Survey on Committees

The Committee appreciates the response to its survey on committees. Within the near future we will be contacting committee chairmen to ascertain additional information on their committee's charges. We may request a meeting with selected committees to discuss issues which have been raised in our deliberations. We are writing brief job descriptions on administrative and academic positions, delineating areas of authority and responsibility. The charges of committees will be related to these areas of authority and responsibility.

After Thanksgiving we will review the Board approved policies and procedures of the College. If you are aware of any policy or policy area which need our special attention, please let us know. Our aim is to provide clear and concise statements of policy freed from ambiguous language.

Faculty & Staff

A small grants library is being developed through the Offices of the Director of Development and the Grants Coordinator. Reference materials on funding sources, private and public, and on the mechanics of writing grants are available in the Development Office. A list of these holdings will be developed. The Federal Register is presently available to faculty and staff through my office.

A grants bulletin board has been placed in the entrance room to the faculty lounge. Notices of grants will be posted on this bulletin board.

Plans for a series of panel discussions on grant writing are being developed. Possible topics to be covered include: Government funding; private foundation and corporation funding; where to get information on grants; how to write a proposal; how to develop a budget; what are indirect costs; and how to participate in a proposal review process. If you are interested in any of these topics or would like to suggest additional issues, please contact me at 7117.
