All students deeply concerned with the quality of The Captain's Log are strongly urged to participate on staff. It is too easy to sit back and criticize the work of others. Turn some of that negative energy into positive effort! As the saying goes, "If you're not part of the solution, you're part of the problem."

Pro-Choice boycotts Domino's

by J. M. Rubin
college press service

Angered by the head of the Domino's Pizza chain's $60,000 donation to a radical anti-abortion group, some campus women's groups want to convince college students around the country to stop buying from Domino's.

"This is an issue students can focus on, one where they can be effective. What's more important than pizza?" asked Sally Packard of Goucher College's (Md.) Women's Issues Group.

So far, it's had a dizzying effect on some pro-choice groups. "One day we were buying it and the next day we were mad at them," said Colleen Dermody, press liaison at the National Organization for Women's (NOW) Washington, D.C. headquarters. "This is serious. Feminists live on Domino's pizza."

The effect so far on Domino's, which considers the campus market as one of its most important, can't be measured, company public relations director Ron Hingst said.

The groups — led by NOW — are aiming to hurt Tom Monaghan, who built Domino's into a giant 500-store franchise operation. Monaghan has used his fortune to buy the Detroit Tigers, amass a huge collection of houses and furniture designed by Frank Lloyd Wright and, especially in recent years, agitate against abortion.

Most recently, he gave $50,000 to Operation Rescue, a militant anti-abortion group that is best known for harassing women as they try to enter abortion clinics.

Domino's Farms, the pizza chain's parent firm, also donated $10,000 to the group.

"We're protesting the gift to this specific group," said Connecticut College senior Stephanie Muller of POWER (People Organized for Women's Rights). "Their tactics are particularly radical and obstructive to women's groups."

NOW Vice President Pat Ireland called group members "the racketeers of the Right to Life movement."

She said group members have physically blocked clinics' entries, "called every five minutes to tie up phone lines (and) made false appointments, giving them access to waiting rooms and keeping legitimate clients out. They harangue patients and staff, shout things like 'baby killer,' and are generally very threatening."

Founded by fundamentalist Randall Terry, 29, Operation Rescue "is definitely the most rambunctious group on this side," agreed Rachel MacNair of Feminists For Life of America, a Kansas City, Mo., based Right to Life group.

"I don't know why he chose that particular group," Kerry McNulty, a spokesman for the Ann Arbor, Michigan-based firm said of Monaghan's gift to Operation Rescue, speculating it was "out of personal convictions."

Monaghan himself could not be reached for comment.

Operation Rescue spokeswoman Barb Magarra was grateful for the gift, but said group members didn't need it to continue "to put their bodies on the line to intervene in stopping the premeditated murder of preborn children and the exploitation of American women."

While Magarra agreed collegians might be disturbed by the group's tactics, she compared them "to those used by Martin Luther King and Gandhi. The pro-death people are in a rage because our tactics are effective."

And while some students may boycott Domino's, Magarra said others are "taking semesters off to dedicate their time to rescuing. All college students in America are not left liberal feminist socialists."

The boycott itself has started slowly since NOW proposed it in early March.

Some NOW organizers attribute it to being too busy organizing an early April pro-choice march on Washington, D.C., to get the word out to campuses about a boycott.

As of March 6, for example, groups at Arizona State University and the University of Missouri-Kansas City had not heard of the effort.

But campus chapters of NARAL (National Abortion Rights Action League) at the universities of Texas and Illinois responded quickly to boycott calls.

At Goucher in Maryland, students are fanning out to spread the effort to neighboring Johns Hopkins and Towson State universities.

Texas-Austin campus NOW coordinator Danalyn Recer expected to have pickets out at nearby Domino's within a week of hearing about it.

"They get an enormous share of the campus market," Recer said of Domino's. "We could see an immediate effect."

At Connecticut College, where feminist groups were among the first to act on the boycott, "We have posters on campus asking students to support local pizza makers and giving their phone numbers," Muller reported.

Muller maintained that "We don't want to hurt the individual franchises. We want to pressure the parent company."

"I think it's unfair," the parent company's Hingst charged. "They (the boycotters) don't understand the franchise business. They're taking their argument to the wrong place. The franchisees are individual businessmen."

Under such arrangements, local businesspeople buy equipment, supplies, signs and marketing help from the parent company, but own the local stores them-

New York, New York: what's the deal?

by Tom Gibson
opinions editor

New York. If you can make it there, you can make it anywhere (that is, if you survive).

If you are not personally familiar with the mid-town Manhattan area, perhaps you have heard about it from some pessimistic people:

New York! That's where all the murderers and thieves hang out. They have clubs where they practice their craft and get drunk.

And the drivers. They're maniacs! They reduce speed just enough to give you a feeling of safety. But once you're halfway across the street...Splat! You're licking the asphalt.

Crazy people wander the streets, too. They come out at night – from the sewers and subway – up from the underworld. All these people are out at night – the drunken murderers and thieves, the maniac drivers and the crazy street wanderers.

And they look for tourists. They know which ones are out-of-towners by the way these visitors stand about staring upwards at buildings.

So don't go to New York. You'll die!

That might be something you'd hear, but! after a recent trip there, I give you: New York, the way it is.

The town is fine by day, but night time is the right time to see sights. This is when one can meet some truly interesting people. For example, there was one man who wanted to sell me a watch. He had them sitting on a trashbin at a corner. They were nice watches, but I already had one.

"You wanna buy a watch, man?" (He called me Man. I liked that.) And being a man, I said in a manly way, "No, thank you. But as a man, I appreciate you're asking."

Another man stood by me at a corner. Now, this man had been drinking. I knew this after he breathed in my direction, I felt as if I had downed six or seven beers. I walked away with a slight buzz, and I remember thinking how lucky I was that I didn't have a lit cigarette at the time.

This man followed me a couple blocks, all the while shouting something about killing someone. However, I don't think he was one of those drunken murderers, unless he intended on doing someone in with his breath.

I met other people as well. There was a lady lying against a building talking. Now, with whom she was conversing is unknown. I, at first, believed her to be directing her speech towards me. But I realized I was mistaken when she mentioned that I, or her imaginary friend, didn't show up somewhere. As I walked on, she continued to talk. Perhaps later that evening, the person she was speaking to arrived. I never found out; I was meeting more people.

Another lady asked me for directions, "Where's 30th?" I didn't get a chance to answer since the person I was with had already begun moving across the street, and she wasn't waiting for me. So I politely snubbed the woman, (if that's possible) and as I moved on, she began a chorus of the "Where's 30th" song.

Murderers or thieves? I didn't meet any. Crazy people? Well, that's subjective. Maniac drivers?

Oh, I forgot the maniac drivers. Actually, anyone who can drive on streets where the white lines are simply there as a suggestion to drivers (if they want them), is not someone who is maniacal, but a very experienced driver.

I expected to see at least one accident, but no, it was an eventless trip – no car crashes and no people splatterings.

No, there's nothing wrong with New York. It's a great town – best seen at night, or...And this is my personal favorite. Sit in the hotel bar listening to what other people did. Then, go home and tell your friends these memorable stories or relate them to your relatives.

Nope, no civil war here

by Nathan Smith
staff writer

On April 9, 1889 it will have been 124 years since The American Civil War ended between the southern and northern states of the United States of America. This "The American Civil War," 1861-1865, wasn't a "civil war" as it has been called by most people both north and south.

At the time of this war, it was known by many names, "The War Between the States," was the most used. Another was "The War of Northern Aggression."

The definition of "civil war" according to the American Heritage Dictionary, copyright 1969: civil war – a war between factions or regions of one country.

Noah Webster's Original 1828 dictionary Vol. 1 edition: civil war – a war between opposing groups of people from the same country fought within that country.

Still another definition, from the Thorndike Barnhart Dictionary, copyright 1955: civil war – 1) a war between two groups of citizens of one nation 2) civil war, a) American war between the northern and southern States of the United States from 1861-1865. b) war between Charles I of England and Parliament, from 1642-1646 and from 1648-1652.

Also Funk and Wagnalls Standard Dictionary, 1960: civil war – war between parties of the same government, between states within a nation, between fellow citizens, etc.

Basically, a civil war is between groups within one nation, fighting for control of that nation. The civil war in England did follow the definitions of "civil war". The war of 1861-65 in America did not. The English civil war of the 17th century was between the King and Parliament. Both groups were of the same nation, as the definition states.

Why wasn't "The American Civil War" a "civil war"? Because the American war did not meet the definition of "civil war". When the war started in 1861, the United States had been divided into two separate countries. These were The United States and The Confederate States. So this war was between two countries instead of two groups within one country.

Eleven southern states of the United States had seceded from the Union in 1861 and had formed a new nation which they had named The Confederate States of America. The capital was placed in Montgomery, Alabama but was soon moved to Richmond, Virginia after that state had seceded.

As the new nation made up of the southern states was organizing its new government, United States President Abraham Lincoln ordered Union troops under Gen. Irvin McDowell to go south toward Richmond to put down the rebellion.

The new Confederate nation organized an army mostly of volunteers to meet the federal army and then they both clashed in battle near Manassas, Virginia. This battle became known as the "Battle of First Manassas" or "Battle of Bull Run" (named after Bull Run Creek nearby). It resulted in

Captains Classic profitable for CNC

Ed Milling won the 100m and 200m, setting a meet mark in the 100m of 10.95 and winning the 200m in 22.6. Sophomore Stacy Proctor won the 400m hurdles in 58.84 and the 400m relay team won in 43.42.

Sheila Trice won the 100m, 200m and the triple jump, setting meet records in the 200m of 25.00, in the triple jump of 37-7½ and winning the 100m in 12.24. Anita Burley took the long jump (17-11½), Patina Walton won the 400m in a meet record 59.58 and the 400m relay team won in 48.35.

CNC hosted its own Captain's Classic last weekend. The men's team placed fifth out of 19 teams, while the women's team placed second out of 16 teams.

Baseball 50% in DIAC

A slow start for the baseball team last week. The Captains won one of three games against newcomers, Ferrum (7-1, 3-8, 7-17) lost a doubleheader to Randolph Macon (7-8, 0-6), and had a close defeat by William & Mary, 5-4.

Saturday the team played three against Va. Wesleyan. The team won the first and last games, 7-6 and 2-1, losing the second game 3-9. The team is 4-11 all around, 3-3 in the conference.

Golfers win opener

The Captains golf team won a four team match-up last week. CNC placed first with 312, followed by Apprentice 320, Va. Wesleyan 328, and Hampton 343.

Senior Barry Head won medal honors with a 75. Warren West added 77; Jack Bizzell had 78.

Strothers wins 2nd

Lamont Strothers racked up his second All-American award. The Basketball Times nominated him second team Division III All-American.

Women get 3 wins

The women's tennis team posted three wins of four matches last week, losing only to Division I Old Dominion. The team beat Lynchburg 7-2, Va. Wesleyan 5-4, and N.C. A&T, 9-0.

Men beat local rival

The men's tennis team had an easy victory over the Apprentice School, 9-0, but not so with VMI and Mary Washington. The Captains lost both matches, 7-2 and 6-3. Brian Fleishman held his own, winning his singles and doubles matches against VMI and MWC.

CNC downs Monarchs

The Lady Captains split a doubleheader with Buffalo State, winning the first 10-8, losing the closing game, 13-1.

CNC also picked up its first conference win against Methodist, 12-11, but lost the other match-up with the Lady Monarchs, 6-4.

Earlier in the week, CNC dropped all four games in doubleheaders against Va. Wesleyan and Canisius College.

Strength equals a balanced mix Outlook for Baseball's spring season

An infusion of freshman talent, several transfers and ten key returning veterans gives Christopher Newport baseball coach Howard Wiseman good reason to feel he'll have as strong a team as he has ever had in seven previous seasons with the Captains.

Wiseman has a potential five-man starting pitching rotation that includes four vets, five more who will anchor what could be CNC's strongest defensive lineup ever, a proven designated hitter and lots of young talent.

The Captain infield should be as solid defensively as any CNC has ever had previously. Sophomore Brad Vincent returns at first after hitting .274 in a season shortened by injury. He'll be backed up by freshman Greg Mears and junior Bobby Holland.

Junior Brett Lollar, who missed last year with an injury, is giving veteran Bobby Robinson (.259 last season) a strong run at second, while freshman Tony Clark, a transfer from Elon, looks like the choice at shortstop, backed up by Mike Conway. That would move junior Dave Lindsay (.277 with a national record 17 hit by pitches) to third, giving CNC a strong left side of the infield.

Senior Benny Elliott (.283 with 15

RBIs last season) will take over behind the plate, and will be in the starting rotation, with freshman Chris Throckmorton (a transfer from Wake Forest) as the No. 2 catcher.

The outfield is brand new, but as quick and talented as Wiseman could hope for. Freshman Shaun Starcher will likely get the call in left, freshman Kevin Burton, a transfer from N.C. Wesleyan, in center and sophomore transfer John Harvell from Howard University, in right. Junior Mike Wiechman (.272 and 14 RBIs) and sophomore Bobby Holland, who will both be starting pitchers, could see some outfield action along with sophomore Warren Holden and freshmen Chuck Bates.

Junior Bryan Wheeler, freshman Steve Norton, and Holland, Wiechman and Elliott give CNC a good starting pitching staff, while freshmen Gabe Jenkins will be joined in the bullpen by Robinson and Lollar.

Sophomore Mike Meadows, who hit .295 with five home runs and 28 RBIs last year, will be the designated hitter.

Wiseman will also have freshmen Tommy Holland (transferring from Radford), T.J. Foy, Brad Hasty and Kurt Farmer to fill in where needed.

Lady Captains comprised of depth & youth

Quality and quality is the way coach Pat Accettola likes to describe her 1989 team. It's something she's been waiting to say.

Accettola has five regulars, two others who have played before who will fill in as need be, and six newcomers, several who will play immediately.

In addition, sophomore Dawn LeCount and senior Yvette Renaud will be available for reserve duty.

But what will make CNC stronger than in many recent years will be the addition of six new players brought in by Accettola.

Freshman Stephanie Seward and Tammy Rowe both transferred to CNC from Radford and figure prominently in Accettola's plans. Seward is from Southampton H.S. while Rowe is from Gloucester H.S.

Amy Lawrence, another freshman, was a fine player at nearby Tabb H.S., while freshman Angela Edwards played at Forest Glen H.S.

Jenny Oakes and Heather Wortham, both Freshmen from Poquoson H.S., give CNC better depth than it has ever had before.

"Survival of the Spirit"

Christopher Newport College's Political Science Department and the United Jewish Community Center present "Survival of the Spirit", Jewish Lives in the Soviet Union, on April 2, 1989, at 7:30 p.m. in Anderson Auditorium A-105.

"Survival of the Spirit" is a traveling exhibition organized by Houston Action for Soviet Jewry. The stirring photographic images document a 1986 encounter with over 30 Jewish families in the Soviet Union. It is the story of a community living as outcasts within its own society, caught in limbo between a painful past and an uncertain future — yet determined to keep on fighting for freedom and dignity.

The exhibit features 35 photographs by Janice Rubin and text by Nomi Morris.

Rubin's photographs have appeared in numerous publications internationally including Newsweek, Fortune, and the New York Times Magazine. Morris is a Canadian writer who has written for the Jerusalem Post, Newsday, and Maclean's, Canada's national news magazine.

Opening the presentation will be Abraham Bayer, International Director of the National Jewish Community Relations Advisory Council in New York. The exhibition is free and open to the public, and refreshments will be served.

For more information call CNC's Political Science Department at 594-7110, or Dr. Mark Nataupsky at 930-2124.

Harassment forum

Have you ever experienced unwanted sexual teasing, jokes, remarks, or questions? Unwelcome pressure for dates? Physical contact that made you uncomfortable? Sexually-related humiliation or embarrassment?

If so, you may want to look in on an open forum on "Sexual Harassment: Myths and Realities/Not For Women Only" on Wed., April 12 from 10 a.m. until noon in A-105.

Designed as a "drop in" event, the forum will begin with Ruth Jones, Assistant to the President and Affirmative Action Officer at ODU, showing a 25-minute video tape titled "Recognizing and Preventing Sexual Harassment on Campus."

Jones will highlight examples of subtle to blatant sexual harassment and lead discussion on what CNC can do to recognize and address the problem. Afterwards, a panel of students and faculty will respond.

The CNC Faculty Women's Caucus and United Campus Ministries are sponsors for the forum which is open to all members of the college community.

Victim's rights week

Governor Baliles has proclaimed April 9-15, 1989 as Victims Rights Week in Virginia.

Have you or someone you know been a victim of a crime? Have you been physically injured as a victim of crime? Have you been legally dependent for support from a victim? Have you been responsible for medical or funeral expenses for a victim who died?

If the crime occurred in Virginia, was not a vehicle accident (victims of drunk drivers may qualify), and not employment related, and if the crime was reported within 120 hours, the claim has a value in excess of $100 and you are willing to cooperate with law enforcement agencies and the courts, and the claim is filed within 180 days of the crime you may qualify.

Victims may receive payments for medical expenses, wage loss, and certain expenses caused by the crime.

If you feel you have been a victim of crime write or call: Division of Crime Victims Compensation, P.O. Box 5423, Richmond, Virginia 23220. Telephone: 1-800-552-4007. Or contact Campus Police for information.

CRIME HURTS...
YOU CAN HELP.

Crimes are sudden, unpredictable, and arbitrary events. Most crimes produce a crisis in the victim's life. In the case of rape and other violent crimes, the victim's life may be changed forever.

CNC Shorts Series

Christopher Newport College's Writers Series 1989 resumes on Thurs., April 13, when six CNC students read their own fiction and poetry, and the 1989 issue of Currents, the campus literary magazine, debuts.

The program, beginning at 7:30 p.m., will be held in the Campus Center Board Room (CC-214).

Students reading their poetry include Rob Fentress, Clarence Hill, Phil Lyliston, and Gail McQuigg.

Betsy Creamer and Jane Hoppen will read short stories.

At the end of the program, Currents editor Eric Mathews will award the annual prizes for art, poetry, and prose.

Everyone is welcome. Writers Series 1989 is sponsored by the English Department.

"Blithe Spirit"

The CNC Theatre opens its spring production of Blithe Spirit, Noel Coward's most successful comedy hit, on Fri., April 7 in the John W. Gaines Theatre.

Curtain time is 8 p.m. The cast will feature Russell Hackney as Charles Condomine, Susan Stein as his wife Ruth, Tina Terrell as his first wife Elvira, Margie Thomas as Madame Arcati, Mike Diana as Dr. Bradman, and Cindy Kreicar as Mrs. Bradman. Lynne Matejka plays Edith.

The production is directed by Bruno Koch. Hank Sparks is in charge of scene design, David Balthrop is lighting designer, Laurel Tsirimokos is costume designer and Steve Wesen is stage manager.

Tickets are $5. Discounts are available for groups and senior citizens. For reservations call 594-7089. Additional performances are scheduled for April 8, 14, and 15.

Luncheon

United Campus Ministries will host a lunch for Methodist students on Mon., April 10 and another for Episcopal students on Tues., April 11. Both lunches will begin at noon in the Banquet Room of Christopher's.

These informal lunches will bring together students and pastors from their respective denominations to get to know one another on the students' turf.

All Methodist and Episcopal students are invited. To make a reservation, call the campus ministry office at 595-7604. A reservation will insure you a free lunch. Without a reservation, come anyway, but bring your own lunch.

T. Alex D'Agostino – President

The policies I will follow if elected stem from a few ideals of how an organization should be run. These ideals include standardized procedures for meetings, communication, inclusiveness and cooperation.

It has been made quite obvious this semester that a standardized procedure is needed to maintain order. No longer will proposals, votes and voices be shoved aside due to a sudden change in procedure.

Communication with the student body is the next step. If the student body is to have an impact on the decisions of the SGA, it must be kept aware of all present and future plans. A constant effort will be made to keep all students informed of the actions and plans of the SGA.

Furthermore, all students wishing to join will be welcomed and included in all SGA functions. In accordance with this, I will attempt to remove the limit placed on membership which barricades the SGA from the student body.

Finally, there's cooperation. The SGA will work closely with other school organizations, serving to unite the campus and work for the benefit of each and every student. With strong leadership and the proper policies, the student government can unite CNC and champion the student body.

T. A. D'Agostino for President of the SGA.

I, Suzanna Geithmann, am currently SGA's Vice President for Student Affairs (VPSA), and a graduate of CNC's first Student Leadership Institute (1988). Now, I am seeking the office of SGA President for the upcoming year. As SGA's VPSA, I not only accomplished my campaign goals (listed below), but I also gained increased student input by becoming a member of the Campus Center Committee, the Residence Hall Owners Committee, and the College Handbook Committee.

As SGA Vice President for Student Affairs during 1988-1989, I set and accomplished these goals.

Goal: To create a forum in which the President of CNC organizations have influence over SGA's direction and current projects, and have a positive effect on our campus as a unified group. Accomplished: Initiated and lead the "Presidents' Council" from Fall 1988-present.

Goal: To institute a Master Calendar of Student Activities. Accomplished: Instituted a two month Student Activity Calendar Display Case in Campus Center Lobby September 1988. Accomplished: Initiated a two week Student Activity Calendar on last page of The Captain's Log.

Goal: To assist in training sessions for CNC social events. Accomplished: Completed TIPS (Training Intervention Procedures for Servers of Alcohol) Workshop and became a Trainer. Began offering TIPS Workshops January 1989.

Goal: To create forms helpful for organizations planning an event on any scale. Accomplished: Created the Program Planning Tool and Work Schedule forms now found in the Office of Student Life.

As SGA President 1989-90 I will lobby for parking funds, formalize plans for day care, increase club office space and increase SGA publicity.

My accomplishments speak for themselves. My promises are not empty. I achieve what I set out to do. Remember YOUR VOTE is YOUR LINK. KEEP YOUR SGA LINK STRONG!! VOTE SUZANNA GEITHMANN SGA PRESIDENT!!

J. T. Thornton – VPSA

It is the intention of this candidate to run for the Office of Vice President for Student Affairs of the SGA with the purpose of bettering the student organizations here on campus. I feel that this goal can be accomplished through several programs which I would implement as your Vice President.

First, I feel it very important that organizations have a structured forum for them to express ideas and share common concerns. This is currently done through the President's Council. Under my tenure as Vice President, I will ensure that the Council continues to provide the presidents of this campus a place to air grievances.

The second major problem that I view here at CNC is the lack of participation in the SGA. Everyone has a solution to the problem; however, only a comprehensive plan can resolve this situation. I feel that it's time for those organizations who have taken from the SGA over the years (financially) give a little back by sending representatives to the meetings. This would not only strengthen the SGA in numbers, but also allow the SGA to know exactly how each organization is going to be affected by impending actions.

The third and final situation that plagues my mind is the fact that lately the SGA meetings have been attended by a increasing number of faculty/staff and administration. The mere presence does not bother me. However, when they bring proposals before the group, why must they be there for the entire process? This is the student's government association, meaning students participate. The faculty/staff and administration need not be presenting proposals to the body. This will be another problem that I will try and correct. In conclusion, I think my entire platform can be summed up in my campaign slogan: MORE COMMUNICATION! LESS ADMINISTRATION! Vote for J. T. Thornton for VPSA!

After two years at CNC, I, Kippy McGehee, desire to serve you, the student body, as Vice President of Student Affairs.

During the past year, I have served on the following committees: Elections, Smoking Policy, Constitutional Review, and Library Advisory.

Leadership roles I have assumed include Student Senator, a position which gave me the opportunity to stand in for various Executive Board members.

Through SGA involvement, I was selected as a 1989 NACA delegate and nominated for the American Collegiate Student Government Award.

My main concern is that students and SGA be mutually aware of each other. I plan to publish a monthly newsletter supporting CNC's performers and athletes, encouraging organizational interaction, and informing students of SGA's workings.

To increase representation, I would lobby for more student positions on liaison committees and work toward creating a House of Representatives from the Presidents' Council.

Being TIPS certified, I'm interested in strengthening the TIPS program. I would also like to have speakers focusing on individual development.

Although you have only caught a glimpse of my ambitions if elected, I hope you've realized I'm interested in serving YOU and letting your voice be heard! See you on election day!

Kippy McGehee – VPSA

Monique Kowitz – VPSA

My expected accomplishments as Vice President of Student Affairs consist of the following:

- To develop ways to get more student input on what they want the student government to do for them.

- To successfully carry out the programs of the SGA for the good of the school and the student body.

- To make myself accessible to the students and the administration.
- To represent all the student body at the SGA meetings.

- To bring attention and support to CNC student activities in academics, athletics, and leisure pastimes.

- To make SGA workings more public and make the students more aware of SGA activities.

- To publish a monthly newsletter of changes and items of discussion in SGA meetings for distribution to all students.

- To be a good leader, listener, and advisor to the student, organizations, and other members of the SGA.

To fully see through to completion each program decided upon by the SGA. I have given these expected accomplishments much thought and fully intend to honor each one of them through leadership, dedication, and perseverance. I look forward to being able to serve each student individually and CNC as a whole. Monique Kowitz for VPSA.

There is a lot of responsibility that goes into holding any office, especially the office of Vice President of Student Affairs. I believe I am the person this school needs to take on that responsibility. As a Biology Major I have proven my Academic responsibility by being placed on the 1988-89 National Dean's List, as a 1988-89 winner of the United States Achievement Academy and as a member of the SGA I have demonstrated my Extracurricular responsibility, and as a member of the 1988-89 Student Leadership Institute I have proven my leadership ability.

When you get right down to it, though, responsibility doesn't matter much if you don't have ideas to use it. That is why I choose to run, not because it's glamorous or fun, but because I have ideas to help you, the student body.

This year my platform consists of four parts: Credit for Varsity Athletics, Day care, an Activity period, and an Organizational Bill Of Rights.

If you look carefully, at least part of my platform affects almost every member of the student body, that's you. By combining your vote and the voice your vote can give me, we can get some great things done on campus. So remember – VOTE BRIAN LAMPRECHT for VICE PRESIDENT OF STUDENT AFFAIRS!!

Christopher Newport College is growing rapidly every year. It is time that we as college students realize the need for strong leadership to steer CNC in the right direction. In a few years, this school will no longer be a "transfer" college for people who want to move on to a larger college. With the vast expansion, people are realizing that they do not have to go to Charlottesville or Blacksburg for a good education. The education needed for a strong future is in their own backyard.

Transformation from high school to college can be a frightening experience, but it does not have to be. I would like to spearhead a committee that will help CNC students adapt to the growing academic and social pressures associated with college life.

Every day, students at CNC go to class and then go home. When the dorms are completed and the students move in the growth of this college will increase at a phenomenal rate. The college will be more attractive to students who want to get away from home, but they don't want to get so far away that they can't come home when they want to. CNC will also look better for out-of-state students and to national organizations looking for expansion. In order for CNC to be more appealing, we need to bring the various groups of students together as a whole. We no longer need to be the Rugby Team, Sigma Tau Gamma Fraternity, Sigma Pi Fraternity, or any other on campus group; we need to be Christopher Newport College.

Douglas G. Hackworth for Vice President of Academic Affairs.

My name is Angela Jones and I am a rising junior majoring in Accounting. Having been in the SGA for two years and served as the Chairman of the Elections Committee, I feel that I am highly qualified for the office of Vice President of Academic Affairs.

As Vice President of Academic Affairs, I would like to formulate a more constructive tutoring program. This program will be an outlet for students who are seeking help outside the classroom.

To improve the overall academics of CNC, I would like to start a Scholarship Program: An Incentive for Academic Success. This program will be designed to work with other organizations in sponsoring such seminars as Improving Study Skills and The Art of Taking Notes. The objective of this program is to aid students in improving their academics while balancing work and social activities. In addition, I would like to implement a Student of the Month Award.

Some of my other activities and leadership roles include being a member of the United States Achievement Academy, Secretary of the Academic Hearing Board, Student Orientation Leader, a brother of Alpha Kappa Psi Professional Business Fraternity, and I am TIPS certified.

When deciding on your choice, MAKE NO BONES, VOTE FOR JONES.

And what about the student government?

New Heights In The Depths Of Student Apathy

Student politicians like to complain that students are apathetic about campus governments, but it could be that students just can't remember who they've elected.

The latest proof: only 18 percent of the Marquette University students polled in mid-February could name their student body president. In response, President Mike McCarthy swore "name recognition isn't important."

In December, Iowa State student President Doug Martin explained away a poll showing that only 23 percent of ISU's populace could name him by saying it reflected what a good job he was doing at avoiding controversy. In February, alas, some student Senate opponents accused him of misusing student funds.

In the event anyone can remember student leaders' names long enough to want to call them, Florida Atlantic University's student government has decided to buy beepers for its four top officers.

"The whole idea is to make ourselves more accessible to people," vice president Mitch Albert, who must chair the optimism committee, told The Atlantic Sun, FAU's student paper.

Albert claimed people are actually calling them, though he said the experiment's most persistent result is that one officer has been plagued by a "prank beeper" who has called as many as 12 times during one day simply for nuisance value.

Of course, disrespect for student politicians isn't always random. Some people go out of their way to cultivate it. In February, for instance, University of Utah student government vice president Grant Sperry announced he would run for student president even though he'll graduate before his term would start.

Sperry is running as the candidate of the Tupperware Party.

He told the Daily Utah Chronicle the Tupperware Party differs from the Who Cares? party, which fielded candidates in last spring's races. Who Cares? party candidates, Sperry said, did not intend to win. Tupperware party candidates this spring, he contended, are much more serious about not winning.

Role Models In The Administration

Students aren't the only campus leaders to help the wheels of higher education grind to a halt.

Sometimes adults do a good job of it, too:

Michigan Tech housing director John Kilmar banned anyone participating in the Winter Carnival beard-growing contest from working in dorm cafeterias.

And after spending $70,000 to install 10 automated doors to make its campus more accessible to wheelchair-bound students, administrators at the State University of New York at Stony Brook discovered in mid-February the doors themselves kept breaking. They blamed bad craftsmanship and students "fooling around" for the doors' frequent breakdowns, but still others noted sliding doors are simply inappropriate for the heavy use they typically get in high-traffic areas like campuses.

And The Winner Is...

Ken Walter, 27, claims he's been an undergraduate at the University of Arizona for nine years.

Walter has had four majors, has played on UA's water polo team, and was the founder of the UA Leisure Club, "which had no constitution, form or purpose whatsoever" before people stopped showing up for its meetings in 1986.

He thinks he may have enough credits to graduate this spring, after which he hopes to work as an ad salesman.

What To Give The University That Has Everything

Someone has donated a lake to the University of the South in Sewanee, Tennessee.

The Clarence Day Foundation announced in February it was donating the 100-acre Day Lake, as well as 450 acres around it, to the school. The gift, vice chancellor Samuel Williamson said, will make the campus "drought-proof for years to come."

Already sitting on the largest endowment fund in the nation, Harvard University fundraiser Margaret Mansfield has asked undergrads to give her the names of their grandparents, noting she plans to start asking them for donations in the near future.

The Answer To Campus Budget Problems

In weighing the nomination of former U.S. Secretary of Education William J. Bennett as President Bush's "drug czar," Senate investigators found Bennett's net worth had jumped from $107,000 last September to $460,630 as of March 1.

The controversial Bennett, who while leading the U.S. Dept. of Education justified asking for big cuts in federal college programs by claiming campuses were academically bad and profligate spenders, quadrupled his estate in five months by earning $240,000 from 24 speaking engagements and signing a book contract worth $187,500 with Simon & Schuster, Inc.

Could There Be A Proposition 49 To Prevent This?

Alum Lenny McAbee, a 6'1", 290-pound former wrestler and football player at Indiana University, left his full-time job in Minneapolis late on the evening of Feb. 9, flew to Chicago and then drove four hours to Bloomington in time to win the annual Spirit of Sport All-Nighter's pizza-eating contest for the fourth year in a row.

For some reason, no one in the crowd was willing to question the imposingly bulky McAbee's eligibility for the contest.

But McAbee, who credits his victories to "practice" and to eating "the crust last," says he'll retire, which is good news for future competitors. Mike Lawhorn, McAbee's former roommate, recalled McAbee once ate 13 hamburgers in three minutes, and that "he ordered from Pizza Express so often that we got Christmas cards from them."

Pro-Choice boycott

selves. Hingst estimated that two-thirds of the nation's Domino's outlets are owned by local interests, not by Monaghan's parent firm.

"They should have thought of that before," replied Goucher's Sally Packard. "McDonald's speaks for all its outlets. Domino's does the same thing. Some of the profits from the franchise go back to Domino's. They have to take the consequences of their actions."

In fact, some franchisees agree.

"All Domino's stores are not necessarily in agreement" with Monaghan's feelings or the donation to Operation Rescue, said Bryan Cole, manager of a New London, Conn., Domino's near the Connecticut College campus.

"The donation was personal," he added, "but the company name was involved. It was not appropriate."

Cole thought it was "too early to gauge the effect of the boycott" on his store. His business, he said, was "maintaining."

Not a real civil war

a victory for the south and a defeat for the north. This was the first major battle of that war besides the firing on Fort Sumpter in South Carolina a few weeks earlier. That incident was to force a then foreign army out of the new nation's territory. Also the Battle of Big Bethel, in what is now Hampton, Virginia, where Union troops from Fort Monroe clashed with the Confederate Army.

So with the Battle of First Manassas, between the Confederate States and the United States, and the four years of war that followed, this was a war between two nations. So this wasn't a war between factions within one nation as the words "civil war" are defined.

The "War Between The States" would be more accurate since it was between two groups of states which were formerly of one nation. But the point is that these two groups of states were two separate, independent, and sovereign nations.

Could we then call it "The War Between the Two American Nations?" But still nearly all Americans, both north and south will call it "The Civil War."
