Celebrate Homecoming

by Yvette Renaud

Haven't you ever wondered about where our college got its name? I mean there must be a reason that we're endlessly plagued with trying to fit the words "Christopher Newport College" into that box on job applications. In fact there is, and it is a historical pride packed foundation.

Captain Christopher Newport landed the first permanent English settlement in Jamestown on May 6, 1607. Newport was the captain of the Susan Constant, which was followed by the Godspeed and the Discovery. Newport also brought supplies to Jamestown, along with the news that more settlers were on the way. Hence, the name of our wonderful city and college. We also now understand the artistic sculptures in the center of campus, and our mascot.

John Smith was one of Jamestown's leaders and was saved by the legendary Pocahontas. Edward Wingfield was president of the ruling council of Jamestown. Bartholomew Gosnold was captain of the Godspeed, and John Ratcliffe was captain of the Discovery. Lewis McMurran, well I don't know who he was, but the hall's original name was Newport, it made more sense that way.

More recently, the college was chartered by the Virginia General Assembly in 1960 as a two-year extension of William and Mary. The branch became a four-year institution in 1971 and gained its independence in 1977.

The college's initial location was a borrowed former public school building in downtown Newport News. The current location was purchased in 1963 from the state.

Christopher Newport is the youngest four-year college in Virginia, but also part of the oldest academic institution.

Mason named project manager

Tisa Mason, director of student life at CNC, has been appointed project manager of the Educational Foundation Commission for Campus Activities for the National Association for Campus Activities, according to Raymon P. Parker, chairman of the NACA Board of Directors. Mason's term began Nov. 7, 1988.

Mason has held NACA positions in the Illiana region as spring conference coordinator, needs assessment project manager and fall regional exhibit hall coordinator. She has been a NACA professional member since 1982.

Headquartered in Columbia, South Carolina, NACA is the largest, most influential educational, trade and professional service association in campus activities. Association membership is composed of more than 1,000 colleges and universities and more than 400 associated firms in the contemporary entertainment, performing and fine arts, recreation, travel and leisure services industries.

Looking in the box: an unexpected thrill

by Tom Gibson
opinions editor

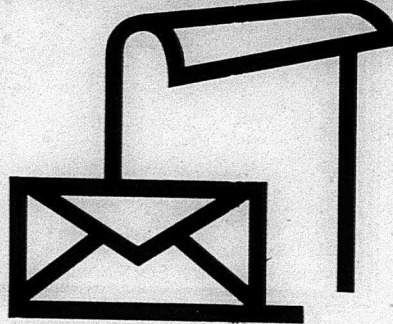

Besides certain disgusting activities, the thing I look forward to most each day is receiving my mail. It is a thrilling experience because I never know what will be waiting for me when I come home.

It is like searching the rear of the refrigerator. There's stuff back there I haven't seen in a while and some items which have changed their appearance since I last saw them. But it's a thrill to discover these foods I've forgotten about: sometimes because it's a food I really enjoy and am happy to know it is there if I want it.

And sometimes because these foods have altered their state by growing fuzz, or appendages. (It's best to remove these as soon as possible since prolonged habitation in the refrigerator could produce a living, moving organism.)

But to the mailbox. I always get a quick rush of adrenaline before I open the flap.

Anything could be waiting for me in the deep, dark hole of the box: a check, a bill or an envelope with Ed McMahon's face on it telling me I may have already won a million dollars. (Yeah, right.)

It doesn't matter what I get, as long as I get something. But there is nothing worse than getting a whoosh of air when the box opens and not one piece of mail.

However, there are some close running feelings of yeech that can be found when the flap flips open. One is receiving anything addressed to "resident." Another is discovering an application for a credit card. These drive me nuts. They read: You have been selected as the beneficiary of our prestigious card, and we believe you have what it takes to become a member of our family.

So what do I do? I send the sucker in. What do they do? They send it back telling me I'm not good enough to have one of their cards, and two weeks later, they send me another damn application.

Then what happens? All the other credit card corps. jump the band wagon and send me applications for their cards.

So, now I think... Maybe they're ready to accept me now. I mean, they are filling my mailbox with applications. I must be ready to join the plastic money clan. (At least one of them.)

I do it. After revealing my financial state (as embarrassing as it is), and naming references (as embarrassing as they are), I return their invitations.

At 25¢ a piece, we're talking some serious bucks. I don't spend money if it doesn't get me anywhere, so I know these wonderful, thoughtful people in the credit card application departments have faith in me and want me to possess polypropylene purchasing power.

But...damn it! They turn me down. All of them. I have now developed an aversion towards the words MasterCard, Visa, American Express. And Sears.

Yes, they laughed in my face too. But the mailbox is not all anguish.

Aside from the trouble the black box brings: letters from lawyers, bills from lawyers, the items I have already mentioned and whatever I may have omitted which are personal buggers to you, the mail also brings fun, enjoyment and excitement.

It is fun to get the latest Rolling Stone. It is enjoyable to receive a letter from a friend. It is exciting to pull out the new Playboy with the exclusive no-staple-though-the-centerfold-so-you-can-see everything-as-intended.

But the real happiness comes from the feeling that you're somebody. It is a similar experience as seeing your name in the phone book.

Yes! I'm a whole person now. I am the recipient of written correspondence. My name is on that letter. It must mean something.

I think it is wonderful that Homecoming is going to be held on campus. This event is not only for present students at CNC, but also for our alumni. I think we need to remember that alumni probably enjoy the opportunity to come back to campus.

I think we need to keep campus activities like Homecoming on campus. Homecoming is a school event, and I think school events should support the campus community and not outside enterprises.

BIO: Cathy "Cat" Skinner

Skinner is an all around outstanding player for the Lady Captains' basketball team. In only two seasons she has managed to develop into All-American material.

So far this season, Cat has led scoring in 15 of 21 games and has led the conference scoring category all season with an average of 22.5 points per game. She has also been as high as third in the nation in scoring among Division III colleges.

Cat set and broke her personal goal for the season, which was to break the CNC single season record for steals. The old record was 84, Skinner broke the record last weekend, and currently stands at 89 steals. She has started all 21 games this season, averages 5.5 rebounds per game, and is second in the DIAC in field goal percentage with .508.

Skinner is a native of Newport News, where she graduated from Denbigh High School in 1985. She is a physical education major and plans to graduate in 1991.

2 big wins for Lady Captains

Two victories over the weekend for the Lady Captains, put them in strong contention for conference second place. The team will need to win both remaining games to stand alone at number two, or will be forced to share the ranks with Greensboro College.

The Lady Captains beat Averett on Friday, 97-52. Cathy Skinner led scoring with 32, followed by Kim Cameron with a personal high of 30. During the game Skinner also broke the seasonal record for steals, which was 84, Skinner has 89.

On Saturday, CNC had no problems stopping Ferrum. The team led by as much as 30, finishing with a score of 81-57. Skinner again led scoring with 20.

CNC will host number one Va. Wesleyan on Saturday at 5:30.

Wanted: manager for men's tennis

A manager is needed for the CNC men's tennis team. It is a paid position and would start immediately. Those interested contact Coach Reynolds in Ratcliffe Gym, 106-C, or by phoning, 594-7382.

Erratic weekend gives CNC no chance to take first

An erratic performance over the weekend took away CNC's last chance to battle NC Wesleyan for first place.

Friday, the Captains defeated third place, Averett, 81-79, a team they previously lost to 83-86. The team was down most of the game, until a shot by Rodney Bradshaw tied the teams with 48 seconds to play. On the winning play, Bradshaw sent up an under-handed shot, despite two defenders. Lamont Strothers led scoring with 32.

The Captains lost to sixth place Ferrum, on Saturday, 89-86, a team CNC previously beat by 25 points. CNC allowed the Panthers to take an early lead and were never able to recover. During the second half, CNC attempted a come back with 3-pointers, a failed strategy. Strothers scored 36 points, and attempted 28 shots from 3-point range, a NCAA record at all levels of play.

The Captains' last game of the regular season will be against Va. Wesleyan during this Homecoming weekend.

On Feb. 14 Mark Parnell was the fifth athlete honored by having his jersey retired. Parnell's number 6 is the first baseball jersey retired, and Parnell is the first CNC athlete in 27 years of school history to have signed a pro contract.

Mike Knez and Edith Heard prepare to student teach in Guadalajara, Mexico.

Lessons in Mexico

Four CNC students will escape winter in Virginia when they embark on a tropical teaching experience this month. Carolyn Berry and Edith Heard, both of Hampton, Mike Knez of Newport News and Kathy Scott of Yorktown will begin a session of student teaching in Guadalajara, Mexico on Feb. 20, 1989.

The group will teach at the American School Foundation in Guadalajara for 10 weeks. Each student will stay with a host family until the end of the spring semester.

Christopher Newport initiated the Mexican student teaching program last fall.

Three other CNC students completed a 10-week fall session of student teaching in Mexico last Dec.

Dr. Sandy Bryan, Director of Latin American Studies and International Education at CNC, plans to incorporate research data from the student teachers in a paper to be delivered at the International Tri-Association Conference in Guadalajara this April.

For more information, contact Dr. Bryan at 594-7106. (Schoolroom photos, taken by one of the CNC student teachers while in Mexico, are available upon request. Call 594-7039 for details).

New commanding cadet

The department of Military Science and CNC ROTC Cadets would like to recognize the new cadet Commanding Officer Cadet Major Enrik Reyes. He replaced the 1988 fall semester Commanding Officer Cadet Major Boris Robinson.

At the beginning of each semester a new Cadet chain of command is assigned. This practice gives students a wide variety of duties and responsibilities which enhances overall leadership skills. The result is a highly skilled and competent Army Officer.

The CNC ROTC Cadets and Cadre would also like to commend their Commanding Officer Major Donald Pohl. During the Spring 1989 change of command ceremony, Major Donald Pohl received a Joint Service Commendation Medal for service with the United States Military Training Mission as Advisor to the Royal Saudi Air Defense Forces Institute. Col. Harris, the Battalion Commander was there to present the award. Congratulations Major Pohl.

S.O.L.E. Scholarship

The Tidewater Chapter of Logistics Engineers (S.O.L.E.) has established a scholarship in honor of the founder of their chapter. The William J. Blackburn, C.P.L., Scholarship is an annual award in the amount of $1,000.

The scholarship is intended to aid a Tidewater, VA resident (or dependent of a resident) who is entering the third or fourth year of college and is pursuing a field of study related to the logistics profession. The applicant must have a minimum 3.0 GPA and submit a 500 to 1,000 word paper explaining the relationship of their field of study to logistics profession.

The applicant deadline is July 1, 1989. Application forms and information are available in the CNC Financial Aid Office, located in the Administration Building, Room 239.

Dependency a reality

Can some drugs be taken without fear of dependency?

According to Dr. Mark Gold, dependency is an adverse effect of all drugs (alcohol included). Some individuals have a higher potential for dependency to certain drugs based on genetic history. When the body craves a drug or must have a drug for normal functioning, an individual has developed a physical dependency to that particular drug and ordinarily to all drugs in that same classification.

Dependency occurs when tolerance to a drug is present. That is, an individual must continue to increase the amount of the drug in an attempt to achieve the same effect. Addicts must continue to take more and more of a drug "just to feel normal".

Switching to other drugs in the same class won't help because tolerance has also developed for them (cross tolerance).

The other significant sign of dependency is withdrawal. This is a name given to the body's physiological response to sudden discontinuance of the drug. An example is delirium tremors (D.T.'s) in an alcoholic. Recently, researchers have identified typical signs of withdrawal to other drugs such as Cocaine, marijuana, and phencyclidine.

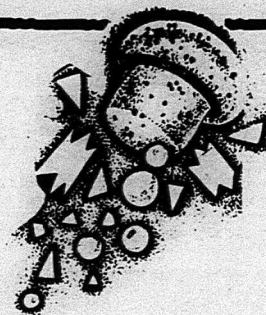

In short, dependency may become a reality with any drug depending on amount and frequency used. It is wise to note that dependency develops extremely rapidly with "crack" in the teenage years when the body is still in a growth stage.

Hope can burst from depression's pit

News Editor's Note: This is part two of a series on depression and hope.

by Kathleen A. Dickens

Where can you call anytime of the day or night and find someone that willingly listens to your cries of anguish or your plea for help? The name of the place is Contact. The numbers are 245-0041 and 874-7279.

For 20 years the Peninsula Contact volunteers have been answering the phones approximately 2,000 times each month. This round-the-clock organization functions with five paid staff and over 250 active, well-trained volunteers. These dedicated listeners spend 100 hours in training that starts with an all day Saturday workshop, then meetings two nights a week for 10 weeks, and then finishes with an overnight retreat. After training and three supervised practice shifts, the trainees become accredited hotline volunteers.

Dr. Gail Robertson, executive director of Contact, proudly states that the Peninsula Center is one of the few hotline organizations nationwide that offers this vast training for free. She feels that the skills learned in this course can benefit anyone in their daily life. For the regular tuition fee, CNC students may take the course and receive 3 credit hours. (For more information speak with Dr. Herman in the Psychology dept.)

Many people may not realize that Contact is much more than a phone line for desperate people..."

Answering the cries for help can be emotionally exhausting to the volunteer so Dr. Robertson carefully guards the number of hours her hotline workers are on the phones. A volunteer averages about eight hours per month taking calls.

Many people may not realize that Contact is much more than a phone line for desperate people:

CONTACT has trouble teams that respond when a life is threatened by suicide.

DAILY CONTACT is a group of volunteers in addition to the previously mentioned 250. These people call the elderly every day to check on their welfare.

CONTACT A FRIEND was designed for latchkey children to call when lonely, afraid or just for the sound of an adult voice. CONTACT sends stickers with the phone number on them to over 50,000 children in the area.

"These volunteers will also accompany the victims ...as human companions to help in the crisis."

The CONTACT COUNSELING PANEL is composed of professional therapists who volunteer their time to see people on a one to one basis.

The CONTACT SEXUAL ASSAULT DIVISION are dedicated people who take an additional 60 hours of training in order to assist the victims of rape (whether adult male, adult female or child). When a call comes into CONTACT on the special hotline number known only to hospitals, the senior phone worker immediately calls a sexual assault division volunteer who immediately goes to the hospital. These volunteers will also accompany the victims to the police stations and court rooms - not as legal aides, but as human companions to help in the crisis.

The CONTACT COMMUNITY EDUCATION GROUP and SPEAKERS BUREAU, also composed of volunteers, goes into the community to assist people in becoming aware of the CONTACT services available.

CONTACT also has the TELETYPE-WRITER SERVICE FOR THE DEAF which serves about 100 local families. These hearing impaired people use this service to reach out in a way that was formerly denied them. A call from a deaf person to CONTACT is rarely an emergency but more likely a request for the hotline worker to make a call for them. Sometimes a school will use the service so that the deaf parent can be reached to be told their child is ill. Dr. Robertson fondly remembers the time a volunteer teletyped a woman through her labor until the ambulance arrived.

In addition to the vast resources listed above, CONTACT hotline workers have at their fingertips a list of various community services. They can refer a battered woman to a shelter and a pregnant teenager to a clinic.

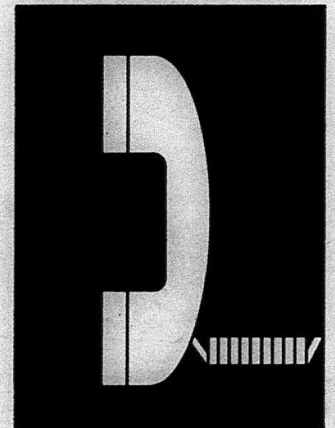

Although hotline workers actively listen and refer, they do not preach or give advice. Dr. Robertson tells her trainees that "...if they give advice I'm going to pray everynight that the volunteer is blessed or condemned to have to live it. Their job is to listen and to care."

Although the volunteers give of their time to be trained and to man the phones, they are heard saying that they receive as much as they give. Dr. Robertson, who trained in the first class held at Peninsula CONTACT 20 years ago, states that this remarkable organization offers her the opportunity to be close to people and to feel valued.

"'There is a great difference between listening and hearing... Listening is an activity of the heart, not merely the ear.'"

The CONTACT pamphlet states "There is a great difference between listening and hearing. One is a physical activity. The other is a physical, mental and emotional activity. Listening is an activity of the heart, not merely the ear."

For more information on the CONTACT hotline training course please call 244-0594.

Virginian Leader

by Jean Greenwood
staff writer

Nat Turner was a native of Southampton County, Va. He was the leader of one of the largest slave uprisings in North America. Turner escaped the bonds of slavery only to return because of his religious ties. During the time of his bondage, Turner became very religious. He was very devoted to prayer and expressed that he even experienced visions which told him to lead the people out of slavery. It is thought that Turner experienced one of these visions Feb. 1831. During this month there was an eclipse of the sun and Turner took this as his divine inspiration.

The nature of this rebellion seemed so mystic that there was very little effort towards planning. The participants in the Aug. 21 uprising were few, but by the end Turner and his troops numbered 60. Turner escaped and remained in hiding for three months until he was accidentally discovered. While awaiting his execution he made very little effort to comment on the uprising, but stated, "Was not Christ crucified?" Turner was hung Nov. 11, 1831. The whereabouts of his remains was kept a secret.

The results of this uprising brought more restrictions to the slaves. Laws were even imposed which caused slaves to lose what little freedom they had. However, the laws and restrictions did not prevent further uprisings.

Race not a barrier

by Jean Greenwood
staff writer

L. Douglas Wilder became the first Black Lt. Governor in Virginia. He proved that race was no longer a barrier that Blacks had to face in government. Wilder will also be working toward the upcoming election for Virginia's new Governor.

Wilder worked his way out of a city ghetto. He studied Chemistry at Virginia Union University and Law at Howard University. He practiced law in Richmond before running for Senate. While in the Senate, Wilder set out to get Blacks in every level of government possible. He also sponsored the bill to make Martin Luther King's birthday a state holiday, legislation to establish preventive services for sickle cell anemia, and encouraged funding for Virginia's Black State colleges.

Wilder's triumph, as the highest-ranking Black elected state official in the country, serves as an example to all minorities that you can achieve your goals. Wilder claims his formula for success is that, "persistence and a positive attitude pay off."

A HOME SAFETY QUIZ

SOURCE: VIRGINIA CRIME PREVENTION ASSOCIATION JOURNAL

1. Do you know if any burglaries or acts of vandalism have occurred in your neighborhood recently?
2. Do you know and look out for your neighbors? Do they look out for you?
3. Is your shrubbery trimmed so it doesn't cover any doors or windows?
4. Are your home's external doors made of solid wood or metal?
5. Do they have deadbolt locks?
6. Have you properly secured all means of entry, including sliding glass doors, skylights, and basement windows?
7. Do you use your door and window locks, even when working in the yard, running an errand, or just being in the house?
8. If your front door does not have a window, do you have and use a peephole?
9. Do you avoid hiding keys outside the house?
10. Have you marked valuable property with numbers recommended by the police?
11. Do your children know not to open the door to strangers and not to give your address to strangers over the telephone?
12. Do you alert a neighbor when you'll be away from home for more than a day?
13. Do you use timers to turn lights and radios on and off when you're on vacation?
14. Are vacant lots in your neighborhood cleaned up?
15. Have you joined a neighborhood crime watch or apartment watch organization?

If you answered "yes" to all 15 questions, congratulations! A score of 10 or more indicates your home is fairly secure. Under 10? You're a good target and should make your home safer.

Campus Police provides free crime prevention, alcohol, and drug awareness materials to the college community. The distribution locations are the Information Desk and the Campus Police Office [Room 238] in the Campus Center and the information stand in the lobby of Captain John Smith Library.

Remember, the primary goal of the crime prevention program is to reduce crime through public awareness and educational programs.
