Faculty Advisory Committee says Mission Statement needs new focus

By Bud Key, staff writer

In a Faculty Advisory Committee (FAC) which chairman Dr. Douglas K. Gordon eloquently described as a "joining enterprise," the CNC Board of Visitors and a representative coalition of professors met face to face January 29 to discuss the goals and objectives of the college.

The agenda proposed by the state-appointed Board of Visitors entailed five short and long term objectives for consideration and adoption. However, the hour and twenty minute joint committee meeting only addressed short term proposition four: the development of a comprehensive but concise Mission Statement as to what CNC is striving to be.

mental Science, initiated the eight-member FAC request that the open discussion concentrate primarily on the Mission Statement revision. According to Pugh, "without an acceptable Mission Statement, other goals and objectives cannot be dealt with."

History professor Dr. James M. Morris voiced considerable concern in what he described as a confused attitude towards the future of CNC. Morris contended that the college's original concern, striving for high quality undergraduate education, has in the past few years perhaps become number driven rather than quality driven. "Until we make a decision, we will continue to flounder," said Morris.

"It's time to get down to brass tacks."

These sentiments were reinforced by Gordon, who poignantly asked the Board of Visitors why no articulate plan existed for the school's future. In addition, the FAC chairman recommended that before CNC embarked upon adventures such as graduate programs and on-campus housing, the school should first concentrate on improving the undergraduate curriculum.

The FAC proposed three courses of action for obtaining this goal. First, it was recommended that the school table efforts to expand the athletic program on the varsity and intramural levels. Secondly, the FAC recommended that increased emphasis be placed on improving the school's cultural arts program in order to "lend more credibility to CNC's liberal arts image." Lastly, the FAC recommended that faculty salaries be increased and additional professors be hired, creating smaller classrooms, more individual student attention, and the potential for increased enrollment.

The meeting ended with Board of Visitors Rector Stephen D. Halliday expressing a need to create a realistic Mission Statement to serve the college community. In addition, Halliday suggested that the open discussion was merely the first of many in which the Board and the FAC would work together to design such a statement.

CNC holds closed session

NEWPORT NEWS — Christopher Newport College's Board of Visitors met in closed session for almost four hours Wednesday, then unanimously passed a "mystery" resolution concerning the performance of an unidentified college employee.

The college's rector would not reveal the identification of the employee or details of the resolution.

The board's executive committee also held a special meeting that was closed to the public Tuesday morning, but did not take any action at that meeting.

CNC President John E. Anderson, who usually sits in on closed meetings, was not invited to any of the closed sessions.

Rector Stephen Halliday canceled Wednesday morning's regularly scheduled slate of committee meetings so the board could meet together behind closed doors.

The board discussed three items in the closed meetings: a personnel matter, potential gifts to the college and acquisition of real estate, Halliday said.

Afterward, board members unanimously approved one resolution they had discussed behind closed doors.

Halliday gave only a sketchy description of the motion: it concerned the performance and evaluation of an employee of the college and the board had asked for a followup report and will take further action at a future board meeting.

He refused to identify the employee or elaborate on the resolution.

"My main concern is the school ... and not to jeopardize the individual's rights," Halliday said.

Homecoming queen elections: How do we decide who to vote for?

By Diana Dely
opinions editor

Homecoming is here, and once again I have heard the typical complaint that the Homecoming Queen election is just a popularity contest. Several students have told me that they haven't the slightest idea who the candidates are at all.

There should be some way to get to know the candidates. All we see are their pictures in The Captain's Log or on the bulletin board in the Campus Center. The Captain's Log prints the candidates' major, age and the club they represent, but that doesn't acquaint us with them as people. Maybe they should set aside a time, such as lunch hour, when the candidates would be available to meet people. They could set up a table in the Campus Center where students could meet the candidates and better judge who they want to choose to represent the school for Homecoming.

Publicity also seems to be a problem with Homecoming. Many students do not know when or where the elections are being held. If more advertising were done on the election, more students would show up to vote.

I have also heard people complaining that nominations should not be restricted just to clubs. One student suggested that candidates could be nominated by a petition of a number of students.

It is too late to change anything for this year's election, but maybe it can be improved in the future. One more suggestion: someone should inform the candidates of their responsibilities. None of the candidates I spoke to knew what they were supposed to do other than get their pictures taken. They need to be told more about their own election.

Elections:

Thur. Feb. 6, 11 a.m.-2 p.m.
and 6 p.m.-7 p.m.

Fri. Feb. 7, 11 a.m.-2 p.m.

From the editor . . .

Dear fellow students and faculty members,

The current issue of Governor Robb's budget proposal has received a great deal of publicity, and The Captain's Log has tried to share the responsibility of awareness amongst the student body.

The burden of creating support that carries impact on key committee decisions does not fully lie with The Captain's Log, as one person tried to imply.

Maybe the petitions circulating will bear some significance in Richmond, but it seems to me that these papers are too easily endorsed by individuals who are truly uninformed; but still I applaud the conscientiousness and effort of these people.

One person I cannot applaud is the Student Association president, Jamie Roudabush. Jamie, I see you resting on your laurels, riding out your final semester, relaxing, having a good time, and getting paid to be the SA president.

Being in the position of president, why can you not help to create crucial support? Why not be different from the last few presidents, and do something constructive that students will remember?

At the recent SA meeting I suggested a public session, with you as a featured speaker. Too easily did you pass off your responsibility, claiming that someone who better understands the issue should be the one to speak. Okay, what happened to the idea? As of Tuesday, nothing was scheduled.

I hear all the time, and I understand, that student apathy runs high at CNC. But if change starts somewhere, who can predict where it may lead?

Very truly yours,

Lisa H. Pieper

Letter

Dear Opinion Editor,

Last week's editorial about the name change of Newport Hall to McMullan Hall was weak at best. Not only is it ludicrous to think of "Mr. Newport" as being disgraced by the name change, but it is stupid to question the validity of Mr. McMullan's recent contribution.

At a time when this college is suffering from lack of legislative and monetary support, it is especially important not to forget the successful efforts of Mr. McMullan. Calling this institution Christopher Newport College is in itself a grand tribute to our local heritage, but we cannot dwell on past successes. — We must honor new accomplishments and display the maturity of change. (You might enlighten your editorials with such maturity Ms. Dely.)

You can continue to think of McMullan Hall as Newport Hall, or you can become an active, responsible member of this student body, by honoring newer figures in our "local heritage."

Here at CNC ROTC means career, leadership, education and much more. Sometimes people are misinformed or don't really understand exactly what ROTC has to offer. Army ROTC offers leadership training while students are still in college. The combined classroom instruction and practical training aid in developing good leadership qualities.

The principles of personnel management, responsibility, achievement, and personal confidence apply directly to whatever civilian career an ROTC student may choose after graduation.

Cadets are trained to accept increasing responsibility from the start, which encourages them to be highly motivated and self-disciplined. These are skills that employers are looking for. A graduate with such leadership qualities is preferred by employers because ROTC students' experience has proven successful in the past.

According to Frank Tully, Vice President of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, "Maturity, ready acceptance of responsibility, ability to lead and technical training are all necessary for individual progress in today's increasing sophisticated business environment. Our experience has shown that junior military officers, particularly those with a background in ROTC during their college years, bring us these qualities to a greater degree than those who have not had the advantage of military experience."

Army ROTC is traditionally a four-year program consisting of Basic and Advanced Courses. The Basic Course is normally taken during the freshman and sophomore years. The Basic Course imposes no military obligation on the part of the student, and he or she may withdraw at any time before the end of the second year. The Advanced Course provides further instruction in leadership, development, organization, and management. Advanced Course cadets attend a six-week advanced camp between their junior and senior years. The camp permits cadets to put into practice the principles and theories learned. Cadets receive pay for camp, plus travel expenses, room and board, medical and dental care, and other benefits. To enter the Advanced Course, a student must agree to finish ROTC instruction and accept a commission and an assignment in either the active Army, the Army National Guard, or the U.S. Army Reserve.

Other benefits ROTC offers are scholarships providing tuition, text books, lab fees, and an allowance of up to $1,000 each year the scholarship is in effect. The value of the scholarship depends on the tuition and other educational costs of the university or college attended.

Cadet Robert Lehman, MS-5 explained, "I feel the ROTC program here at CNC has been very helpful to my future career, especially the leadership training."

management, public relations, engineering, and computing.

Another 13 percent were lawyers, and 9 percent were in the "service professions" - government, health, social work and such. Nine percent were in the military, working as homemakers, or self-employed. Only 7 percent were currently in graduate or professional school, though 60 percent had gone on for advanced degrees.

Only half of the respondents said being an English major helped them to get their jobs, but 95 percent agreed that it helped them once they were on the job. The majority also noted that even though they would major in English again, they wished they had been advised to minor in a job-related area such as accounting or computer science.

After answering "teach" and "write" to the question "What can you do with an English major?" Lehigh University English professor Peter G. Beidler, Ph.D., decided to find out what Lehigh English majors really did do after graduation.

According to his fifteen-question informal survey of English majors who had graduated between 1962 and 1982, only 29 percent of the Lehigh graduates were employed in fields traditionally associated with an English major: 15 percent were teaching; and 14 percent were in what Beidler calls the "word delivery" professions - publishing, radio, theater, and writing.

In contrast, 33 percent of the English majors were employed in business and industry, including finance, banking, insurance,

Catholic Student Association

The Catholic Student Association will hold its first meeting of the semester on Wed., Feb. 12, at 1 p.m. in CC-209. The agenda will include plans for the coming year with emphasis on social and religious activities.

Students who are unable to attend meetings but would like to be part of the group should leave their name, address, and phone number with Carolyn Lawrence, Campus Minister, in CC-204 or call 595-7604. All interested students are invited.

Bible Study

United Campus Ministries will sponsor a 5-part Bible Study on the Gospel of Mark beginning Wed., Feb. 12, from 2 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. in CC-205.

Led by Carolyn Lawrence, Campus Minister, the series will include the nature of the Gospel and Mark's understanding of Jesus, discipleship, and the Kingdom. Participants should bring a Bible and a notebook. No work will be required apart from sessions.

All members of the CNC community are invited. For further information, call the campus ministry office at 595-7604.

ROTC Scholarships

CNC ROTC is now accepting scholarship applications. Scholarships pay for all tuition, books, and an allowance of $100 monthly. Two- and three-year scholarships require a GPA minimum of 2.4, SAT score of 1,100 minimum, and an ACT equivalent of 24 to be competitive.

Three-year scholarships in degrees other than physical science or engineering require a GPA minimum of 2.9. No SAT or ACT is required. Applicants must be rising sophomores and should complete 27 credit hours by the end of their sophomore year.

Two-year scholarships in physical science and engineering carry the same hour requirements as three-year. Two-year scholarships in degrees other than physical science and engineering require a GPA minimum of 2.7.

Basic camp must be attended. Physical fitness tests, a physical aptitude test, and a physical that is paid for by the Army, are required. Applicants must be full-time students and cannot be conscientious objectors. As of June 30 of the calendar year an applicant is to be commissioned, the age limit is set at 25. For applicants who have served in the military previously, a waiver is accepted for four years. For further information contact Maj. Garcia or CPT Thomson at the Military Science Department, 599-7169/7284.

NASA Visitor Center

Eating is a basic survival need, but dining in space presents unique challenges. The NASA Visitor Center will feature a Space Shuttle exhibit during Feb. showing how food is prepared aboard the Shuttle. This exhibit is on loan from the Johnson Space Center in Houston, Texas.

In addition to the display, at 2 p.m. each day, a presentation will demonstrate use of the galley and discuss the Space Shuttle food system. The information will be augmented by a video presentation of actual food preparation for Shuttle flights.

A limited supply of freeze-dried Space Food — ranging from full-course dinners to astronaut ice cream — will be available for sale at the Center Souvenir Counter during Feb.

The Visitor Center is open Mon. through Sat. from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The Center is easily accessible from Interstate 64 by following the NASA directional signs. Admission is free.

Boardwalk Art Show

The 31st Virginia Beach Boardwalk Art Show has been scheduled for June 19-22. The show, featuring $12,500 in case prizes, is sponsored by the Virginia Beach Arts Center. Boardwalk Art Show applicants must send six slides representative of their work, for purposes of jurying, with their application. All applications must be postmarked no later than March 1. Artists will be notified of their acceptance or rejection March 28.

All work must be original and of professional quality. Eligible categories include: oils and acrylics, water-colors, graphics, drawings, sculpture, mixed media, ceramics/pottery, creative crafts (fiber, glass), jewelry, photography, and printmaking.

Application fee is $15 per entry (non-refundable). Space fee is $100 for the first space (10' X 5' deep) and $85 for additional spaces. For information and applications write or call the Virginia Beach Arts Center, 1711 Arctic Ave., Virginia Beach, VA 23451 (804) 425-0000.

BASKETBALL (11-9, 7-3) It's been several years since Christopher Newport has been involved in a Dixie Conference pennant race this late in the season, but the Captains find themselves battling for the top entering the last two weeks of the regular season.

The Captains are sitting in third place, just a half-game behind the league-leading duo of North Carolina Wesleyan and UNC-Greensboro. And CNC has its fate in its own hands, with games remaining against both teams.

The first comes Friday at Ratcliffe Gym as UNCG visits on Homecoming Night. The Spartans took a well-played, 85-78, victory in Greensboro last month. Saturday CNC hosts Greensboro College, the defending Dixie champions who have fallen on hard times this year but will still be dangerous.

The Captains scored victories in two of three Dixie road games last week and came within the narrowest of margins of sweeping the trip. Against Averett, CNC held off a determined Cougar team to win, 84-74. The Captains canned 14 straight free throws in the last two minutes to seal the victory. All-America candidate Buck Moore scored 30, while Broderick Royce and Joel Fortune added 14 apiece.

In the week's only loss CNC did everything but score the final basket to win the game. Down, 58-57, Jerome Nicholson scored with 11 seconds left, but St. Andrews countered with three seconds remaining as Randy Baker picked up a loose ball and hit a 15-foot jumper. Faced with going the length of the floor in three seconds, Fortune uncorked a perfect floor-length pass to Carl Haynes whose short jumper dropped off the rim. Moore followed the shot, but his effort, too, barely rolled off.

But CNC bounced back Saturday for a 73-63 win over Methodist. Despite blowing leads of 17 points in the first half and 25 in the second half, the Captains kept their poise and salvaged a split on the final part of the road trip.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL (15-4, 7-3) The Lady Captains will have three chances to shake off the effects of their first real upset loss of the season, Saturday's 67-64 decision to Methodist.

CNC will travel to Mt. Olive, playing its first year as a four-year school, on Tuesday, and then hosts league-leading UNC-Greensboro, Friday before winding up the week at home against Greensboro College.

It was not the best of weeks for the Lady Captains, although they did win two of three. First they had to hold off stubborn Averett and its new star Pat Stephens. CNC won, 71-66, but not before Stephens single-handedly gave CNC a scare, scoring 38 points, including 24 in the second half. Jenny Nuttycombe's key free throws with 10 seconds left gave CNC a three-point lead and saved the victory.

All-America candidate Pam Stewart scored 22 points to lift CNC over St. Andrews, 67-47, but Methodist caught the Lady Captains napping in the first half of their Saturday contest and upset CNC. The Lady Monarchs took a 14-point halftime lead, and then barely held off a CNC comeback which brought the Lady Captains to within one point three different times.

Lady Captains reach 15-4, Stewart, Fox, and Best shine

By Chris Goddlin
staff writer

The CNC Lady Captains' record is 7-3 in the conference and 15-4 overall. They were victorious over St. Andrews, 67-47 Fri. night, and suffered a loss to Methodist, 67-64 Sat. afternoon.

In the game against St. Andrews, the Lady Captains jumped to a 10-2 lead and were never challenged. At halftime CNC led by 18 points. Reserves were used throughout most of the second half but the Lady Captains still walked away with an easy win.

Pam Stewart led the Lady Captains in scoring with 22 points. She was followed by Alisa Fox with 9 points. Darlene Best led CNC in rebounds with 9.

The game against Methodist on Saturday didn't work out as well. Methodist took off to an early 17-8 lead and overcame a late surge by the Lady Captains to upset CNC.

At one point the Lady Captains were within one, 65-64, but they couldn't pull off the win.

St. Andrews escapes Captains; Captains toy with Methodist

On the road this past weekend, the CNC Captains lost in a very close game to St. Andrews, 60-59, Fri. night, and were victorious over Methodist, 73-63, Sat. afternoon. The Captains' record now stands at 7-3 in the league and 11-9 overall.

In the game against St. Andrews, CNC was behind by 11 points four times during the first half, but pulled things together and led 32-29 at halftime. Suffering a scoring drought in the second half, the Captains were down by six with 2:42 left to play.

Buck Moore had a three-point play, Jerome Nicholson had a field goal, and Moore had another field goal which left the Captains down by one, with 1:19 left to play.

With ten seconds left to play, Nicholson sank a layup which gave CNC its last lead of the game, 59-58. Ten seconds was just enough time for the Knights to get the basket they needed and leave the Captains three seconds on the board.

CNC set up a court-length pass but just couldn't get the ball in the basket. Carl Haynes put the ball up just to have it bounce out, and Moore, getting the rebound, had the same happen to him.

In Saturday's game against Methodist, the Captains scored first and kept the Monarchs away from the basket for the first 5½ minutes of play.

Methodist crept back to within 7 points, 20-13, but CNC scored 14 of the next 18 points to give the Captains a sizeable lead. At the halftime buzzer, Mark Bryan sank a slam-dunk off a pass from Rodney Bradshaw to give CNC a 40-23 halftime lead.

With 15:40 left to play, CNC had a 25 point lead and the Monarchs started their comeback. They scored 8 straight points. The Captains still led 60-43 with 12:00 left to play. Methodist then scored 16 of the next 20 points and trailed by five, 64-59, with 4:40 left to play. The Captains pulled things together and at the buzzer got two to give them their 10-point spread.

For those of you with good imaginations, imagine CNC playing Ohio State or Nebraska in a football game, or CNC volleyballers spiking the ball against powerful Pepperdine University on the hot sands of Daytona Beach. Sounds pretty far-fetched doesn't it? Well, maybe not.

Although the semester just started, many of you are thinking about Spring Break. Every year Daytona Beach is inundated with college students from all over the country. This year it appears to be no different. A group of people in Daytona have presented an idea that will bring together non-varsity college students to compete on a nationwide level in as many as 20 different intramural sports over Spring Break.

The National Collegiate Sports Festival (N.C.S.F.), with help from major corporations including Pelican Bay Country Club, Indigo Lakes Country Club, and Disneyland, have put together a sports festival to be offered to all colleges and universities. The festival will be an athletic alternative to traditional Spring Break activities for more than 400,000 students.

As organizers of the event, N.C.S.F. points out that they promote responsible decisions about alcohol use or non-use and sponsor alcohol education programs internationally. No tobacco or alcohol related corporations were allowed to be sponsors.

The activities in the festival are flag football, softball, volleyball, soccer, tennis, golf, rugby, a 5K run, sailing, cycling, crew, swimming, tug-of-war, racquetball, basketball, ultimate frisbee, cheerleading and trivial pursuit. Many of the events are co-ed and varsity athletes cannot compete in the sport at which they excel.

The festival will be held from the weekend of March 8-9 to the weekend of April 5-6. All events will be held during the week from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. All students who are currently enrolled in any college or university are eligible to compete, regardless of their G.P.A.

As Spring Break is for one week, the weekly winners will be called back (all expenses paid) to compete for 1st prize and a trophy.

The N.C.S.F. is sponsoring the festival for two reasons: to promote good clean fun, and to promote intramural sports. A good way to get interest is to give away money. If you or your group wins the All Around Sports Trophy, you'll also win $10,000 in scholarship money for your school. At the end of the festival over $250,000 will be given away by the N.C.S.F. The Sports Festival will also be covered by an Orlando-based production company (SPTV) and will be broadcast nationwide through cable companies.

Out of a $15.00 entry fee, $2.00 will go to your Intramural Department, $6.50 to the school's general scholarship fund, and $6.50 to the United Way. With each registration the student will receive a four-color custom T-shirt, a map of Daytona Beach, a U.S. map leading to Daytona Beach, discount coupons to Disney World and EPCOT center, coupons for suntan products, and gifts from sponsors for the teams and their supporters.

If you would like more information, contact the CNC Intramural Department in Ratcliffe Gym. The deadline to enter the First Annual Sports Festival is March 1.

Sailing Team

The Sailing Team now has Varsity status and is operating under the Athletic Department. Further support for the team is given by private individuals from a local organization known as the Sailing Association. Lessons are given by Jim Englert, a qualified instructor.
