Greenhouse cited for renovations

By William Scott Simkins
staff writer

Robert C. Hixon, Building and Grounds Committee chairman, appointed Dr. David Bankes chairman of the subcommittee to plan greenhouse renovations, at their Sept. 30 meeting.

One estimate for greenhouse renovations was $29,000. Dr. Harold Cones, chairman of the Biology department, suggested using the remaining $30,000 from the Science Building funds. Because the remaining Science Building funds must be committed by May 1, plans need to be completed soon.

Hixon said greenhouse renovation has been considered for the past five years, and he wants his committee to settle the issue within the next year. To accomplish this, the committee must present a detailed plan, including estimated costs, to the Board of Visitors for approval.

Dr. Jane Webb proposed that information concerning the construction and the cost of other colleges' greenhouses, be gathered for the Board of Visitors to compare with a CNC plan. Bankes reminded the committee that for eight to ten courses the greenhouse is a critical facility. An improved greenhouse, Cones added, could mean more students for CNC.

At the meeting, the committee also decided against a proposed sign for the Japanese garden beside the library. The committee felt approving a sign for the Japanese garden would encourage marking all the private gardens on campus with signs.

Instead of a sign, Bankes suggested printing a handout with a campus map indicating the garden sites. Cones added that local garden clubs might be interested in cultivating campus gardens if they were promised their club's name on such a map.

Hurricane Gloria, which struck the Tidewater area late Thursday night, made her presence known at CNC. This tree, located near the maintenance building, was felled by the storm.

New era of cooperation begins with MBA Program

The College of William and Mary School of Business Administration has transferred its part-time M.B.A. program to CNC. Beginning this fall, two courses will be offered, expanding to four courses during the spring semester and summer sessions of 1986, which again will expand to six courses by the fall semester of that year. All courses will be taught at night in Gosnold Hall by William and Mary faculty. The program includes a supporting administrative office on campus, reference materials available through the Smith Library, study material provided by the campus computer center, and textbooks provided by the bookstore.

Henry Mallue, Associate Dean for Administration and External Affairs at William and Mary, Dr. Bud Robeson, Dean for Academic Affairs (W&M); and Betsy Crosswell, M.B.A. program coordinator held a meeting on campus Sept. 20. The meeting was to provide the CNC Business Department and the administration with insight into the new program and to entertain any questions. The need for a relatively inexpensive, conveniently located and scheduled, thorough M.B.A. program was stressed as well as their confidence that this program will meet that need.

One of the topics discussed was the type of student the program attracted. There are 15 students enrolled in the program, 10 men and five women. They represent 15 different undergraduate schools, from William and Mary to VMI to the Merchant Marine Academy.

The majority of undergraduate majors are split evenly between business administration and liberal arts and sciences, with four from each. Six were engineering majors; the one remaining was an economics major. All 15 have had prior full-time employment. Their mean GMAT scores are in the 77th percentile, and their mean grade point average as undergraduates was 2.94 for all four years and 3.13 for the last two years.

Richard L. Hunter, CNC's Dean of the School of Business and Economics, is excited by the new program's possibilities. Hunter says that W&M faculty's teaching here could set a precedent for CNC faculty's teaching at W&M. He also says that the program transfer is a good beginning in that, although it is not CNC's program, hopefully it's a step in that direction.

CNC and W&M join in panel for inter-school relations

By Beth Emerson
staff writer

On Tuesday, Sept. 17, the CNC ROTC staff hosted William & Mary's ROTC staff for discussions on inter-school relations. Several important CNC ROTC decision-makers were present: Student Commander, Jay Kashouty; Executive Officer, Lisa Hunt; Ranger Commander, Eric Todhunter; First Sergeant, Jack Galbraith; S-1 Adjutant, Kurt Allebach; S-2 Adjutant, Brian Martin; S-3 Adjutant, Dave Crum; S-4 Adjutant, Don Johnson; and S-5 Adjutant, Garrett Fisher. Each of these people has specific responsibilities within the ROTC Corps Cadets. Allebach is responsible for personnel, Martin is responsible for the ROTC newsletter, the "Pathfinder," Crum is responsible for training ROTC

Corps Cadets, Johnson is responsible for supplies, and Fisher is responsible for ROTC marketing. Each of these areas were discussed.

William & Mary's ROTC was equally represented, so the two schools could get to know their counterparts for future activities. Semester activities, such as fund raisers and the traditional "dining-in", were discussed. Dining-in is a traditional event in the Army where cadets wear dress uniforms and use proper etiquette.

One of their mutual goals this semester is the Field Training Exercise, which will take place Oct. 25, 26, and 27. The cadets have from now until that date to prepare for the event. It will be a cooperative effort to teach cadets to function in an actual camp environment, like Fort Bragg. According to Garrett Fisher, "This is very helpful to many cadets who will be going into future military settings." The exercise will also teach military skills such as land navigation and the function of the M-16 rifle.

Overall, the two schools met to establish a good working relationship for future activities. "Many topics were covered and established, which should make the semester a successful one," Garrett said.

Results of the meeting will see William & Mary and CNC cadets working together to better themselves and helping to encourage others to excel. The cadets from both schools socialized in the Campus Center after a successful meeting.

ROTC readiness drills help cadets prepare

By Beth Emerson
staff writer

The Ranger Club had their Field Training Exercise last weekend (Sept. 27-29) at Fort Eustis to prepare for a November confrontation with the William & Mary Rangers.

The weekend consisted of classroom time and practical training in the field, with instruction on important tactics such as defense, movement techniques, establishing a patrol base, and other combat readiness procedures.

The rangers and beret candidates began their practical exercises by setting up a defense perimeter. The instructors set up ambushes and snipers to test the rangers' response to capture. Garrett Fisher, an instructor, said "the main objective is to teach the rangers how to be ready at a moment's notice for attack, because this exercise is simulated from real-life situations."

The students learned rappelling techniques, similar to mountain climbing, and participated in a confidence or obstacle course. The candidates who lost at the obstacle course had to buy party favors for the winners at Sunday's party after the exercises.

The instructors evaluated the weekend to keep track of students who had been killed in action. "This weekend was a very serious part of ranger training, because situations that occurred could decide a ranger's life or death," said Fisher.

The rangers also had to capture the flag using group tactics and operations.

The events left little time for the rangers to eat or sleep. Rangers had to 'stand-to' or be ready for attack most of the time, especially between dusk and dawn, primary attack times.

"The entire weekend was a stress-filled exercise designed to test both physical and mental endurance of the candidates," said Fisher. The exercise helped build confidence, camaraderie, and respect among the rangers and it will aid in their confrontation with William & Mary.

COLLEGE CREDIT CARD CORPORATION

College students across the nation are finally getting the credit they deserve, according to John R. Post, Vice President and Director of Bankcard Acquisitions for Citibank. Citibank has announced plans to be a major sponsor of a 24-hour toll-free hotline that will enable thousands of juniors, seniors, and graduate students to request Visa and MasterCard applications over the phone.

Post says that large numbers of students may be qualified for a credit card without knowing it. "If they assume that a well-established credit rating is the bottom line requirement for acceptance, they won't even bother to apply," he says. "We want college students to know that Citibank understands their credit dilemma and takes other factors into consideration, including bank accounts, summer jobs and upcoming employment."

The toll-free College Credit Card Hotline number is 1-800-824-4000 ext. 421.

Student Teaching

Hackney believes stage work is the best possible training

By Diana Dely
staff writer

Russell "Flin" Hackney started as an English major at CNC. He wanted to be a teacher because he "wanted to be close to people." Then, in his second year, he took his first theatre course.

Hackney, now a theatre major, has landed a starring role as Brick in the CNC Theatre's fall production, Cat On A Hot Tin Roof. He still takes literature courses as electives, but says he can reach more people with acting and it is "more fun to be outwardly creative."

Hackney has acted in other CNC Theatre productions, portraying Jigger in Carousel, a role involving some singing, and the elderly Aegeus in Medea. He also played Mike Tallman in the Poquoson Island Players' production of Wait Until Dark.

Brick is a more tragic character than Hackney has done before. In the play, Brick, husband of the "cat," has turned to alcoholism. His close friend, accused of homosexuality, has committed suicide, and Brick's father is dying from cancer.

Hackney said the part is difficult, requiring hard work, but also "a lot of fun." He finds a different insight into the character in every rehearsal, learning all about the stage under the strict professionalism of Dr. Bruno Koch, director. "I have respect for him," said Hackney. "I would feel very bad if I failed to meet his expectations."

Hackney would like to learn more about comedy. "I feel comfortable making people laugh." He has no definite plans for the future; he is too busy learning, although he would like to write.

Asked how he felt about his first lead role, Hackney said he feels no pressure yet, because he sees the characters of Maggie and Big Daddy as the core roles. "I'm not doing it for the recognition," he said. "I'm getting my education on the stage."

Williams feels Maggie is tough

By Ann Catherine Braxton
staff writer

CNC student, Elizabeth Williams, has been cast in the role of the frustrated Maggie in CNC's production of Cat On A Hot Tin Roof. The senior theatre major says it is easily the most challenging role of her career.

Ms. Williams' previous acting roles in CNC productions include Peggy in Godspell, various parts in The Good Doctor, Ismene in Antigone, and the bar hooker in Death of a Salesman. "Maggie is definitely the best and most challenging role I've ever come across," says Williams. "It is one of the most powerful roles ever written for a woman. Maggie is funny, sarcastic, and exciting."

Williams describes Maggie as "a young Southern woman in the 1950's, who has been sexually cut off from her husband Brick. She loves Brick in a very sexual way. She and Brick were college sweethearts and have been married four or five years. Maggie was the daughter of an alcoholic and grew up poor, but Brick's family, the Pollitts, are very rich. Maggie has always wanted to make it big, but she is frustrated by the knowledge of Brick's homosexual tendencies which she finds out about from Brick's best friend, Skipper. She comes to life in the scene where they discuss the relationship between the two men."

Williams says the actors rehearse about 20 to 25 hours a week. In addition to acting, Williams takes voice lessons and hopes to continue in amateur or professional theatre after graduation.

"I really appreciate Dr. Koch's work a lot," she says. "This is my first really big role and I want to do a good job."

Carrie Jones finds time for school and tennisBy Hector Gonzalez
staff writer

If juggling a job and keeping up with the demands of a full college course load sound familiar to many of you, try adding collegiate tennis to the list and you will come up with this week's Captain's Log Profile, CNC Women's Tennis Star, Carrie Jones.

This outgoing and personable senior, majoring in management, has somehow found the time to do all three quite successfully, "although at times it does get hectic," says Carrie.

As a member of last year's much improved Lady Captains, Carrie saw the team come within one or two points of dethroning perennial Dixie Conference Champions, UNC-Greensboro, at the conference tournament.

The Lady Captains won four of their singles titles, with Carrie victorious at her no. 2 spot. Carrie shows a slight touch of disappointment at her and partner, Jenny Nuttymcombe's, defeat in the doubles final. "This will give us something to shoot for this season," adds Carrie.

Besides her tennis talents, Carrie also provides the team with inspirational leadership.

As one of her goals this season, Carrie would like to return to the conference championship, and wrest away the team conference title from UNC-Greensboro, but continues to say the team will have to work harder as a cohesive unit to overcome the lack of depth in certain areas.

Carrie believes CNC offers something for everyone. She particularly likes the environment—friendly students and close association with her professors.

Carrie eventually would like to put her degree to good use by owning her own business, or working in a management position for a local firm.

Soccer team wins
an important gameBy Rob Jozwiak
staff writer

The CNC Captains hosted Longwood College this past Wednesday in a heated rivalry. The Captains held their composure and pulled together as a team to defeat Longwood 2-1.

The first goal came when a Longwood player attempted to clear the ball and instead kicked it into the goal for the Captains. The game was tied for most of the match until the two minute mark when Gerard Mosley scored on an assist from Tom Hammond.

Coach Seth Roland was pleased with the way the Captains came back from being down 1-0, and constantly pressured the ball and frustrated the Longwood players enough to win the game. "This was a very important game in the Virginia Intercollegiate Soccer Association (VISA), as we are in the same division as Longwood, and it is very important to get off to a good start," explained Coach Roland.

Emotions were running high as the Captains were hit with two yellow cards, and Longwood was hit with two yellow cards and one red card. Yellow cards are given for dangerous or unsportsmanlike play and red cards are given for a deliberate foul with intent to injure.

The Captains traveled to North Carolina over the weekend to play Greensboro College and University of North Carolina at Greensboro (UNC-G). Roland was looking forward to both games. "Against Greensboro, I'm hoping we can jump on them with an early lead and hold on for the win," he said. "While against UNC-G, I'm looking for the guys to play with intensity, intelligence and poise, as UNC-G is ranked eighth in the nation among Division III schools."

The Captains will host Averett College Saturday at 2 p.m. in an important Dixie and VISA Conference game.

The Good ol' Boys win as flag football continuesBy Mel DeLaGarza
staff writer

The third week of flag football continued last weekend, with Men-of-War (2-1) facing Sigma Tau Off (1-2), while the second game pitted I.P. Amgis (1-2) against the Good ol' Boys (3-0). The Sandlot 69ers, ROTC, and Team Honus all had the week off.

In the first game, Men-of-War and Sigma Tau Off fared pretty evenly at the start, with both teams tightening up near the goal. But early in the second quarter, Men-of-War linebacker, Jeff Bowyer, intercepted a pass and returned it 25 yards for a touchdown.

The play of the day came in the second half, when Sigma Tau Off QB, Jeff Blades, turned a busted play into a touchdown. A serious pass rush by Men-of-War pressured Blades to roll out, which caused him to bobble the ball and shot-out it two-handed to Kit Palmer, who ran it in for the score from 20 yards out.

However, undaunted Men-of-War QB, Mike Blanchard, regrouped his team and came back with a 45 yard strike to Jerry Rutherford, who took it in for the touchdown. Another early sting by Men-of-War made the final score 20-6.

In the second game, I.P. Amgis and the Good ol' Boys found themselves not only battling the heat and each other, but the clock as well. In this aerial show, the Good ol' Boys made it clear that their's was the team to beat.

I.P. Amgis struck first, with QB, Mike Krank, connecting on a fifty yarder to Bill Wescott. But well-rested Todd Repass (he didn't play last week because it rained) flicked a pass to fleet-footed Mike Cooke, who outran the Amgis defense 85 yards for six.

After the half, Repass lengthened the Good ol' Boys' lead by bootlegging it down the sideline 50 yards. Amgis QB, Bill Wescott, brought his team back by connecting to John Lackey for a touchdown, and then throwing to Rob Hyatt for the extra point.

However, even a stingy defense led by Dave "The Intimidator" Christiansen wasn't enough to keep Good ol' Boys' Brian Schuhart, John St. George, and Mike Cooke from stretching the score to 26-13.

VOLLEYBALL (10-3, 5-2) - Before the current season began CNC volleyball coach John Baumann had some doubts as to whether the Lady Captains would even be able to field a team in 1985. At one point he was down to three players. But Bauman and the Lady Captains retrenched and couldn't be happier about the outcome.

CNC defeated UNC-Greensboro, defending Dixie Conference champions, 15-12, 8-15, 11-15, 15-8, 15-12, Sunday for its seventh consecutive victory and a 10-3 record. Not bad for a team that almost didn't exist. Earlier in the week the Lady Captains had defeated North Carolina Wesleyan, Averett and Greensboro to bring their conference mark to 5-2, good enough for third place.

Senior Tina Sage was named Dixie Conference Player of the Week for her efforts. During the week she hit at a fine .400 rate for the seven matches including 55 kills. She also added 12 service aces and 34 digs. Junior Dawn Terry also had a great week with a .348 hitting percentage, plus 15 blocks and 19 digs.

The Lady Captains have a major Dixie Conference test Saturday, at home, against second place St. Andrews.

SAILING - CNC fared quite well in its first venture into sailing as a varsity sport.

The Captains took second place overall at the Watergate Minors, with Charlie Brewer taking 1st place in the "A" Division and Tim Kelly third place in "B".

Navy won the event on the Potomac with 27½ points. CNC was second with 42½, while Georgetown was third at 47½, Pennsylvania fourth at 75, tied with St. Mary's.

CROSS COUNTRY - CNC's men finished second in their own Invitational, while the women were first in a three-team race Saturday.

Salisbury St. took the men's title with 29 points, while CNC totaled 36. Dan Pittman finished second overall with a time of 26:01, while Steve Kast ran third in 26:05.

Freshman Leigh Anne Beale paced the women's victory with a new course record, 19:13, for 5,000 meters. Junior Karen Humphrey finished second for CNC and fourth overall, in her first race back from a leg injury.

CNC's top five:

Men
2. Dan Pittman	26:01
