FYI

All of us are aware that the current budget problems have required that some tough choices be made in deciding which and what types of services we can supply.

As a result, this will be last issue of the CNC CHRONICLE distributed to every employee. From now on the newsletter will be distributed only to Deans, Department Chairs and Directors who are asked to post the CHRONICLE in a readily accessible place.

Also, flyers announcing new courses, lectures, etc., will not be able to be printed as is. Instead, we will summarize the information in paragraph form.

We apologize for any inconvenience this may cause, but it is a necessary cost-cutting move.

New Service

The Financial Aid Office has a private scholarship search service that is inexpensive ($10) and comprehensive. It uses a computer software program called CASHE and is run on CNC's HP mainframe. The program matches the characteristics of the student against the selection criteria of thousands of private scholarships. The search service is available to CNC students, staff, faculty, their families and the community at large. The program can be used for undergraduate or graduate study at CNC or at any other school. Information sheets or application forms are available in the Financial Aid Office or in Career Services in the Campus Center.

FYI

The search for a Director of Grants has been suspended indefinitely. Mr. Jim Eagle will continue as Acting Director.

FACULTY, STAFF, STUDENT NEWS

Dr. Larry Sacks presented two seminars at Western Illinois University on October 4. "Thinking Skills in a Lab Science," an invited presentation as part of the WIU Critical Thinking program, described some general features of the critical thinking program at CNC and recent changes in two chemistry courses in particular. A seminar in the Chemistry Dept. described a new approach to thermodynamics, particularly with respect to the origin and significance of the entropy function and clarifications of the First Law that obviates its use.

I would like to take the opportunity to say thanks to the faculty and staff for their words of sympathy expressed during my time of sorrow following my mother's death. -- Larry A. Warren, Postal Technician.

Wendell Barbour has been selected as a delegate to the Virginia Governor's Conference on Library and Information Services on November 10-11, 1990 in Richmond. The purpose of the state conference is to select 12 delegates to attend the White House Conference on Libraries and Information Services in 1991 and to identify library issues that need to be considered at the national conference.

CNC CRIME RATE LOWEST IN VIRGINIA

Christopher Newport College has the lowest incidence of crime among Virginia's four-year state institutions, according to a report by the Virginia State Police.

The report, which tracks crimes in eight categories, is published annually by the State Police. The eight categories are arson, motor vehicle theft, larceny, burglary, aggravated assault, robbery, forcible rape, and murder and non-negligent manslaughter.

CNC reported 22 larcenies in 1989, down from 31 in 1988. Crimes of this type were the only ones reported at the Newport News campus.

"We are certainly pleased that the crime rate is dropping at Christopher Newport," said college President Dr. Anthony R. Santoro. "But we really won't be satisfied until that number reaches zero."

Doctor Santoro attributes much of the drop to the visibility of the campus police and an increased awareness among students, faculty and staff.
