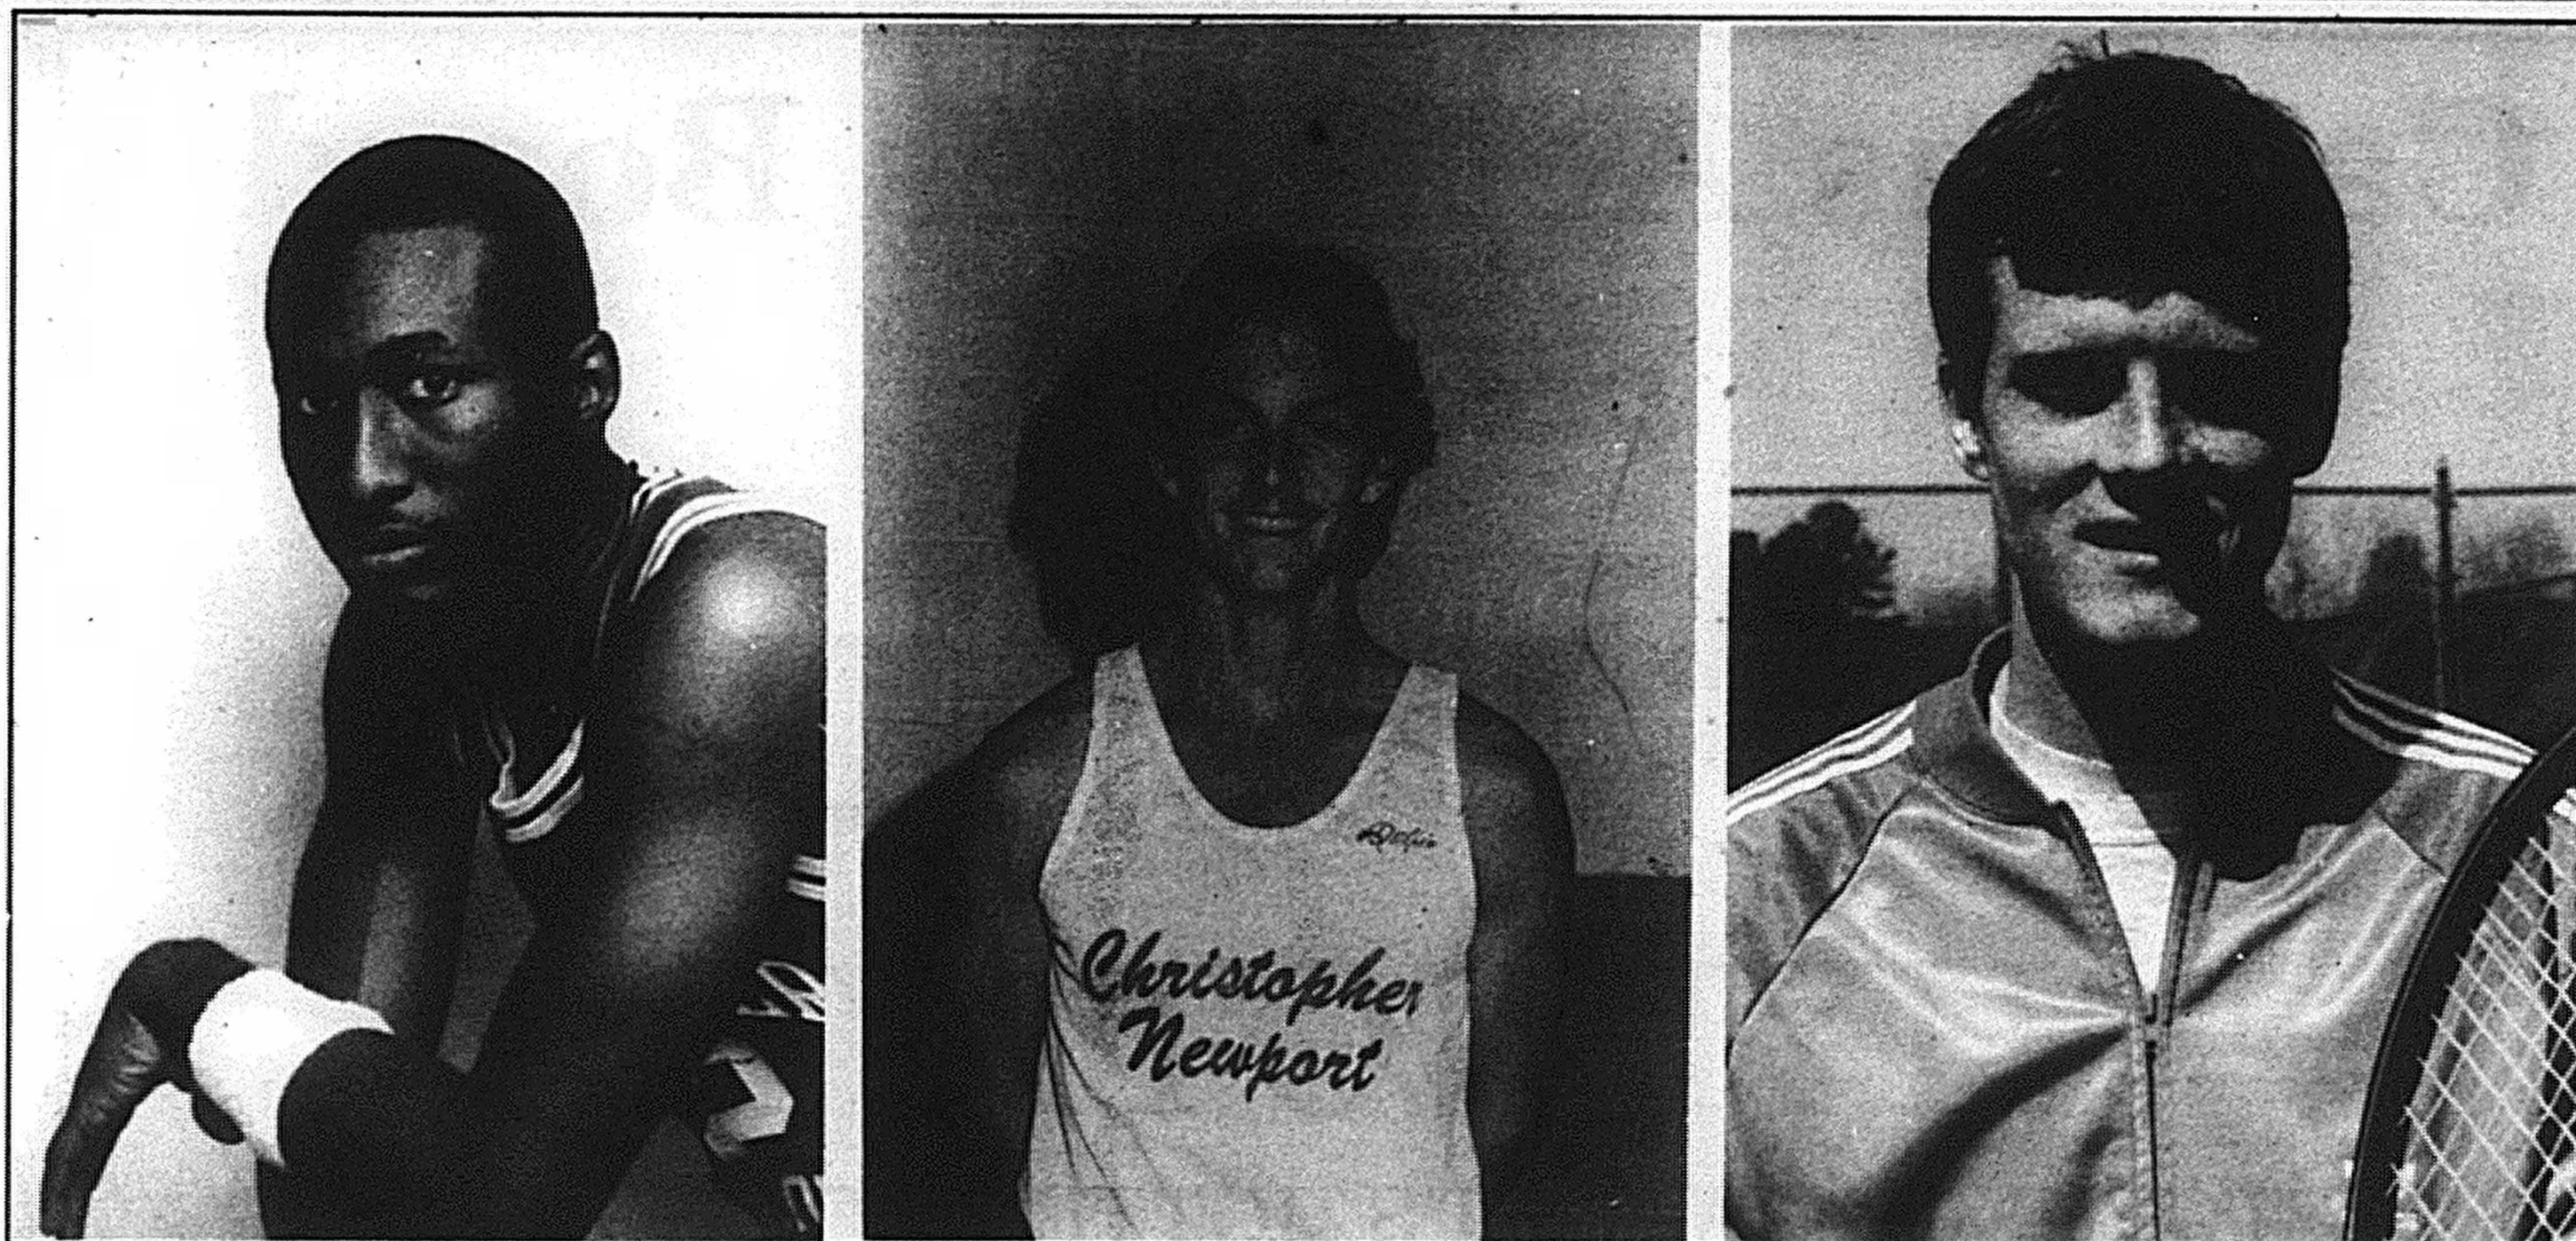

Artis and James Boykins were recently ranked nationally. Artis is 28th among Division III players with 123 total field goals, 24 three-point field goals, and 44 free throws to give him a 22.4 point per game average in scoring. Boykins is 22nd in rebounding with 146 total rebounds to average 10.4 per game.

The Captains will be home for two conference match-ups against Averett College on Thur. Feb. 14 at 7:00 pm and Ferrum College on Sun. Feb. 16 at 2:00 pm.

Buck Moore (left) was the trend setter for CNC basketball during his three year career. Dan Pittman (center) was the first All-American in cross country for the Captains. John Mouring (right) represented CNC in two national championships in tennis and was All-Academic for four years.

Three athletes inducted into CNC Hall of Fame

Former basketball All-America Buck Moore, All-America cross country runner Dan Pittman, and tennis great John Mouring have been chosen as the latest inductees to the Christopher Newport College Athletic Hall of Fame.

The three selections bring the total number to twenty CNC luminaries who have been inducted in the four-year history of the Hall of Fame. They will be formally inducted at a ceremony during halftime of the CNC-Ferrum men's basketball game on Sunday, Feb. 16, at 2 p.m.

Moore set a new standard in CNC basketball during his three-year career. A transfer from Southeastern (N.C.) Community College, the Portsmouth, Va., native obliterated the CNC career scoring record with 1,677 points, for an average of 20.0 per game. He was a first team All-Dixie Conference, and All-Tournament Team choice all three years, and still ranks second on the career scoring list. He is also seventh all-time in rebounds with 584, although he stands just 6-1. And he is eighth in assists with 190.

He was selected honorable mention All-America as a senior by the National Association of Basketball Coaches.

Pittman became CNC's first All-

American in cross country when he finished nineteenth at the NCAA Division III National Championship in 1984.

A transfer from George Mason University, he was All-South-Southeast Region, All-Mason-Dixon Conference and All-Dixie Conference during his two seasons with the Captains. He won the Dixie Conference Championship both years sharing the honor with teammate Ron Borsheim in 1984.

Pittman still owns the third fastest time in CNC history, running the eight kilometers in 25:25 at the national championship in Delaware, Ohio. He has seven of the twenty fastest times in CNC history.

Mouring earned spots in the NCAA Division III National Championships in both singles and doubles in 1983 and 1984. He posted a 58-16 career record in singles play and a 55-21 mark in doubles.

During his four year career, Mouring captured three Dixie Conference singles championships and two doubles crowns. The Captains were Dixie Conference champions three times during his stay. Mouring was also a Dean's List student and was named to the Dixie Conference All-Academic Team all four years.

CHRISTOPHER'S

PICK OF THE WEEK

I hate hypnotists, but even I can't dislike Tom DeLuca with his teddy bear looks, soft trust-me voice, and his demystifying of hypnotism. A sort of Penn & Teller of hypnotism, DeLuca may well be the first truly hip hypnotist.

DeLuca's power of suggestion

DeLuca is careful not to humiliate his subjects. Rather, he taps into their personalities, bringing human foibles gently to the surface. The results of Tom's show are fascinating, hilarious, and at times even poignant. Don't miss him.

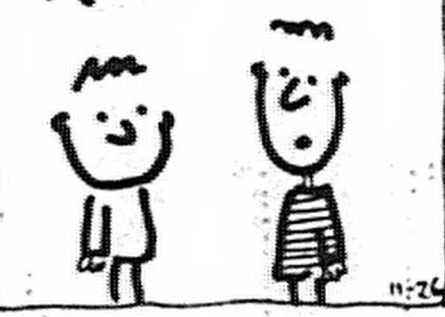

JIM'S JOURNAL

JIM

Today I was talking to Tony.

He was telling me all about the hard time he was having finding a job.

"I sent all my resumes out, but nobody's calling!" he said.

He told me he doesn't think he can stand his brother's shoe store for one more day.

I got out my big winter coat today.

After I put it on I found a dollar bill in the pocket.

I didn't remember putting it there last winter, so it was kind of a nice little surprise.

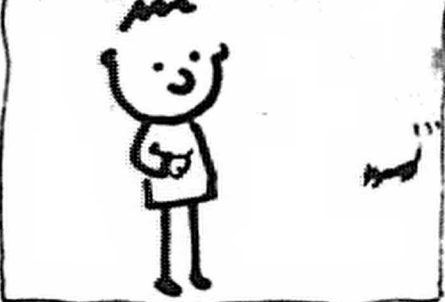

I ran into Tony and he said, "The world might as well end right now, Jim."

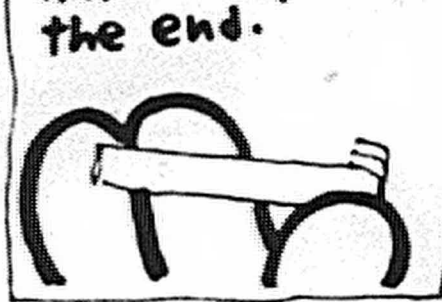

Today I noticed Mr. Peterson bawling something around on the floor, so I picked it up.

She backed up and got ready to pounce, as if waiting for me to throw it back to her.

I looked closely at it and it was a thin blue plastic thing with a little ridge on the end.

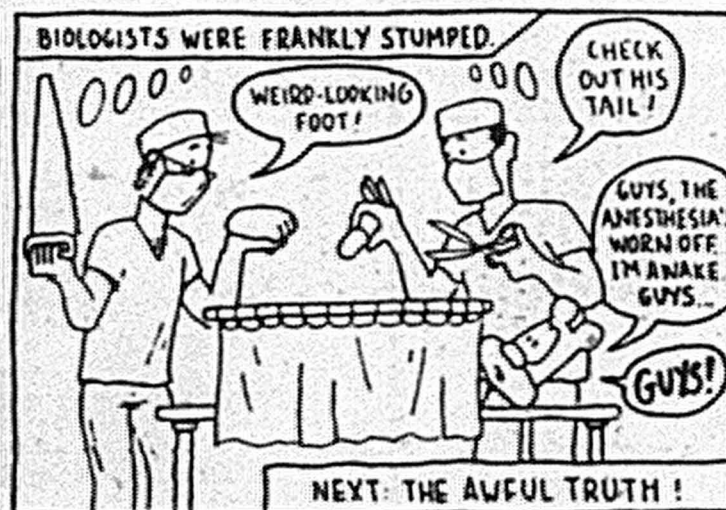

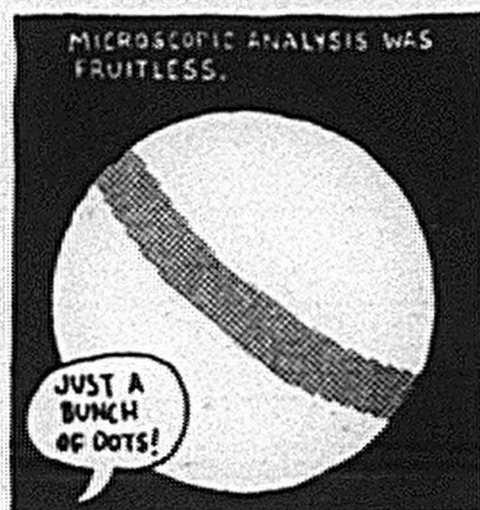

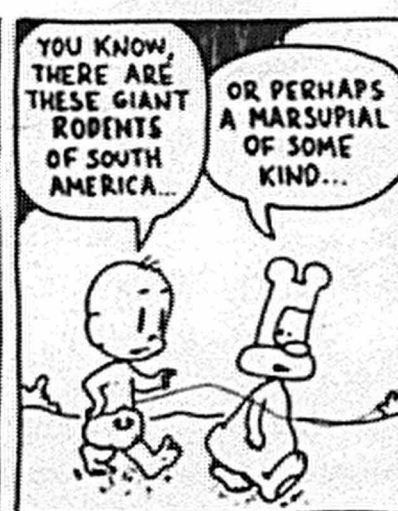

I couldn't imagine where it came from.
