Student Association torn between two organizations

by Linda Dozier

On the campus of Christopher Newport College, there exists a vitally important organization which is not fully understood by a large amount of the student body. This organization is the Student Association, which is comprised of all students enrolled in at least one class at CNC.

Functions of the Student Association consist of things such as: budgeting activities, clubs and organizations; hearing the views and needs of such clubs; and policy work concerning college functions. Students sit on every committee at the college. For example; the Traffic Control Committee.

The Student Association is set up on the basis of a two party system. The two legislative branches are the Executive Council and the Student Senate. These two parties provide checks and balances on each other.

The Executive Council consists of: Lisa

Cipriano, S.A. President; Ronnie Slone, S.A. Vice President; Karen Currier, S.A. Secretary; Joel Quass, Attorney General; Alan Lamoreaux, Student Auditor; Peter

Foster, President of the Student Senate; Eric Cipriano, Director of Operation Self-Help; Dave Edgerton, Director of Campus Programming Board; and Tony Lamoy, Director of Intramurals. The six divisional presidents are also on the council. These six divisions are Natural and Quantitative Sciences, Education and Communication, Business and Economics, Social and Behavioral Sciences, Arts and Letters, and Unclassified.

On the other hand, the Student Senate is comprised of the vice presidents from each of the six divisions and at least two senators from each division. Three percent of the students involved in these divisions can be involved in student government.

Lisa Cipriano, President of the Student Association for the past two years, revealed that, "the Student Association had a history of being an ineffective body until just prior to my first term. It took me approximately eight months to clean up after the prior Student Association President. I had to clean, streamline, clarify and set the Student Association on its feet again. Since we have a strong past and the Student Association house is now in order, we can move and regain the respect we once had."

A major concern of the Student Senate President, Peter Foster, is to reorganize the Student Association. "I was elected to reorganize the Student Association by merging the Student Senate and the Executive Council." Foster feels that the Student Association should be modeled after the divisions of the school which are Student Affairs, Academic Affairs, Buildings and Grounds and Financial Affairs.

Another belief of Foster's is that the Student Association should be one strong body. "If we merge to one body, people will function from a common base." In Foster's proposal there would be one president with two executive vice presidents. Each of the vice presidents would be in charge of two of the governmental divisions. There would also be directors from each of the divisions who would report to the vice presidents. Under the directors, there would be legislative aids and assistants or senators.

In Peter Foster's proposal, there would be one representative from each club and organization. There would also be an ad hoc section for people who would like to be involved in student government but have a scarce amount of time. This change would not result in a loss of titles or positions; but would possibly enhance positions, titles and even participation.

As of now the Student Association is still divided into two branches which meet separately. The Executive council meets on Thursdays at 12:15 in CC233, and the Student Senate meets on Tuesdays at 12:15 in G145. These meetings are open to all students.

Academic Resources Center opened at CNC

by Tina-Marie Hamilton

The Basic Studies Department has initiated a new Open Laboratory that will greatly benefit CNC students. This project, entitled the Academic Resources Center (ARC) is designed to help any student who has stumbled upon a specific problem in a class.

The idea of such a program had been formulating in the minds of the Basic Studies professors for almost ten years. Over the years, the Basic Studies professors have been teaching outside courses in the areas of math, reading, and writing and have wondered how they could help the students who got hung up with a certain aspect of the course. Finally, this fall, under the direction of Professor Alice Randall and with the support of President John Anderson, Vice President Robert Edwards, and Dean Richard Summerville, the Academic Resources Center was born.

ARC is primarily aimed at students who have an immediate and short-term problem. For example, a student may encounter a problem with a text because it is filled with a variety of authors who have relatively different styles. One of these authors may totally confuse the student so that he will become frustrated and worry over failing the course. Or, the student may have problems preparing for an exam because of his notes. In the Academic Resources Center, Mrs. Randall will provide instruction and diagnosis in the areas of reading, listening, study, note-taking, speed reading and test anxiety. She will also make referrals to individual departments or the Counseling Center for services that include counseling, instruction in research and writing problems, tutoring, and conquering math anxiety.

The anticipated lab time for students could run from a half hour to six hour sessions. ARC is designed to help any student overcome a problem but is not for something that may require a tutor's help. If there is a long term problem, Mrs. Randall will very carefully screen a tutor or make a referral to the appropriate department.

The evaluation of ARC will be scrutinized closely. Students will be allowed to

William J. Morgan to speak at CNC

William J. Morgan, noted naval historian and editor, will present the first program in the Dean William Parks Memorial Colloquium Series this year. His talk, "Yorktown: A Naval Victory of Note," will be given on Wednesday, October 7, at noon in the Campus Center Theater. Dr. Morgan's program is specially appropriate for the celebration of the bicentennial of the British surrender at Yorktown, in October 1781.

Dr. Morgan is the Senior Historian and Head of the Historical Research Branch, Naval Historical Center, Department of the Navy, and is a former teacher of history at the college level. He is the editor of a multi-volume series, Naval Documents of the American Revolution, and a project which has now reached nine volumes, and has written and edited a number of other books. Among them are Captains to the Northward: The New England Captains in the Continental Navy, The Autobiography of Rear Admiral Charles Wilkes, Civil War Naval Chronology, and Naval Chronology: World War II. He has also written numerous articles for professional journals, magazines, and encyclopedias.

Dr. Morgan holds the rank of Commander in the Naval Reserve, and saw active duty both in World War II and Korea. He holds a B.S. from Fordham University, an M.A. from Columbia, and the Ph.D. from the University of Southern California. He now lives in Silver Spring, Maryland.

Black Students Association seeks new members

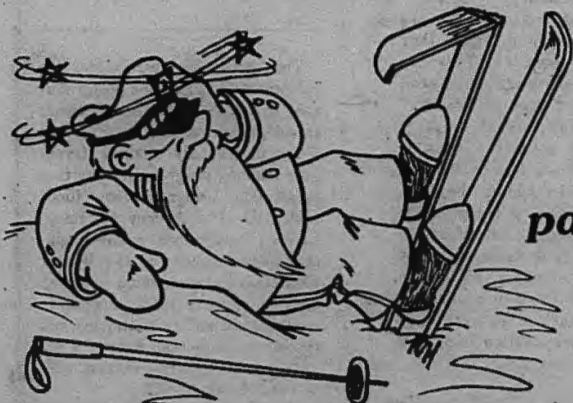

by Ann Catherine Braxton

The Black Student Association has a wide variety of activities to offer this year, but it needs a little help from the student body to make its activities work. All students, full-time or part-time, are invited to apply for a position on the BSA committee of their choice. The BSA is looking for creative students to serve as chairpersons for these committees.

There are six standing committees. There is the Finance-Fund Raising Committee where members initiate fund-raising activities such as bake sales and the upcoming Halloween dance. There is the Academic Aids Committee where established CNC students give encouragement to incoming students. The Membership Committee is responsible for the distribution of membership cards. The Communication/Public Relations Committee is responsible for publicity of special events, the maintenance of the BSA bulletin board, and the Annual Awards Program. The Cultural Awareness Committee maintains a bond between community organizations and the BSA. The Committee for Evening Students acts as a link between day and evening students by keeping

by Janice Edwards

The second battalion ROTC staff had the unenviable task of planning the Fall FTX/LRC activity for CNC as well as William and Mary. The job was undertaken with blood, sweat and maybe a few tears. Schedules, exact times, and complete roll counts were just a few of the mandatory things that had to be done. Long hours were spent over time to make this event a success, yet unforeseen mishaps could have occurred.

The ROTC MSIII's and Rangers of CNC left Friday at 3:30 p.m. to travel to Ft. Eustis for a taste of barracks life. Included in the night's events were classes on female/male fraternization, locker and bunk display, light and anti-tank weapon (LAW), TA312/PT, army telephone, and

by Kelly Howell

The Student Senate met on September 29 with Peter Foster presiding. The meeting began a few minutes behind schedule and 17 people attended.

Foster had a few comments to make on old business. The proposed plan for the reorganization of the student government was further explained. A chart was made available to illustrate the proposed plan to the senators. If approved the plan to combine the Student Senate and the Executive Council would be in effect for two semesters. Foster plans to show this plan to the Executive Council on Thursday, October 1. For the Student Senate, voting on the proposal is scheduled for October 6, October 6.

The minutes from the previous meeting were voted upon and accepted. Joel Quass gave a brief report on the meeting of the Executive Council.

Foster then asked for new business to be discussed. The new poster guidelines went into effect Monday, September 28, according to Quass. A warning letter will be issued before violation of the guidelines are enforced. Ronnie Sloan was not present to discuss activities for Fall Fest. However, it was mentioned that a meeting concerning Fall Fest is scheduled for October 6.

A motion was made that the meeting be adjourned, and the motion was seconded.

Two out of five students would leave college immediately if they could get the same job now that they could after graduation, according to a senior fellow with the Carnegie Foundation of the Advancement of Teaching.

That is just one of the attitudes of 1978 students that differs markedly from student attitudes of 10 years earlier, reported Arthur Levine recently at the annual convention of the American Association for Higher Education (AAHE). Levine's report is based on 1978 interviews and surveys across the nation.

Earlier graduates said their goals in getting a college education were to develop values and a philosophy of life and to learn to get along with people. But the 1978 graduates viewed college as a chance to develop a specialty area and get a good job.

Students nowadays also are heavily interested in professional careers, with two out of three seeking jobs in the professions and one out of five hoping to become a doctor or lawyer, Levine said.

In a curious way, students are more grade-oriented than they were, Levine reported. They say "they need them (grades) and need them badly, but they don't matter" to them as people, he said.

Competition is on the rise, he noted, with even humanities and fine arts majors joining the fray. The feeling is that to choose those fields is to "go out on a limb" and to do poorly in those fields is to saw the limb off from under you, Levine said. Cheating also is increasing, he said, noting that in a separate study the Carnegie Foundation found that one in 12 students cheats.

The above is an excerpt from the College Placement Council's "Spotlight", September 1981 issue.

The Department of State and Commerce and the International Communication Agency are currently recruiting to fill positions in the Foreign Service. Applications for the examination which covers these positions must be received by the Educational Testing Service by October 23, 1981. For further information, contact the Placement Office.

The nationwide filing period for this year's PACE Program is September 14 through October 13. Due to the high volume of competition for Air Traffic Controller positions, OPM is delaying its testing program for PACE Positions. The new testing schedule is January 2, 1982 to February 17, 1982. An amendment to the PACE Announcement will provide this information to interested persons.

The Agency for International Development (AID) invites postgraduates to apply to its International Development Intern (IDI) Program — an individually tailored, three-year training program, leading to a career as a Foreign Service Officer with AID. The Agency for International Development is now beginning consideration for the Winter 1983 class (interns would enter on duty in January 1983); applicants must submit letters of inquiry and resume no later than February 15, 1982. For further information, contact the Placement Office.

Triumph comes through

by Rod Patron

Allied Forces is not at all what I expected from Triumph. There were none of the usual Nazareth retreads. Not that Nazareth is a bad band, but that the boys in Triumph are lousy mimicks. Allied Forces has saved them from a fate worse than Reaganomics.

Allied Forces contains eight songs, seven of which are very impressive. They are, "Fool For Your Love", "Magic Power", "Air Raid/Allied Forces", "Fight The Good Fight", "Ordinary Man", "Petite Et Tude", and "Say Goodbye". The only song that was really rotten was "Hot Time In The City Tonight". Listening to this song would be like traveling down the interstate at 65 miles per hour and hitting a pothole. Yep, the song is that bad.

"Magic Power", "Fight the Good Fight", "Ordinary Man", and "Petite Et Tude" are all done in the same style which is the mild intro of well done soft acoustic guitar followed by a sudden shift to a full scale rock attack, complete with power chords and savage rhythms.

"Fool For Your Love" attacks with an ear piercing siren and leaps into one of the kickiest songs of the year. This number, my personal favorite, should appeal to the pub crowd. It is powerful as any AC/DC or Iron Maiden tune but without the headknocker attitude or lyrics.

"Air Raid/Allied Forces" begins with a siren and sounds of bombings and gunfire exchanges which ends with a short bomb blast. The rest of the song is more power rock and roll. With a little work, this song could be our generation's anthem against war.

"Say Goodbye" is the last song on the album and is Triumph's attempt at a ballad, and not a shabby attempt at all.

This is by far the best overall album I've reviewed this year. The album is of the type that fits certain moods; it's best at parties or for a crowd of Bad Company and Aerosmith fans. I can't impress upon you how real the album sounds. It has the feel of a live concert but with the precision of studio work. The drums seem so alive and the guitar works are almost capable of carrying away the listener. It is one of the few LP's my limited budget can afford.

Charlie Brown at CNC

by Ann Catherine Braxton

Auditions for CNC's fall production of "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown" were held at the beginning of September, and the results of those auditions add up to as talented a cast as any college production could have.

Starring as Charlie Brown, the widely loved born loser, is Charlie Bell. Bell, the only member of the cast who is a full-time CNC student, is a junior majoring in math. A member of the ROTC and the Peninsula Choral Society, he has appeared in such productions as CNC's "A Funny Thing Happened On the Way to the Forum" two seasons ago and Peninsula Community Theater's "Mame." A part-time bus driver, he calls acting a hobby and says that working under the direction of Dr. Bruno Koch is "almost as good as taking a real class."

Blond, bearded Keith Johnson, who plays Snoopy, the world's most human dog, began his acting career in high school, performing in "My Fair Lady" in his junior year and "West Side Story" in his senior year. He recently appeared in Center Stage's production of "Grease." Johnson works as a radio announcer for the classical music station WGH-FM.

Ron Williger, who hails from Akron, Ohio, plays the blanket-toting philosopher, Linus Van Pelt. He has an intense interest in the theater, and he appeared in CNC's production of "A Thousand Clowns" last season. He is employed at NASA.

Laurel Tsirimokos plays the crabby but lovable Lucy Van Pelt. A veteran actress, Ms. Tsirimokos has appeared in such CNC productions as last year's "The Fantastiks" and "The House of Bernarda Alba." She has starred in television and film productions and works in the theater department at Colonial Williamsburg.

Matt Riebe, who received a degree in theater arts from CNC, plays Schroeder, Lucy's piano-playing hearthrop and Beethoven's biggest fan. He has appeared in "Waiting for Godot," "The Fantastiks," and "The Physician In Spite of Himself." Not only does he play Schroeder, but he also serves as the production's stage manager. Riebe works for a landscaping company.

New Kinks

by Anne Doop

The new Kinks album is like the phantasm of an old rock and roll hero — but this one's real. After nearly twenty years as a band, (three of the members are original) the Kinks have finally reached their proverbial climax. Since their beginning in 1964, Ray and Dave Davies and Mick Avory have been putting out untimely tunes like "You Really Got Me" and "Lola". But this disc has a quality about it that I just can't put my literary

Captains lose 4 heartbreakers

by Steve Ritenour

The Christopher Newport baseball team ended another week of it's fall season Saturday unable to capture the elusive win it so badly needs. The team dropped all four of its scheduled games with all but one of those losses coming in the last inning of play.

The Captains led off their second week with a game against the Apprentice School last Tuesday. After giving up 2 runs on an error in the fourth, CNC got untracked and led the game 6-4 going into the ninth. Gil Groat and Wayne Smith contributed to that lead with doubles in the sixth and seventh, respectively, scoring two men apiece. But the Captains got in trouble in the ninth, and the Builders picked up four runs to down them 8-6.

The second game of the week proved to be no contest as Virginia Wesleyan breezed past CNC 13-2.

Both games of a doubleheader with Chowan on Saturday went into extra innings. The Captains took an early lead in the first game but saw its lead slip away and after 7 innings of regulation play saw the games tied at seven apiece. Chowan then collected five runs in the eighth, four of which came on a grand slam homer which put the game out of reach. The

by Hoppie Crowder

Christopher Newport's men's cross country team increased their winning record by defeating St. Andrews and Hampton Institute at Mariners' Museum last Saturday. For the Captains, this season is going to be a rebuilding year, due to the fact that only two lettermen are returning. Also, the other members are young and have a lot of hard work ahead of them if they want to repeat winning the Dixie Conference.

Coming into this year, Coach Vince Brown has helped to coach the men's cross country team to the first conference championship with the new recruits and the returning lettermen. The men's team has a good chance to bring another championship team to Christopher Newport.

The team will be traveling next weekend to St. Andrews to hopefully improve their winning record.

The women's cross country team in their first year, has run very well against the teams with which they have competed. Led by Veronica Lovko and Edna Davis, the girl's team lost barely to St. Andrews this past weekend. Since this is their first year, they have little meet experience. However, the girls are continuing to improve as the weeks progress.

Sigma Pi Alumni, OTHG score wins in intramural football

by Steve Ritenour

The second week of intramural football action ended Sunday with no major upsets. Coming off a bye last week, the Sigma Pi Alumni team took on the No Names who looked impressive in their opener against the Islanders. But the Sigma Pi Alumni (last year's champs under the name of the EHO-Headhunters) outclassed their opposition as expected.

On their very first play from scrimmage, the Alumni team scored on a 35 yard aerial from quarterback Mike King to Glenn Corey. The extra point attempt failed making score 6-0, Alumni.

The No Names offense also showed that they were capable of moving the ball, grinding their way to the Alumni's 25 yard line. But, quarterback Mike Wacławski was denied a score as Sigma Pi Alumni's defensive back Art Thatcher picked one off at the 15. That was about all the offensive momentum that the No Names could muster.

Sigma Pi Alumni also scored in the second quarter after Mike King hit Glenn Corey on a 15 yard pass, who in turn pitched the ball off to Art Thatcher who ran the remaining 45 yards for the score. Adding a 20 yard scoring strike from the "King-Corey Aerial Show" brought the score up to 18-0, and the curtains down on the No Names.

The second game matched up two teams coming off heartbreaking losses in last week's action, the Islanders and OTHG.

The Islanders drew first blood on a 75 yard pass play from quarterback Johnny Wallace to Phillip Tipton. The conversion failed making the score 6-0 in favor of the Islanders.

But OTHG immediately struck back. Running back Gary Harris hit receiver Mike Geiger on a 45 yard option play and on the very next play quarterback Dusty Stanoway scored on a five yard keeper around the right end. OTHG made the two point conversion on a pass to Bill Hassenger and went ahead 8-6. OTHG added six more to its score in the fourth quarter on an 80 yard pass play from Stanoway to Todd Repass. Hassenger hauled in another pass good for a 1 point conversion making the final OTHG 15 - Islanders 6.

The standings after 2 weeks are Sigma Pi 1-0, Sigma Pi Alumni 1-0, OTHG 1-1, No Names 1-1, and Islanders 0-2.

CNC Booters now 1-4

by David Bean

The Captains record in soccer dropped to 1-4 with two losses last week. The first one occurred Wednesday, Sept. 23, when they travelled to Hampden-Sydney. They came out on the short end of the stick, losing 5-1. The next loss was against St. Andrews here at CNC. That match, played last Saturday, Sept. 26, found CNC losing a tight game. Virtually scoreless through most of the 90 minutes, the match was decided when St. Andrews managed to score to win the game, 1-0.

CNC third baseman Mike Loizides watches the pitch as Virginia Wesleyan Blue Marlin runner leads off base.

Literary magazines arrive on campus

Coming this November is The Buccaneer, which is rather unique among college magazines. It is supported technically and morally by Metro Magazine, "The Magazine of Southeastern Virginia." Because of this support, The Buccaneer is in a class of its own as there is certainly not another college magazine being supported in this manner in Virginia at least and possibly the entire United States, according to Ken Gillespie, the editor.

The content of the magazine will be varied, with items of general interest such as "The Best of the Captain's Log" and a literary section. Gillespie states that the magazine is aimed at the college community as a whole, which includes not only CNC but also the city around us.

The Buccaneer will be 52 pages long, and there will be 600 copies for sale, at $1.50 per copy. The reason that there is a charge is because the magazine is not being funded by the college. It must at least break even, and hopefully make a profit.

Arriving in the spring is The Currents, under the sponsorship of Sigma Tau Delta, the English honor society. The Currents will also be in a magazine format. It is the literary magazine of CNC, but it covers art as well. Anything that is an art form, sculpture, painting, photography et. al. is included.

Editor Isabella Timmermans says the The Currents needs contributions such as art, poetry, etc., and that the submission deadline is December 12. The Currents office is room 209, in the Campus Center.

Have you noticed all the people wearing military uniforms around campus lately? If you looked closely you may have noticed that there are not only men wearing these uniforms but there are women as well.

Erin Malone is one of these women in the Army ROTC Program. She is ranked as Battalion Executive Officer; this places her as second in command under Commander Mike Edwards.

Malone went to Thomas Nelson Community College for her freshman year of college. That year she applied for and received a scholarship. For the last three years she has attended CNC, and her tuition has been paid for by the Army. The scholarship pays for her tuition, books and allows her $100.00 per month.

She first became interested in the ROTC Program because members of her own family are in the service. After Malone graduates in May, she will be a commissioned Second Lieutenant in the Army. Here at CNC, she is studying accounting and hopes to go to the Army's finance school in Indiana. Malone is obligated to stay in the Army for four years because she was granted a scholarship.

Malone is very active on campus. Besides working with the ROTC Program, she is Vice President of the sorority, Pi Kappa Sigma, and she is President of the honor society, Alpha Chi.

There is a minority of women in the ROTC here at CNC with 14 women out of 70 members of the battalion, and out of 28 rangers, five are women.

Christopher Newport College is an extension of the ROTC program at William and Mary. Seniors have an advanced program at William and Mary that they are required to attend. Because of growing enrollment and the support of President John Anderson, our ROTC Program is trying to gain independence from William and Mary.

Men and women go through the same training for the ROTC Program, and they have basically the same appearance regulations.

Here at CNC, there isn't a major problem between the men and the women. They work together, and they seem to work together very well. There are some men in the Army who can be challenging Becky Ritter plays the amicable Patty. Ritter, who was a theater major at William and Mary, appeared in last season's "The House of Bernarda Alba." She is employed as a jeweler at Hauser's.

The cast dances, sings, and acts out such amusing predicaments as Lucy's conduction of a crabbiness poll and her infatuation with Schroeder, the losing streak of Charlie Brown's little league baseball team and his crush on the little red-haired girl, and Snoopy's love affair with his supper dish. The play is scheduled to open October 16.

Next week we will take a look at what goes on at the rehearsal and a behind-the-scenes look at the crew's contribution to the play.

Kinks

finger on. Is it that they've followed the New Wave trend? Not hardly since they started it with tunes like "All Day and All of the Night." Is it that they've just retained the style that took them so high in the 60's? No, although the new LP does employ many early Kinks tactics. What, then is it? A good, long listen will help orient one further. I made the tremendous error of listening to the record over and over until I was hooked. This personal bias hindered my search to the point of helplessness. So, rather than go on searching for the formula to the new Kinks sound, I shall present it to you.

In the title track, Ray Davies (lead vocals, rhythm guitar, synthesizer, piano and producer of the LP) says, "give 'em lots of sex, perversion and rape/give 'em lots of violence/plenty to hate." And that's what the LP gives. "Yo-Yo" is about the split personality of a businessman, ("his brain's not expected home for an hour or more"), "Art Lover" delivers the perversion; "A Little Bit of Abuse" gives the violence.

Dave Davies' lead guitar hasn't really improved. It resembles very closely old tunes like "You Really Got Me", yet he has improved his incorporation. The period of time when the band's really big successes "Lola" and "All Day and All of the Night" were released, the guitar was used to produce as much noise as possible. Davies, rather than conform, made a lasting contribution to rock and roll guitar.

Mick Avory's drums remind me of a remark Mick Fleetwood made about his style. He said something about percussion adding to the tune without being too overpowering. Avory has done this along with assistance from engineer Ben Fenner.

Ian Gibbons on "keyboards" (I despise the use of that term, as it does not include adequate information on what type of keyboards), gives the entire work a musical pat on the rear. Tracks like "Destroyer" and "Killer's Eyes" would have been just another song without him. He too, employs the "not too overpowering" concept.

"Around the Dial", the story of the demise of a local disc jockey, is New Wavish, without losing the old style and is also seasoned with the new David Bowie sound.

The only track not in trend with the rest of the recording is "Back to Front". It came too close to Tom Petty's Hard Promises for me. However, I did like the ending, where Davies yells in his cockney accent, "Are you listening?" The band replays "No!" He then instructs, "Well then, have to do it all over again!"

The final track, "Better Things" is a goodbye with the brightest of meanings. "I hope tomorrow you find better things."

As always, your comments and suggestions are welcome.

Virginia Opera Association

The Virginia Opera Association announced their 1981-82 season, with Peter Mark conducting and David Farrar directing. The four-opera showing consists of Faust, Cinderella (La Cenerentola), La Traviata, and The Magic Flute.

Faust opens October 23, with subsequent performances October 25*, 28, 30, and November 1*. Tenor Michael Myers returns to sing in the title role.

Cinderella features lyric tenor Bruce Reed, of the VOA production of Hansel and Gretel and Daughter of the Regiment. Performances are December 4, 6*, 9, 11, and 13*.

La Traviata, a favorite of opera lovers, is the tragic story of the heroine Violetta, portrayed by Ashley Putnam. The show opens Friday, January 15, 1982 and continues on January 17*, 20, 22, and 24*.

One of the most technically difficult operas in the repertoire, The Magic Flute, combines Mozart's music with political satire, fantasy, and naive humor. Performances are March 19, 21*, 24, 26, and 28*.

*Sunday matinees, 2:30 p.m.

For ticket information write: Virginia Opera Association, 261 West Bute Street, Norfolk 23510 (include self addressed, stamped envelope) or call 623-1223.

Editorial

The Eagle's view

Editor's note: The opinions expressed in this column do not necessarily reflect the opinions of "The Captain's Log" staff. If anyone would like to write a rebuttal, contact the editor-in-chief by Monday, October 5.

When Ronald Reagan started campaigning for the presidency, he hammered away at a sore point in the minds of the American people — the inadequate strength of the U.S. military forces which, he charged, had dwindled to a point where the Soviets lead in virtually all categories of warfare. There is no doubt that the public was not pleased with Jimmy Carter's failure to upgrade military readiness and overall capabilities in a time of growing world tension and Soviet interference into countries where they are not welcome. Surely the aborted rescue attempt of the Americans held hostage in Iran sealed Carter's fate.

Reagan cried out loudly for a large defense buildup, a cry which was shared by many supporters and even opposers. He made no bones about the sacrifices that would have to be made by everyone in accordance with this beefing up of the military forces and weaponry. He didn't hide the fact that sacrifices would have to be made by everyone in order to bring inflation back under control and to balance the budget by 1984. It is no secret that these sacrifices were loudly and clearly stated by Reagan on the campaign trail. It is clear that the majority of the voters were committed to the idea of sacrifices because of the election results. So why is it that two weeks ago there were big demonstrations throughout the country in protest to Reagan's victorious budget cuts. Many of the people marching during these protests were strongly supporting Reagan during his campaign. These same union faces holding signs denouncing the budget cuts were the ones who helped put Reagan in office.

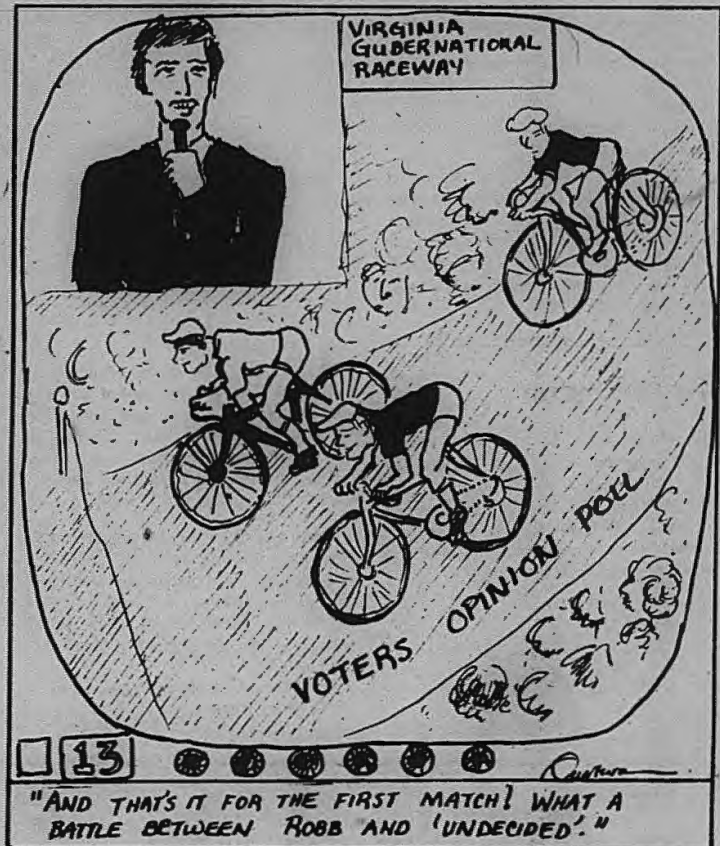

This leads to a question which I am sure has many guessing. Why put a man in office who runs on such a conservative platform and then turn around and voice opposition to what they knew was coming? Or did they? I feel strongly that these protestors who supported Reagan did not seriously think that he was going to get away with his proposed slicing of federal programs and budget cuts. Add this to the fact that they were running near hysterical of the idea of having Carter serve another four years, and you have the reason why the usual democratic strongholds went Republican in this past election.

It is time that these people wake up and taste the reality. Yes, we the United States people finally have a president who is holding tight to those policies for which he campaigned so feverishly. What is even better is that he has had great success so far with getting his programs through Congress. We are experiencing a revolutionary act in this country, one which is positive. Not since Franklin Roosevelt have we had a president to get as much accomplished through Congress as Reagan has. Not only is it Reagan's unique ability to sell Congress his programs, but more profoundly it is his knack with the American people, one which is generated with trust and hope, that has led to his success.

So for the ones who didn't take our great president seriously, they had better re-examine him because he means what he says. It's great to feel secure again, isn't it?

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

I work for both the English Department and the Basic Studies Writing Department, so I see every conceivable type of grammatical error. There is one mistake I see so often that I have come to realize most students don't know it's incorrect. Admittedly, it is not a monstrous barbarism, but when I see it in The Captain's Log, I feel compelled to point it out.

There is no such word as "alot". (I refer to the issue of September 24th, page 5 — the first line of the article "Keep your eyes on these guys".) "A lot" is two words. Probably half of the students here use it as one word. I have even begun to see "alittle" used as one word. It is so common that I wonder if high schools teach it as such.

Please, Madame Editor, if no one else benefits from this letter, at least tell your staff that "a lot" is two words. It may seem trifling, but we misuse the English language so badly that any improvement helps.

Thanks a lot.

Terry Van Dover

Editor,

Today I witnessed an accident involving two white golf carts. They met at the intersection of two sidewalks on the east side of Wingfield Hall. One cart had just started around the corner when the second one whipped around the corner from the opposite direction and side-swiped the first cart. One vehicle ended up in the grass atop a small bush, while the second skidded to a stop on the sidewalk. A large chunk of fiberglass was missing from the body of this cart due to the impact. Fortunately, none of the occupants of the two carts were injured.

It concerns me that, next time, the missing chunk of fiberglass may be a chunk of flesh from an innocent pedestrian.

other classes geared to inform cadets for Advanced Camp training at Ft. Bragg, North Carolina in June.

MSI's and II's arrived Saturday morning for the Leadership Reaction course. The enthusiasm among the cadets and staff was astounding. The enjoyment of play as well as mingling of the minds on how to overcome obstacles was another part of the days' events.

I would like to thank all of the MSI's, II's, III's and Rangers who helped make this event a success. Also, special recognition goes to Cdt Ltc Mike Edwards, Cdt Major Erin Malone and Cdt Major Charlie Bell for their long hours spent on constructing the groundwork.

The program is open to the public, and all are invited. A luncheon in Dr. Morgan's honor will be held in the Campus Center following his speech, and he will conduct an informal open seminar in the Board Room (CC214) at 2 p.m.

Cadet Eric Cipriano is very much in favor of women in the ROTC. He says that females in the military have to especially work hard for what they have earned and that they deserve what they have earned.

sanutten January 4 - 8.

The second will be a non-credit trip to Killington, Vermont. The cost of $275 will include the bus trip there and back. Five nights in a slope-side condo, five days of skiing, breakfast and dinner every day, and ski movies and parties are also included.

There are day trips January 4 and 8. (These are the only set dates; there are several other trips planned but not finalized.) Skiers will leave CNC at 5 a.m. and return that evening after a whole day of skiing at either Wintergreen or Massanutten.

The Ski Club needs members, so meet with Coach Cummings soon.

Basic Studies Lab

evaluate the lab after they finish with it. The faculty members who recommended the student will also be given the opportunity to evaluate the results of ARC. Since the lab has only been made effective for the fall semester, with no predictions concerning the spring, it is being closely watched by all connected with it.

Already ARC is bringing in a tremendous response. Mrs. Randall thought the lab hours might provide her with some empty hours, but as she herself said, "The response has been socko! Even before the information was distributed, there have been students coming every day, either through recommendations or by themselves." Mrs. Randall went on to add that there is plenty of time and space for any student requiring help. However, the success of the Academic Resources Center will not be the size of the response to it, but the amount of academic progress each student achieves.

Students who are interested in receiving help from ARC can go to the Smith building, room 134. The lab hours are: 12 - 1 p.m. — Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday and 5 - 7 p.m. — Thursday. If these times conflict with a student's schedule, a special appointment can be set up by calling 599-7089. There is no fee for the services, and any student enrolled in a class at CNC is eligible.

BSA

evening students informed of BSA activities.

All interested students should pick up an application in Ms. Katie Lewis's office, Room 206, upstairs in the Campus Center by October 1. A meeting of chairpersons will be held on Friday, October 2 at noon in Room 233 at the Campus Center.

CNC baseball

Captains also came out on the short end of the second game, losing 3-2 in extra innings.

CNC's next game comes October 3 when they travel to Chowan to play another doubleheader. The next home game is October 7 against Virginia Wesleyan.
